[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 21.—President Wilson does not yet consider the case against Germany, in connection with the sinking of the Arabic, closed.

From the meager facts at hand, however, the President and Secretary Lansing are known to have taken the position that the situation is extremely grave, and unless all the evidence, as it is gathered finally, shows extenuating circumstances it is almost certain, in the minds of officials in Washington, that there will be no alternative to the severance of diplomatic relations.

Germany is to be asked by the United States government, through Ambassador Gerard, at Berlin, to explain the sinking of the Arabic.

Upon the reply that is made will

LAST SOUSE FOR JOHNSON.

Oregon Judge will Keep Him in Jail Until Oregon Goes Dry.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Aug. 21.—Municipal Judge John H. Stevenson announced today that all habitual drunkards brought before him henceforth would be sentenced to remain in jail until Oregon goes dry on January 1, 1916. His announcement was made in sentencing Peter Johnson, on a charge of habitual drunkenness, to jail until the new year.

MAN AND MONEY GONE; FEAR FELT.

WOMAN HELPS POLICE SEARCH FOR UNCLE MISSING SINCE APRIL.

The disappearance of John Gallagher, 30 years old, a well-to-do real estate man living at No. 411 Winston street, is puzzling the police. Mr. Gallagher was last seen April 3 when he drove away from the stable at Winston and Los Angeles streets in his one-horse carriage with a strange youth. It was not until a week ago that the detectives started work on the case, which was brought to their attention by a niece, Miss Agnes Fitzgerald of New York.

When Detective Felts investigated he discovered that Mr. Gallagher had withdrawn $700 from the bank just before his disappearance. No one at the hotel in Winston street could throw any light on the case.

Miss Fitzgerald arrived in Los Angeles last week, and since her coming has been actively aiding Detective Felts in the search. Mr. Gallagher owns considerable rental property in and about Los Angeles and maintains a substantial bank account. The theory of Detective Felts is that he was decoyed to some lonely spot and robbed of the $700. Moreover, his protracted absence has led his niece to fear greatly for his safety.

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

Italy's action in declaring a state of hostilities between Italy and Turkey is variously interpreted. Probably the best interpretation is that the end to be attained is to enlist Greece also on the side of the Entente powers. As for the war itself, no real progress is evident anywhere except in Russia, where the Russian armies are still retreating under persistent pressure of the Germans.

As for Mexico—"watchful waiting."

PETROGRAD (via London) Aug. 21, 11:35 p.m.—A British submarine has torpedoed a German cruiser in the Baltic Sea. This statement is made in an official announcement.

The statement follows:

"During the fighting in the Gulf of Riga Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the enemy's losses were not less than two torpedo boats.

"A British submarine successfully torpedoed a German cruiser in the Baltic Sea.

"On land, on the front from Riga to the lower Wilija, there has been no change. In the direction of Kovno our troops held up the enemy's offensive on the railway line toward Kochedary.

"Between the Narew and the Bug on the front, Ossowetz-Bielsk-Brest-Litovsk, there was no important change Thursday or yesterday. Our troops repulsed a series of particularly fierce attacks in the region of Bielsk which cost the enemy enormous losses. On the Bug, in the region of Brest-Litovsk, there was no important change.

"At Novogeorgievsk there was violent fighting during Thursday night, the Germans making an assault against the citadel on the right bank of the Vistula.

"On the rest of the front there has been no change."

The Russians apparently admit no losses in the Gulf of Riga battle. A German statement issued yesterday declared that the Russian gunboats Sivutch and Koretts and a torpedo boat were destroyed while several others were damaged.

ITALY VS. TURKEY.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 21, 10:50 p.m.—A Steffani News Agency dispatch from Rome says Italy has declared war against Turkey.

LONDON, Aug. 21, 11:07 p.m.—The Italian government says a Steffani dispatch from Rome, has sent to all its representatives abroad a circular dispatch, setting forth the questions at issue between Italy and Turkey. The dispatch closes with these words:

"In view of these obvious infractions of categorical promises made by the Ottoman government and following upon our ultimatum of August 3, provoked by evasions of the Ottoman government, particularly with regard to the free departure of Italian subjects from Asia Minor, the Italian government has sent instructions to its Ambassador at Constantinople to declare war on Turkey."

LONDON, Aug. 21, 10:05 p.m.—Marquis di Garroni, the Italian Ambassador to Turkey, today handed to the Porte a note declaring Italy considered herself in a state of war with Turkey and demanded his passports, according to an official telegram from Constantinople received at Amsterdam and transmitted to the Central News.

THE BALKAN SITUATION

LONDON, Aug. 21, 10:15 p.m.—Telegrams from the Balkan capitals state that Turco-Bulgarian relations have reached the breaking point and that Turkey is strengthening her fortifications in Thrace because of the fear of a Bulgarian invasion. No open breach between the Bulgarians and Turks is likely, however, until Bulgaria learns whether the Servian Paliament, which has been in secret session for three days, is willing to cede Macedonia to her.

Venizelos is back in power in Greece, but it is questionable whether he will be so ready to join the allies as he was before the political crisis and dispute with King Constantine, which caused his downfall early in the year.

Verona.

ITALIANS ARE HAMMERING AT OUTPOSTS OF TRENT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VERONA (Italy) Aug. 21 (via Paris.)—Italian artillery is now hammering at the outposts of the great intrenched camp of Trent. The Austrian position on Mt. Panarotta lies to the northeast of Levico, which is ten miles southeast of Trent. This mountain, more than 6000 feet high, is one of the outposts of Trent.

In attempting to advance on Trent, the Italian forces have before them a long and difficult task. From the top of Mt. Panarotta down Tenna Pass is a succession of forts and intrenchments extending for more than twenty miles and connected by underground passages built last September.

The gigantic defenses of the Austrians around Trent extend from Stelvio Pass, near the Swiss frontier, down to Lake Garda and up to the Carnic Alps. They form a barrier more than 200 miles long, in which nature herself has erected the most formidable bulwarks.

TOWN DESTROYED BY FIRE; ANOTHER ONE IN DANGER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BELLINGHAM, Wash. Aug. 21.—Fanned by a northeast wind, forest fires in all parts of Whatcom County which yesterday laid waste to the sawmill town of Alki and destroyed homes near Maple Falls, Alger and elsewhere, is threatening other homes and mill property. Mail, telephone and telegraph services have been interupted and hundreds of men are fighting to prevent further destruction.

The damage already done is estimated at several thousands of dollars.

When telephone communication was partly restored this afternoon it was learned the town of Wahl, eight miles north of Bellingham, had been wiped out by the flames, but that no lives had been lost. The situation at Maple Falls, near the Canadian border, is serious today and it is feared that at least a part of the town will be destroyed.

Colors of Atlantic Transport Company, to Which Mongolia and Four Other Vessels Have been Sold, go Up—Recalls Days of First "Side Wheelers."

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—The five-barred red, white and blue house flag of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company was lowered from the foremast of the liner Mongolia as the ship's clock struck eight bells today, and the colors of the Atlantic Transport Company, to which the Mongolia and four other vessels of the line have been sold, was hoisted to its place.

Meanwhile stevedores were loading into the lowermost of the Mongolia's five below deck "stories" the last cargo the former pride of the Pacific Mail service will carry across the Pacific.

No special ceremony marked the change and no official of either of the steamship lines was present. A half dozen bystanders witnessed the performance which took from the Pacific Mail the flag which had been a familiar sight for sixty years. The Pacific Mail Steamship Company was the oldest trans-Pacific line. It instituted the first regular service around Cape Horn, ran the first "side wheelers" across the western ocean, and was among the first to operate the modern liners of today.

Constantinople Remains the Grand Prix — European Politics Promises to Make Bedfellows of Utter Strangers and Bloodthirsty Foes — Why the Allies are "Laying Down" in the West.

BY HARRY CARR.

BERLIN, Aug. 6 (By mail to New York and Direct Wire to Los Angeles.)—The question whether or not Germany shall restore Belgium to the Belgians continues to agitate the German mind. The people may be said to be divided into two camps on the subject. One party demands the retention of Belgium. Another party would give Belgium back to the Belgians and the Entente that used Belgium as a neutral and a buffer state.

A number of petitions from strong men in the German empire have been presented from time to time to Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg. In one set of petitions it is advised that it were madness for the Germans to try absolutely to crush and annihilate her enemies. No nation has ever been completely annihilated in war. This party makes the insinuation that England is ready to quit and withdraw from the war if Belgium is restored. Where they get their information is not so clear. It may be true.

In line with this is current gossip to the effect that in reality England would like to establish an alliance with Germany as against Russia. You never can tell. It is well known at home that politics do make strange bedfellows.

Whether the Germans will have it or not, there are indications in Europe that England is trying to so shape events as to make Germany an ally in fact if not on paper. This explains why the allies have been "laying down on the job" in the western theater of war. Meanwhile the Germans are hammering the Russians in a way almost to provoke mirth if it were not for the tragedy of it all. And the more Germany hammers the Slavs, the more John Bull is entitled to "slap his chest and sing."

Britain for a century has stood against the pretensions of Russia in Europe. England opposed the dividing up of Austria-Hungary because weakness in the dual monarchy would spell strength in Petrograd. England calculates on an era in which the largest and best army in the world (Germany's) will co-operate with the greatest navy in the world (England's) to oppose the greatest nation in the world, namely, Russia, in so far that area of dominions and virility of peoples make a nation great.

Wherefore Constantinople remains the big bone of contention, the crux of the entire case of the war.

The Russians are not co-operating with the Entente allies to capture Constantinople. They have not got time. And the French and the English appear to be having a sorry time of it.

But there is more going on in this war than the mere war itself. Cosmic forces are at work—or at play.

THREE RUSSIAN GUNBOATS SUNK IN RIGA BATTLE.

Germans Also Lose a Warship and Two Others are Put Out of Commission During the Engagement. Attack is Part of General Movement to Afford Relief to Teuton Army Operating Against Slavs.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN (via London) Aug. 21.—Three Russian warships and one German warship, all small vessels, have ben sunk in the battle in the Gulf of Riga. Announcement to this effect was made today.

Two other German warships were put out of commission during the engagement. One ran ashore and the other was damaged.

The Russian vessels which were sunk were the gunboats Sivutch and Koreets, and a torpedo boat. The German ships sunk or put out of commission were all torpedo boats. The damaged German boat was escorted to port.

The Sivutch and Koreets were sister ships of 875 tons displacement. They were 218 feet long, 36 feet beam and 8 feet deep. They were armed with two 4.7-inch guns and four 3-inch guns. Their normal complement was 140 men each.

For nearly a fortnight a powerful German squadron was engaged in an attempt to force an entrance into the Gulf of Riga, for the purpose of assisting the German army which occupies the western coast of the gulf. The Russians asserted that they repelled on August 8 an attack delivered by nine German battleships, twelve cruisers and a large number of destroyers.

Later the Russians announced that their warships had been drawn in closer on account of the superiority of the German squadron and an official communication received last night from Petrograd said that a German fleet had penetrated the Gulf and engaged the Russian vessels.

"Our Baltic naval forces penetrated the Gulf of Riga after mine sweepers had swept the mine field and net obstruction. In the outpost engagements which developed a Russian torpedo boat of the Emir Pucharskii class was destroyed and other torpedo boats, among them the Novsk and one large vessel, were severaly damaged while retreating.

"On the evening of the 19th in Moon Sound, the Russian gunboats Sivutch and Koreets were sunk by artillery fire and torpedo boats after brave resistance. Forty members of the crews including two officers, some severely wounded, were rescued by our torpedo boats.

"Three of our torpedo boats were damaged by mines: One sank, one was aground and one was escorted to port.

"Our loss of life was small."

A REVOLUTION WITHOUT BLOOD.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 21, 10:40 p.m.—A bloodless revolution in Laurenco Marquez, a Portuguese territory in East Africa, has been reported at Johannesburg by former officials of the district. A fortnight ago about 400 ultra-republicans, termed Carbonario, seized the government offices at Lourenco Marquez, a Reuter dispatch says, and deposed the acting Governor. Prominent military and civil officials were deported on a steamer. Control was wrested from the regularly-constituted authorities without the firing of a shot.

Dilemma.

PEACEFUL ALTERNATIVE TO DIPLOMATIC RUPTURE.

Why the President is Moving Slowly in the Case of the Arabic.

United States Cannot Afford to Announce a Drastic Policy Until it is Sure of All the Facts and Probably Nothing will be Done Until an Explanation has been Volunteered by Berlin.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 21.—President Wilson is giving fresh consideration to the proposal to form a league of neutral nations for the purpose of securing respect for neutral rights upon the high seas. This is the alternative to the rupture of diplomatic relations with Germany, which the President is reluctant to authorize. It would be the business of such a league as the President has in mind to take up with Germany and her allies as well as with Great Britain and the countries fighting with her, any violations and infringements of international law as settled prior to the existing conflict. The league would be a two-edged sword, regarded with distrust and suspicion by all belligerents. Because of this and the fact that Germany's offenses are against humanity rather than trade (and therefore more serious) Mr. Wilson hesitates to adopt the expedient. However, so far as the administration can see at the present moment, it is the less unsatisfactory form of dilemma. The President and his advisers realize that to send another threatening note to Berlin would be not merely futile, but damaging to the prestige of the United States. It is unlikely that any representation will be made to Berlin. The German government of course will be asked to acquaint the United States with the nature of the report of the commander of the submarine which attacked the Arabic. There is the possibility that the German commander may cite a circumstance in justification of his conduct which would bring his action within the domain of international law.

The United States cannot afford to announce a drastic policy until it is sure of all the facts so there will be nothing done until Berlin has spoken. In the meantime the President and Secretary Lansing are considering the course to pursue. If the plan to organize a league of neutrals should be adopted after preliminary inquiries, invitations will be addressed to most if not all the foreign states: Europe—Bulgaria, Denmark, Greece, Holland, Norway, Portugal, Roumania, Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland; America—Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Salvador, Uruguay, Venezuela; Asia—China.

It is to be expected that all of South and Central America would follow the lead of the United States. A different situation, however, might prevail among European neutrals. Denmark and Norway for example, are pro-ally and while doubtless willing to join in strong representations to Germany, are less disposed to hamper Great Britain.

Sweden which is pro-German would object to action in Berlin, while favorable to urgent protests in London. Holland unquestionably would act with the United States. Switzerland and Spain, likewise the Balkan States, are trembling on the verge of war and because of this fact it may be decided in case the project to form the league should be adopted to refrain from extending an invitation to them.

Several weeks would be required to form the league and to determine the character and scope of the representations to be made to Germany. When the representations were made, however, they would have the backing of the powers at peace, especially of those whose territories are contiguous to Germany and from which she is obtaining supplies. It is regarded as altogether likely that the united voice of all these powers would be heeded. Thus the precedent in Mexico may be observed with reference to Europe though as a matter of fact if the league should be created it would be merely identical with those formed in 1781 and 1792 of both of which this country was a member.

LINERS DEFY SUBMARINES.

Recent Activities Apparently have no Effect on Those Sailing from New York to European Ports.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Recent activities of German submarines had no apparent effect on sailings of trans-Atlantic ships from this port today. Four liners flying American, British, French and Italian flags, with more than 2000 passengers on board, in addition to full cargoes of exports, sailed, or prepared to sail before night.

The Cunard liner Orduna, with 275 passengers, of whom seven are Americans, left port at 10:20 a.m. for Liverpool. The American Line steamship New York was to sail at noon with 470 passengers. The French Line steamship La Touraine, with 220 passengers, was to leave at 3 p.m. for Bordeaux, and the Italian liner Stampalia, with 1057 passengers, will sail at 4 p.m.

The passengers on the Stampalia include more than 1000 in the third class, the majority of whom are men going to Italy to enlist for the war.

depend President Wilson's attitude towards enforcing the suggestion that such an attack would be regarded as "deliberately unfriendly" and towards the fulfillment of the previous threat to leave nothing undone to protect American rights.

STAND OF GERMANY.

Germany's explanation, it was learned authoritatively tonight, will be based upon the following contentions:

First, that the Arabic was a menace to German safety because she had become the largest carrier of war munitions, and deserved to be destroyed.

Second, the German submarine commander did give warning to the Arabic, but the British will not admit it.

Third, the submarine commander, whether correctly or incorrectly, interpreted moves made by the captain of the Arabic as an effort either to get away or ram the submarine.

Fourth, the commander of the submarine had sufficient reason to believe that the Arabic carried no Americans, because she had no first cabin.

Although it is understood that no mention of the fact may be made by Germany, it is understood here that the presence of a large amount of gold, possibly to the extent of $10,000,000 or even $15,000,000, was the real incentive to the firing of the torpedo.

Whether the explanation that will be given by Germany will satisfy President Wilson or not cannot be stated. The only straws which may be said to point the way to the future were the admissions at the White House that from the fewer telegrams received the country did not seem to be as much wrought up over the Arabic as over the sinking of the Lusitania and the known fact that President Wilson's greatest ambition is to keep this country out of the war.

LANSING IN CONFERENCE.

For more than half an hour, Secretary Lansing discussed the situation with President Wilson at the White House today. Later he made the important statement that Ambassador Gerard would be instructed to get Germany's side of the matter.

The fact that the British censors are withholding information with regard to certain features of the situation has led to the belief that Germany may be able to dissipate some of the evidence which now points to a wanton and premeditated attack.

The British censorship, however, while keeping the American public in darkness as to certain features, has not been operative against the reports received at the State Department from its representatives abroad. One of the points that is not clear, even to the State Department, is why the Arabic should have been without a convoy when attacked, since the Cymric, which recently arrived at New York reported having been convoyed for thirty-six hours after leaving Liverpool by relays of British warships, five in number, and that she had not been permitted to sail unaccompanied until the war zone was passed.

The United States government lately has been acting on the supposition that Berlin had given orders that submarine commanders were to give warning before attacking any vessels carrying Americans. The first reports that came from Berlin, following the sinking of the Arabic, showed that the people there believed all passengers had been saved.

London's official announcement that the Arabic was not under convoy at the time of the attack has aggravated the already delicate situation with Germany, but President Wilson has permitted it to become known that he is going to get all the facts, from both sides, before making a final decision with referance to the one course of reprisal that is under consideration, namely, the severance of diplomatic relations.

ATTITUDE OF PEOPLE.

The fact that the White House is not being deluged at this time with telegrams and letters in regard to the Arabic is deemed significant as showing the attitude of the people of the United States, for the reason that one of the prerogatives and habits of the American citizen is that when any big thing comes before the country he promptly sits down and writes or wires the President of the United States what he thinks about it. Through this medium the President is often able to gauge public opinion very well. Following the Lusitania disaster telegrams and letters by the hundreds rolled into the Executive offices and were promptly indexed and laid on the desk of Mr. Wilson.

The eight or ten messages received at the White House on the Arabic represent different shades of public opinion, some radical and some conservative, about equally divided. One of the interpretations placed on this scarcity of voluntary views from people of the country is that the people are willing to leave the situation to the President himself and do not wish to embarrass him, feeling secure in the knowledge that he will wait and obtain all the facts and do the right thing. The President himself devoted the day to consideration of the whole subject and to general business. Because of the rain he did not golf or go automobiling.

The statement by Mr. Lansing that Ambassador Gerard at Berlin may be asked to inquire as to the Arabic is the first indication from any official source that Germany would have an opportunity to give the reasons for the attack on the Arabic apparently in disregard of President Wilson's solemm warning that such an act would be regarded as "deliberately unfriendly."

The State Department's attitude is that if the German government has any facts which, in its opinion, go to mitigate the circumstances of the attack, such as an attempt by the Arabic to escape, or an attempt to resist, or to attack the submarine, the Berlin Foreign Office should have an opportunity to present them.

What has so far come has come from British sources, and it may be accepted as definite that there will be opportunity for both sides to be presented.

Today's announcement also indicates that before President Wilson takes any action there may be some exchange of diplomatic communications. It is understood that the State Department's policy is to show the utmost deliberation consistent with the delicacy of the questions involved, and to omit no opportunity of avoiding a severance of the diplomatic relations with Germany so long as there is a reasonable expectation that a sufficient excuse can be given for the sinking of the Arabic.

PORTRAYAL OF CHOPIN INCREASES RELIEF FUND.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

EXPOSITION GROUNDS, SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—Paderewski played today at Festival Hall in the Exposition grounds for the benefit of the Polish victims' relief found, and, because of his nearness to his subject, he brought himself nearer to the hearts of the people than ever before. He gave a brief address before his concert, about the organization for the promotion of which the recital was given, and he followed his speech with an hour of Chopin; no music could be more appropriate than that, and so wonderfully was the great Polish master played that the sufferings of Poland became visible and audible things under the hands of the pianist.

Paderewski brought hundreds of people into the vast hall, emotionless and critical, and by his marvelous powers, sent them away feeling that the outrages of his country were things too terrible to be borne, and must be assuaged; feeling with the interpreter, every pang of his suffering country, and feeling as never before, the miraculous power of music, and its divine message. Chopin told Schumann that he had been inspired to compose the ballades by the poetry of his countrymen, and surely it is in his ballades that he attains the zenith of his powers as a poet-musician. Paderewski played the well-known ballade in A flat, which was suggested by the poem, "Undine," of Mickiewcz. In it, said Schumann, it is impossible to get away from the refined, distinguished Pole, who is accustomed to move in the most distinguished society of the French capital. Can any other composer portray elegance and refinement as can Chopin? His sufferings as well as his joys are those of the well-bred aristocrat, and this is the ultimate touch which Paderewski never fails to give him.

MAZURKA AND THE "HEROIQUE."

It was perhaps in the Mazurka in A minor and the "Herioque" Polonaise that the warlike element was most pronounced. All the love for Poland which these great men, Chopin and his greatest interpreter, Paderewski, feel, was expressed in these two compositions; but as well as the love, and hand in hand, comes the hate for her oppressors. There can be no great love where there is no capacity for hatred, and if ever hatred was expressed in ringing terms, it was in that great Polonaise this afternoon. No one could be indifferent to the sentiment, nor fail to recognize it; it was there boldly and vigorously expressed, and without shame or flinching. Paderewski threw back his mane of hair, and tossed his head as though to defy and annihilate those who have strewn his country with wreckage, and as the compositions were inspired by one who suffered equally under the terrors of war, he had all that was necessary to stir and abet his own feeling of revolt and wrongs unavenged. From this mood, however, the pianist turned at last, and it was the great B flat minor Sonata, with the funeral march that brought the audience to the height of its emotion. To hear Paderewski play that funeral march is a great event, but to hear him play it at this time, when his home is the refuge of Polish victims, and his friends are gone—perhaps one is stirred to this extent only once or twice in a lifetime.

THE FIRST MOVEMENT.

The first movement of the sonata is a melodious and fiery approach to the subject and is composed, for the most part, in triplets. Then follows the well-known march with its solemn drone and majestic tread which lead to the poignant melody in the right hand, that piercing though placid cry that seems to carry one's very soul on its upward way. Who has not felt themselves flowing, floating on that haunting aria as though borne upon wings of infinite love and tenderness? It is this very loveliness in the funeral march that makes the finale of the sonata so much more terrible with its mad rush of triplets in the bass, as though demons had taken that soul and hurled it into hell with fiends to catch at it. It was the terror and desolation in this movement that brought Paderewski's listeners to their feet, scarcely knowing what it was that urged them.

Is it not true that out of the greatest sorrow and distress great beauty comes, and it is not to be expected that Paderewski will ever play with such sympathy as he played this afternoon for the relief of the Polish victims.

The Polish victims relief fund was originated by the novelist, Henry K. Sienkiewicz, and Paderewski just a year and two weeks ago. Seinkiewicz is the president and Paderewski the vice-president, and the association numbers among its members such men as Henri Bergson, Severin, Philip Fruchtmann and Prof. Simon Aszkenazy. Committees of one hundred prominent men have been formed in the cities of London, Paris, New York and now, through the efforts of Paderewski, in San Francisco. The headquarters of the association are in Lauzanne, Switzerland.

In an interview at the Palace Hotel before the concert Paderewski said:

"Do not be deceived by the elegance of my surroundings. These lovely rooms in which you see me are given to my use by the hotel in consideration of my work for the Polish fund. I could not affoir this apartment. I have lost everything."

Paderewski is so modest a man that I would have extracted from him nothing of the story of his losses and work for the Polish victims except for the kindly interjections of Mr. Urchs, his secretary.

"Paderewski's home in Morge, Switzerland, is occupied by about forty Polish refugees," he said, "and his work for the fund has been unceasing and untiring."

I asked Paderewski if he liked San Francisco, and he answered:

"Indeed, I love all California. I have bought 2500 acres of land near Paso Robles, but that was before the war," he added quickly. "California has an element of freedom that is dear to me, of waste spaces and largeness, and I like the people."

But the thought uppermost in his mind is his country's sufferings and he neither thinks nor talks of much else at this time. Aside from numerous concerts which he will give for the benefit of the relief fund, Paderewski will make a short professional tour.

GERMAN ENEMIES TO PAY WAR COST.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Aug. 20 (via Amsterdam and London, Aug. 21.)—Dr. Karl Helfferich, Secretary of the German Imperial Treasury, speaking in the Reichstag on the second reading of the war loan of $2,500,000,000, said:

"Until now 20,000,000,000 marks have been voted and our estimates of war needs still are exceeded by real expenditures. The expenditure in one month is higher by one-third than the total expenditure for the war of 1870, but every German knows that the sacrifices will not be in vain.

"The heavy burden of thousands of millions will be borne through decades by the instigators of the war and not by us."

ROOSEVELT HINTS AT WAR.

Criticizes President for Timidity in Lusitania Case and Declares the Time for Deeds has Come.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OYSTER BAY (N. Y.) Aug. 21.—Former President Theodore Roosevelt issued the following statement here tonight:

"I see this suggested in the paper, that the German answer to our last note, that is, the sinking of the Arabic by a German submarine and the consequent murder of certain American citizens, will be adequately met by the administration dismissing Bernstorff and severing diplomatic relations with Germany. I earnestly hope the administration will not take this view, for to do so would be a fresh sacrifice of American honor and interest.

"The President's note to Germany in February, last, was an excellent note, if only it had been lived up to. But every subsequent note has represented nothing but weakness and timidity on our side; and the sinking of the Lusitania and of the Arabic, the attacks on the Gulflight and Falaba and all the similar incidents that have occurred represent the arrogant answers which this weakness has inspired. Germany will care nothing for the mere severance of diplomatic relations.

"The time for words on the part of this nation has long passed; and it is inconceivable to American citizens, who claim to be inheritors of the traditions of Washington and Lincoln, that our governmental representatives shall not see that the time for deeds has come. What has just occurred is a fresh and lamentable proof of the unwisdom of our people in not having insisted upon the beginning of active military preparedness thirteen months ago."

DANES ARE INDIGNANT.

Destruction of British Submarine in Neutral Waters Starts Protest From Press of Copenhagen.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 21, 7:55 p.m.—The Copenhagen correspondent of Reuters Telegram Company sends the following despatch regarding the sinking of the British submarine, E-13:

"The destruction of the British submarine E-13 in Danish territory by German destroyers under circumstances which placed the shipwrecked craft under Danish protection, has aroused widespread indignation which finds expression in the Danish newspapers. It is urged that there can be no explanation or plausible excuse for the deliberate violation of Danish territory, as a German torpedo boat had thoroughly investigated the locality before returning with the others to attack the defenseless crew.

"The Vortland says:

"'There can be no question that the German commander was aware he was violating Danish neutrality. The incident is simply in accordance with German methods throughout the whole war.'

"The Koebenhaven writes:

"'We received the news with deep pain that fourteen sailors of a friendly nation lost their lives, not even in unequal combat, but without the faintest chance of defending themselves.'

"The Journal Hovedestaven publishes a rumor that one Danish torpedo boat had a man wounded and its wireless damaged by German shells.

"The entire press commends the government's action in promptly protesting to Berlin, and assures the government that it will receive the support of the whole nation in whatever action is taken

"The Admiralty has ordered that the patrol ships around Copenhagen be increased. A German Zeppelin this morning reconnoitered over the water southeast of Copenhagen and photographed the wreck of the E-13."

Opening of the Dardanelles may be an Event of the Near Future as a Result of the Recent Operations at Suvla Bay—Moslems are Reported to Have been Caught off Guard—Fierce Battle Chronicled.

BY LOUIS EDGAR BROWNE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MUDROS (near eastern base of allies) Aug. 20 (via Athens, Greece, Aug. 21.)—Through a bold stroke the British army has dealt the Turks a humiliating and disastrous reverse, resulting in the capture and destruction of main lines of communication between Constantinople and the forces defending the Gallipoli Peninsula, thus entirely cutting off the ammunition and food supply which had moved down the peninsula from the base to the army in the field. This strategic success, it is calculated by the allies, will offset the effect upon the Balkan political situation of the fall of Warsaw.

PREDICT SURRENDER.

The demoralization and surrender of the Turkish army defending Gallipoli Peninsula are predicted for the near future. The opening of the Dardanelles and the eventual fall of Constantinople are now said to be inevitable.

The results were brought about by a gigantic ruse. Huge and heavily equipped forces were concentrated by the British and French on various island bases near the Asia Minor seacoast. The allies made a great display, indicating an intention to invade Asia Minor. Thereupon the Turks threw every resource into the defense of the seacoast of the Asiatic provinces. After they had thoroughly fortified the coast warships of the allies made several violent demonstrations against the newly-constructed works. The Turks rushed every available man to the defense of Smyrna, Adramyti and Asiatic cities.

Suddenly during the night of gust 13 thousands of troops at dozen bases embarked on destroyers and trawlers hastily to an unknown Great secrecy was maintained even many of the staff officers ignorant of the objective. The learning that the British army moving, prepared to give it a tion at any point along the coast of Asia Minor.

Like a thunderbolt the vaded Gallipoli Peninsula Bay, where the Turks were unprepared for an assault. the night an immense fleet in the gulf of Saros from of the compass. There were of transports, destroyers, trawlers bristling with soldiers, who were brimming cheerfulness and trembling eagerness.

The huge expeditionary of the largest ever launched heart of an enemy's country flung against the Turks at where they least expected landing was orderly, scientific unopposed and it was followed rapid advance to a position miles inland which was fortified.

SURROUNDED AND B

This move entirely enemy's lines of communication the result that 100,000 what is left of the seven army defending the peninsula are surrounded and virtually The enemy's retreat is now ble. Entirely cut off from must either fight to the surrender.

It is now a question of the Turks can subsist on the plies they have. It will be impossibility for them to get for their daily needs British command both land communications.

MISS STRACHAN SCORES "FOES."

Declares She was Defeated Because a Catholic.

Declares Ella Flagg Young Led the Opposition.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—Miss Strachan signed a statement this afternoon charging that she had been defeated because of her Catholic belief. She said Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of the Chicago public schools, had worked against her on the grounds that the Catholic church was opposed to the teaching of sex hygiene in the schools.

"Another story was that I turned over to parochial schools 5 per cent. of the money to increase teachers' salaries."

To this Miss Strachan replied that teachers all were paid by check.

"Another story circulated against me was that I had sought legislation which would militate against public schools and favor parochial schools."

This also she denied and offered proof of its untruthfulness.

"We have incontrovertible proof that I was made the subject of most outrageous attacks and most unworthy tactics," the statement says:

"From every quarter and side I heard of the dissemination of most ingenious, ingenuous and pitiful lies.

"Mrs. Ella Flagg Young of Chicago wrote, in reply to a letter from Miss Katherine D. Blake of New York:

"'When in Springfield I met a number of schoolmasters. Strange objections came up that in California, as well as in Chicago at present, there was a decided bias against Catholics. To my great surprise the men said that it was not the day for a Catholic to come forward in California, which would cast the majority of votes.'

"I came to California and presented my candidacy in the firm belief that I would be accorded at least fair play. But I soon had a rude awakening.

"It is not only sad to find that in this, the twentieth century, there still remains so much of the jealousy, the intolerance, the injustice of the Middle Ages, but it is discouraging to find that an association supposed to include the leading educators and mentors of the children of our country, and to express the best, most liberal, most progressive ideas, there are many who are so narrow, or so incredulous, or both, as to believe and to be influenced by such stories as the following:

"Ella Flagg Young said to a group of California women that Miss Strachan's church was opposed to the teaching of sex hygiene. To this I submit that the National Educational Association has taken no stand on the teaching of sex hygiene and that no church has taken any stand."

SCORES ASSOCIATION.

"I have no regard for the National Educational Association," said Miss Strachan, in commenting upon her action. "I have sent in my resignation and it should be in the hands of the secretary by this time."

Delegates to the conventions discussed the question of whether Miss Strachan's action forecasts a split in the association.

It is stated that for days before the election Miss Strachan had threatened to resign unless she were elected to the presidency.

At a stormy session Miss Strachan vainly sought to address the delegates just before the election. She forced the question to a ballot and was defeated by a vote of 479 to 184, Dr. David Bancroft Johnson, president of the Winthrop Normal and Industrial College of Rock Hill, South Carolina, being elected president.

In a letter to C. N. Plummer, chairman of the conference on School Administration Congress, Miss Strachan said:

"I beg you to believe that the election of one other than myself to the presidency of the National Educational Association would not of itself cause me to resign as a member of the association, but the intolerance evidenced in the campaign against me makes it impossible for me, as one who believes that education is all-embracing, as God's justice, to participate longer in its activities."

MISS STRACHAN OUT.

Through her refusal to further participate in the business of the present convention, Miss Strachan automatically loses active membership in the body according to D. W. Springer, the secretary.

Springer said today: "Miss Strachan is no longer an active member of the organization. The resignation, however, will be presented to the Executive Committee, which will hold its final meeting in October.

"This action is unprecedented in the history of the National Education Association. No such action has ever before been taken by a member of the organization and Miss Strachan's action is generally regretted."

DELEGATES SIGHTSEEING.

Delegates spent today in sightseeing at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Incidentally they broke the exposition record in bronze commemorative tablets, twenty-four of the testimonials being presented to the association and its subsidiaries. Twelve given in one day was the previous record.

During a reception held in the California Building, C. C. Moore, president of the exposition, tendered the official testimonial to the retiring president of the association, David Starr Jordan, chancellor of Stanford University, who delivered an address of acceptance.

Various informal receptions were held in the different State buildings, and it was estimated that 2400 teachers were present on the exposition grounds.

Tomorrow will be educational Sunday in the churches of San Francisco and Oakland, and the sermons will be based upon educational methods.

CASHIER MEN GUILTY.

Six Officers and Salesmen Convicted of Conspiring to Use Mails Fraudulently at Portland, Or.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Aug. 21.—After being out twenty-one hours the jury in the case of the United States Cashier Company returned a verdict of guilty in the United States District Court here today against the six officers and salesmen. A recommendation for clemency was made for Oscar Campbell of Eugene, a director. The defendants were charged with conspiring to use the mails fraudulently in the sale of stock.

The others found guilty were Frank Menefee of Portland and Minneapolis, president; F. M. Le Monn, Sales manager; R. E. Bonnewell, H. M. Todd, salesmen, and O. E. Gernert, assistant sales manager. An instructed verdict of not guilty was brought in for Thomas Bilyen, director and inventor of the various coin devices, for the exploitation of which the company was organized.

The maximum sentence is two years in the penitentiary and a fine of $10,000, but before sentence is passed the defendants have ten days in which to file motions for a new trial and six months in which to appeal.

The company was placed in the hands of a receiver eighteen months ago and its holdings disposed of. The government charged that the defendants, knowing that the stock was not what it was represented to be, had obtained from hundreds of purchasers in various parts of the country approximately $1,500,000.

Of the six men convicted in the United States Cashier case, three reside out of Oregon, Le Monn being from Los Angeles, Garnett from Seattle, and Todd from Billings, Mont. Menefee has made his residence at both Portland and Minneapolis, Bonnewell resides in Portland, while Campbell lives in Eugene, Or. Bilyen, who received a directed verdict of not guilty, lives at Hillsboro, Or.

RUEF PAROLED FROM PRISON.

WILL PROBABLY LEAVE THE PENITENTIARY TOMORROW.

Will Spend Ninety Days on His Ranch in Mendocino County in Order to Escape the Charge of Being Interested in the Municipal Election in San Francisco.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., Aug. 21.—Abraham Ruef, once a power in San Francisco politics, was paroled today from San Quentin penitentiary by the State Board of Prison directors.

Ruef's parole provides that he shall go to Mendocino county, where he has a ranch and remain there ninety days. Ruef requested this condition be made so that he might not be charged with renewing activity in San Francisco politics where a municipal election campaign is under way.

Ruef probably will not leave San Quentin until Monday because of delay in making out necessary papers.

Ruef has spent four years, five months and fifteen days behind prison walls. He was sentenced March 7, 1911, to serve fourteen years imprisonment for having offered a bribe to Supervisor J. J. Furey, of San Francisco. His conviction was one of the results of the San Francisco graft prosecution.

With full credits and good behavior his fourteen year sentence was automatically reduced to eight years and ten months. He has served half of this, the minimum requisite for parole. But in addition to his prison term Ruef spent three years in the San Francisco county jail after his first indictment in November, 1906, upon a charge of extortion which was quashed.

Since his incarceration Ruef's aged father has died.

Attorney at Oakland Receives Missive From Victim of Mob Written Two Days Before His Death.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OAKLAND, Aug. 21.—A letter from Leo M. Frank, written two days before he was taken from the State prison farm at Milledgeville, Ga., and lynched by a mob, was received here today by Benjamin F. Wulff, an attorney and a lifelong friend of Frank.

The letter, which was sent from the prison farm and dated August 14, said:

"My Dear Friend: Just a few words of appreciation for your letter of July 28. I am very thankful to an all-wise God that I am able to write to you after having been so near death. Surely I must have been spared to see the day when that honor which is justly mine now shall be meted out to me. The wound in my neck will be entirely healed within a few days. I am still weak from initial loss of blood and am confined to bed. With every good wish in which Mrs. Frank joins, I am sincerely yours,

VERA CRUZ, Aug. 15 (via New Orleans, Aug. 21.)—Foreigners in Vera Cruz have protested to American Consul Canada here against the continued imprisonment of Henry W. Francis, an American newspaper correspondent, arrested August 6, by order of Gen. Carranza.

Francis, a British subject, who is under the protection of the American Consul because of Carranza's refusal to recognize the British Consul here, has been held in a cell since his arrest charged with "rebellion and unconstitutional acts against the government." An official explained that the charge was based on information that Francis had published in the United States news reports unfavorable to Carranza.

Gov. Maytorena added that his State government had recognized the authority of the convention of Aguascalientes, but that he did not believe his acceptance of the plan of the Pan-American conferees would interfere with the platform of that convention.

Cowdray Gets Land Near del Llano Gusher.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TAMPICO (Mex.) Aug. 20.—Several of the larger foreign oil operators, as well as quite a number of the smaller concerns, are demonstrating their belief in the future potentialities of the Gulf Coast oil region of Mexico by making investments in lands which are situated in or adjacent to the proven districts. Many of the native land owners have suffered such financial losses as a result of the long period of revolution that they are willing to sell their properties at a great sacrifice and, notwithstanding the troublesome times and general industrial inactivity which the country is experiencing, American bargain hunters are scattered over the country, picking up landed estates at cheap prices. The representatives of some of the larger British oil producers are pursuing the same policy.

Among the latest transactions noted here was the sale of approximately 200,000 acres of land, situated in the Panuco field, about thirty miles above Tampico, to White & Sinclair, oil men of Tulsa, Okla. The consideration was about $1,000,000 gold, it is stated. It is planned by the purchasers to begin the oil development of the property as soon as peaceful conditions are restored in Mexico.

That the restoration of peaceful conditions in Mexico will also quickly bring about wonderful development operations on the part of the different larger oil companies is indicated by the activity with which they are enlarging their holdings. Perhaps the most notable instance of this kind is that of the Dutch-Shell Transport and Trading Company of London, England, which has quietly added to its possessions in the proven oil producing area of the gulf coast region until it now owns in fee simple approximately 1,000,000 acres. It is getting its affairs in shape to carry on exploitation operations on an enormous scale. Its present available production of about 10,000 barrels per day is but an infinitesimal part of what the big property may be made to bring forth.

LORD COWDRAY, TOO.

The Lord Cowdray interests, operating under the names of the Aguila Oil Company and S. Pearson & Son, Ltd., have recently taken some large leases on oil land in the vicinity of Potreto del Llano, where the world's largest producing well is situated. It is reported, in this connection, that the Cowdray interests have placed an order for machinery for doubling the capacity of their refinery at Minatitlan, on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. Despite the revolutionary disturbances the Minatitlan plant has been running uninterruptedly right along.

The Penn-Mex Petroleum Company, the Texas Company, the Mexican Petroleum Company and a number of other operators have added to their landed holdings in the Tampico territory during the last several months.

The Pierce Oil Corporation, which owns a large refinery here, is placing itself in position to obtain its oil supply from its own wells. It owns a large tract of land in producing territory and will begin development work when the affairs of the country arrive at a more stable condition, it is stated.

SAN BERNARDINO MAN ROUGHLY HANDLED BY NEGROES IN KANSAS CITY.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 21.—S. L. Gantner, a tailor of San Bernardino, Cal., was robbed of diamonds valued at $925, and a pocketbook containing $140 this afternoon in a negro house.

"I was going to Chicago," Gantner told the police. "I stopped here between trains and went down on Independence avenue to get to a restaurant. When I left I had not walked far when I met some negro women and asked them the direction to the union station. They told me and at the same time grabbed hold of me and with the assistance of a negro man, dragged me into their house. I fought, but it did no good and finally, when they had taken my diamonds and money, they threw me out in the street."

Neither the money or diamonds was recovered.

DIVORCED IN LOS ANGELES.

Former Wife of an Auto Dealer Correspondent in a Suit for Legal Separation in Chicago.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Anna Weber filed suit for divorce today naming Vera Fife. She avers her husband has an income of $100 a week, which he spends on other women. She says that Miss Fife formerly was Mrs. James Abell, wife of an auto dealer of Los Angeles, Cal. She was divorced from him a little over a year ago. A recent auto ride during which Miss Fife, whose companion was Arthur R. Weber, a dealer in automobile supplies, was arrested for speeding, led to the divorce.

SUFFOCATING FUMES FROM EXPLODED TORPEDO.

More Details About the Fatal Attack on the Arabic. "We are Done, Boys; They Have Got Us this Time!" Exclamation of the Captain—An American Authority for the Rumor of a Convoy.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON Aug. 21.—The British government today authorized the statement that the steamship Arabic was not being convoyed when she was torpedoed by a German submarine.

The following statement was given out at the offices of the White Star line:

"We are in a position to state that the following passengers reported missing did not embark on the Arabic:

"Maurice Davis, Mrs. Fisher and Mr. Sand."

An amended list of passengers lost on the Arabic gives a total of sixteen, which, with the forty members of the crew who were lost, places the number of dead as fifty-six.

Dr. Ermund F. Woods and Mrs. Josephine S. Bruguiere are the only Americans in the list of passengers.

The other passengers whose names do not appear in the list of survivors, and are believed to have perished, were all British subjects. The cabin passengers were:

MISS MARY ENGLISH.
MRS. MARY EATON.
MRS. NEGUS.
W. G. RANDALL.
MRS. W. G. RANDALL.
MRS. FRANK TATTERSALL.
MISS IRENE TATTERSALL.
MRS. JOHN H. NEAVE.

NO WARNING GIVEN.

Numbers of survivors of the Arabic have reached Liverpool and London and all those who have been seen confirm Capt. Finch's assertion that no warning was given by the submarine, and that the frothy streak made by the oncoming torpedo was the first intimation of the impending disaster.

"We're done, boys; they've got us this time!" Capt. Finch shouted to his officers on the bridge, and the next minute, according to survivors, the torpedo struck the vessel and tore her side and bottom out.

The fumes of the explosion were suffocating, survivors said, and a great column of water rose high in the air and descended on the deck with a roar. Strong men were knocked down and washed overboard, passengers declared, and two women were left dead on the deck.

All the survivors paid tribute to the wonderful work of the officers and crew in saving so many persons in ten minutes' time.

AS TO A CONVOY.

The only hint heard here that the Arabic was under convoy, came from an American and has been contradicted by the categorical denial of the British government that the Arabic was being convoyed when she was torpedoed. Numerous passengers also have attested to the fact that the steamer's boats rowed about for two or three hours before they were picked up. As to the other suggestion that the Arabic possibly attempted to ram the submarine, Capt. Finch's statement is to the contrary.

All agree that the submarine was not sighted before the torpedo was fired. The Arabic, instead of trying to escape, had been slowed down for the purpose of ascertaining whether assistance could be given to the steamer Dunsley, previously torpedoed.

British officials scout the idea that the Arabic was attempting to ram the submarine. They say that by doing so Capt. Finch would have been almost certain to strike the Dunsley and wreck his own ship.

SEEK CARELESS DRIVER.

Upland Man Believed to Be One Who Caused an Auto Wreck Near Tustin.

SANTA ANA, Aug. 21.—Wires were kept working today in an effort to catch a Buick automobile that caused the wreck of a Cadillac two miles southeast of Tustin this morning at 8:30 o'clock. A. B. Chase and R. E. Reid, brothers-in-law, were traveling the State Highway on their way home to Escondido when a Buick in which a man and woman were riding came up behind and passed them. The Buick struck the Cadillac, smashed a front wheel and caused it to plunge front down into a ditch.

Chase and Reid were thrown out. Reid has one hip severely bruised and wrenched. The two men called to the driver of the Buick to stop, but the driver put on speed.

D. B. Horton, a pump man, who was on the road, got the number of the fleeing machine as 125,555, which in the Motor Vehicle Department reports belongs to Glenn Busby of Upland. A warrant was issued for Busby on a charge of violating the rule for passing automobiles. No arrest has been made.

VETERANS SURPRISED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 21.—It has not been determined whether the joke is on three veterans or Mrs. C. M. Browne of Redding, who is a summer visitor here. This afternoon she was driving her automobile along Ocean avenue, and when passing Utah street the trio of veterans hailed her, saying, "Soldiers' Home," in an inquiring tone of voice. Before she could make reply they had piled into the rear seat. Mrs. Browne was game, and, being accompanied by her son, she thought to carry the joke to its conclusion and speeded away to the Home. Arriving there, the gray and grizzled trio dug up their dimes, and when they sought to hand them to her were politely informed that they had not ridden in an auto bus. Apologies were profuse and all had a good laugh. The quintette is still trying to figure out who was the victim of the joke.

"I am thoroughly satisfied with Pahvant Valley"

Western Securities Co.,
711 Hollingsworth Bldg.,
Los Angeles, Calif.
Gentlemen:

I came to Pahvant Valley one year ago from Nebraska, where I was engaged in farming. I bought 80 acres and I want to say that I am thoroughly satisfied. This is a mighty good country for any farmer. I much prefer it to Nebraska or other farming sections of the Middle West. A man can become independent here, if he has a little something to start with and is willing to work. This land will certainly increase in value. I intend to specialize in sugar beets, for which this is a great country. The soil is rich and the water is cheap. There is money in hogs, alfalfa, sugar beets and grain. The company has treated me fine. I am glad to recommend this land to all farmers who want to succeed.

(Signed) HENRY FREESE.

STATE OF UTAH,
County of Millard, ss.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 6th day of July, 1915.
JEROME TRACY, Notary Public.

Pahvant Valley is on the main line of the Salt Lake Railroad in Southwestern Utah—under $1,000,000 irrigation system. Estimated annual cost of maintenance from forty to fifty cents per acre.

$70 Per Acre for Land and Perpetual (Gravity) Water Right — $25 — An Acre Down. Balance in 10 Years.

Why not go to Pahvant Valley and talk direct to Henry Freese and scores of other Pahvant Valley ranchers whose sworn statements you've been reading? Go and ask S. H. Thompson why he prefers Pahvant Valley to Southern California. Ask Ludwig Vollhard why he values his land at $200 an acre. Ask Hy Sherer how his net worth increased from $1100 to nearly $10,000 in three years. Ask Fred Rock about the best money-making hog country in the West. Ask F. E. Belston about wheat on his land that ran 72 pounds to the bushel. Ask George Meinhardt about Pahvant Valley sugar beets. Ask S. W. Western about profits in alfalfa seed. Ask all of them about the $1,000,000 gravity irrigation system—the low cost of water—the healthful climate, transportation facilities, high-priced markets. Go and see why this land sells on sight. Our booklet will be sent upon request. Special excursions at low homeseekers' rates from Los Angeles.

MANY PERSONS MAROONED BY FLOOD IN ARKANSAS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LITTLE ROCK (Ark.) Aug. 21.—Reports received tonight from towns in upper reaches of the White River in Northern Arkansas indicate that the flood situation there has become serious. A steamboat was sent out late this afternoon from Batesville to the oil trough bottoms, where it is reported that many people are marooned in their homes by the rapidly-rising flood waters.

The drowning of C. S. Jordan, an aged ferryman, is reported from Heber Springs. A large portion of the lower section of Batesville is under water.

Traffic on the Missouri and North Arkansas Railroad is suspended except between Harrison and Eureka Springs. A portion of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad running through North Arkansas also is tied up by washouts.

HEAVY LOSSES TO AUSTRIANS.

Italian Government Will Confiscate Many Estates Belonging to Emperor Francis Joseph's Family.

[New York World:] The old Emperor of Austria-Hungary has become enshrined in the hearts of his people during the nine months of war to such an extent that now, when Italy has gone to war against the dual-monarchy, all the Slav population and a large part of the Italian-speaking subjects of the empire signified their allegiance to him in this new struggle. The wealthy Italian merchants of Trieste and Trent have grown rich through the measures taken by the Austrian government to foster their commerce; they see ruin in an Italian conquest and naturally do not welcome it. The Slavs of the dual-monarchy, on the other hand, especially those of Austrian Poland, have always had better treatment from Francis Joseph than from any other monarch. He has given them a share of Cabinet honors and welcomed them at court.

The Emperor's attitude toward his subjects has, since the beginning of the war, been one of affectionate solicitude, and the sacrifices which all the members of the imperial family have made for the nation during this period have been of the utmost service to him, as well as to the government. From the daughters of the sovereign down to the last Archduke and Archduchess, the imperial family have developed an astonishing democracy, have thoroughly identified themselves with the people in all parts of the empire and have gone about among them personally to minister to their wants.

War with Italy will bring large financial losses to several of the archdukes and archduchesses, who have private estates in that country, inherited from the centuries of Austrian rule. When Italy became united in 1860 under Victor Emmanuel II, Austrian sovereignty in Sardinia, Parma, Modena, Naples, Venice, etc., was abrogated. But the private estates of Austrial royalty were not confiscated. These will now, in all probably, be seized by the Italians.

The heir presumptive, the young Archduke Charles Francis Joseph, will suffer to the tune of something like $16,000,000 from the Italian estate of the last Duke of Modena, who died in 1875, having lost his Italian sovereignity in 1860. He bequeathed the revenues from his private estate in Modena to the heir of the Austro-Hungarian throne, with the proviso that if Italy and Austria ever went to war, the entire estate was to be turned into money and the capital used as a war fund against the enemy. But the enemy will hardly let the matter rest there, choosing rather to get hold of the property and use its revenue to swell the Italian war chest.

The wife of the heir presumptive, formerly Princess Zita of Parma, was born in Italy at the Villa Pianore, near Viareggio, her father's estate, and her mother, the Duchess of Parma, has made it her favorite residence. It will certainly be sequested by the Italian government, if not finally confiscated.

The Duke of Parma's French estate, Chambord ,has already been seized by the French government. It is the most magnificent old castle in France, containing 365 rooms and a double spiral staircase so enormously wide that two regiments of soldiers can actually march up and down at the same time without inconvenience. The Parma branch of the Bourbons inherited it through relationship with Louis XVI, and Marie Antoinette, inheriting also the private fortune of the guillotined French King and Queen. Thirty-five or forty million dollars that fortune represents today. Mary Antoinette placed it out of France where it would be safe from the revolutionists, and the Bourbon Parma family put it in Austrian guardianship. So Princess Zita will have something, whatever may happen to her father's landed estates.

FIFTY MILLIONS DAMAGE LAID TO TEXAS STORM.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

GALVESTON (Tex.) Aug. 21.—A total of 256 known dead, residents of Southeast Texas coast points and crews of wrecked craft of all kinds; sixty-five persons missing, many of whom are believed to have perished, and property damage close to $50,000,000 was the toll taken by the hurricane which swept this section last Monday and Tuesday.

These figures were reached from a careful compilation made tonight of what are considered the most authentic reports of loss of life and property received since the cessation of the storm.

Of the known dead, 194 were residents of the gulf coast section and sixty-two were drowned when the vessels they were aboard sank. Forty-three of the missing were members of boat crews. Those who perished on Galveston Island, including those in the city proper, numbered fifty-three and ten were still reported missing from the island. Galveston's share of the property loss was placed at approximately $6,000,000.

Reports received here from all over the affected section were that the cities and towns gradually are recovering from the disastrous storm and that conditions again are approaching normal.

In Galveston tonight officials were hopeful that the serious problem of an adequate water supply for the city would be solved within a few days.

Measures May be Taken to Relieve any Abnormal Pressure on Market.

Manifesto Issued in London and Concurred in by France Becomes Effective from Yesterday — Formal Proclamation is Signed by King George—May be the Means of Stopping Hostilities.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Cotton has been declared absolute contraband by Great Britain, according to a statement issued by the Foreign Office this afternoon.

The statement declares that the government proposes to initiate measures to relieve depression which might temporarily disturb the cotton market because of the contraband order.

It was learned upon inquiry at the Foreign Office that the French government will issue a similar notice early tomorrow.

The announcement follows:

"His Majesty's government has declared cotton absolute contraband. Although the circumstances might have justified such action at an earlier period, His Majesty's government is glad to think that local conditions of American interests likely to be affected are more favorable for such a step than they were a year ago, and moreover His Majesty's government contemplates initiation of measures to relieve as far as possible any abnormal depression which might temporarily disturb market conditions."

The declaration making cotton contraband is effective from today. A royal proclamation concerning the subject was published in a supplement of the London Gazette issued tonight. It is very brief. After a preamble citing previous proclamations concerning contraband, it says:

"Now, therefore, we do hereby declare by and with the advice of our Privy Council that during the continuance of the war, or until we do give further public notice, the following articles will be treated as absolute contraband, in addition to those set out in our royal proclamations aforementioned:

"Raw cotton, cotton linters, cotton waste and cotton yarn.

"And we do hereby further declare that this, our royal proclamation, shall take effect from the date of its publication in the London Gazette."

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 1.—The attempt by England to prevent cotton of the 1914 crop from entering Germany was a disastrous failure. Because England kept her own mills open and failed to keep from her enemies the raw material for high explosives, the cotton growers of the Southern States were saved from the ruin which seemed to threaten them after war broke out. At present England is preparing to make cotton absolute contraband and to take such measures against Holland and the other neutral North Sea countries as will prevent one metric ton of raw cotton from entering Germany next winter and spring. Last winter and last spring at least 500,000 metric tons of raw cotton were imported by Germany.

This article contains material compiled in England, where the campaign against cotton is being planned; in Germany, where the vital need for cotton as the equivalent in modern war of gunpowder in former struggles is frankly admitted; in Holland, through which in devious ways has trickled much of the precious commodity, now worth more to the Central European empires than copper or wheat, or even gold.

The situation from the point of view of England will be considered first, because I must emphasize what is perfectly clear in London, but probably imperfectly understood across the water, that the amount of consideration, and consideration in this case means hard cash, received by the South for the 1915 cotton crop depends entirely on the attitude in the immediate future of the United States towards the English embargo.

BRITISH LION IS CAUTIOUS.

The old British lion is proceeding most cautiously, with one eye stealthily fixed on Uncle Sam. This lion regards Uncle Sam as the lion in the circus looks upon the gentleman in tights with the big whip and the revolver. The whip is Uncle Sam's control of the export of war munitions, vital to the success of the allies. The revolver is the American navy. The lion is desperately afraid of the whip. He is not exactly afraid of the revolver, because he knows that will never be used unless he himself forces it to go—but, still, he knows the revolver is there. Uncle Sam sometimes has doubts about whether the revolver would go off, but the lion in the last extremity would do anything at all rather than risk that weapon being fired at him simultaneously with the other one held by Kaiser Wilhelm.

England will make whatever concessions to the United States cotton growers she is forced to make. I have been told privately that the government has already decided to pay any sum necessary to quiet the American producers when the real embargo on the 1915 crop, to which the embargo on the 1914 crop was a joke, comes into effect. But England will pay no more than she has to pay, and that is why it behooves the South to howl, loud and long. If Washington heeds the howl, it will be heeded in London. The extreme length to which England will go next winter, in my opinion, will be to pay about $150,000,000 for the cotton which, under normal conditions, would be imported by Germany and Austria, and agree to keep that cotton stored until after the war so that the normal purchases of British manufacturers from America will not be affected by the deal. But before such a sum is paid over, the very heavens will resound with appeals from John Bull to hands-across-the-sea, blood-is-thicker-than-water friendship, and with groans and

WILL KILL COTTON TRADE.

Shortly after Parliament reconvenes in September cotton will be made absolute contraband, according to present intentions. In connection with the restriction of trade between neutrals enforced by the order in council of last March, this contraband ruling will kill the cotton trade with the North Sea neutrals. Under present conditions, cotton seized on the high seas and taken to port is paid for by the British, but when it becomes absolute contraband it will be liable to confiscation, and so will the ship carrying it, if the views of the [illegible] prevail. This will apply to all cotton destined for Holland or Scandinavia, excepting the "rations" of those countries which Lord Robert Cecil announced are under consideration, allowances based on their consumption of cotton before the war. The [illegible] of the confiscation of ships carrying other cotton will prevent the ships from leaving port, it is hoped.

What is England's justification for this amazing programme, which ignores the rights of the United States and of other neutral countries with whom she is extremely anxious to maintain good relations, and whose military aid she hopes to gain before the war is over?

Simply this: The continued importation of American cotton, in England's opinion, will enable Germany to win the war, or to greatly prolong it; the complete stoppage of the cotton trade will force Germany to her knees within a year. England is planning an act which is as illegal, if not as immoral, as the German invasion of Belgium, and the reason for the two offenses is the same: "Necessity knows no law." Germany may have been wrong about the necessity of invading Belgium; England may be wrong about the necessity of stopping the cotton trade; it matters not the slightest, so long as each country is convinced that the necessity exists.

FACTS IN SITUATION.

The facts of the cotton question as it affects the result of the war will now be presented. They have been obtained from official or semiofficial sources. My authority for the most controversial statements I am about to make, those concerning the amount of cotton in German ammunition, is Hilaire Belloc, the foremost military critic in England, and, perhaps in Europe.

This is a war of high explosives, in which gunpowder plays a minor role. The substitute for gunpowder is cotton. Cotton is the base of nearly all the explosive compounds which send forth shells and bullets from modern weapons. Cotton, to become high explosive, must be nitrated; that is, treated with chemicals. All the chemicals, out of which high explosives are made, can be obtained in Germany and Austria, and, if they could not be otherwise manufactured, they could be obtained out of the air by a costly process. Wood pulp, it has been suggested, could be used instead of cotton as the basis for high explosive, but experiments have not been satisfactory, and in any case, to change all the processes for making great quantities of explosives in the midst of a great war, would involve fatal delay and confusion.

The great German 42-centimeter howitzer, which has battered down so many "impregnable" fortresses, shoots away a bale of cotton in two shots. An ordinary field gun of about 6-inch caliber shoots a bale of cotton in about 400 rounds. Heavier cannon expend cotton in proportion.

A machine gun, of which Germany has 100,000 in the trenches, has with it constantly reserve ammunition containing half a bale of cotton, while every company of 300 soldiers carries at all times three bales of cotton in the shape of cartridges. About 80,000 shots from a rifle or machine gun account for one bale of cotton.

PLENTY FOR ALLIES.

Now, from these facts it is possible roughly to calculate the amount of cotton that the Germans and Austrians are shooting away on the battlefields. The cotton used by the allies does not matter, because their supply is unlimited. Two hundred and fifty thousand shells a day on the average are fired by the Germans and Austrians, on all fronts, according to calculations made by David Lloyd George, British Minister of Munitions. Taking big and little cannon together, it may be estimated that 150 shots account for a bale of cotton, and on this basis Germany fires 1660 bales of cotton a day from her artillery alone. This amounts to slightly more than 400 tons. It is not so easy to estimate the millions of cartridges expended daily, but the total cotton fired from machine guns and rifles is not less, and is probably more, than that fired from cannon. So we get a figure of not less than 800 tons of cotton a day shot off by German armies. Hilaire Belloc, who would not be likely to be over-conservative in his estimate, says he thinks 1000 tons would be nearer the mark.

Germany, producing no cotton and having prepared in advance for war, stored a certain reserve to make sure she would not be caught short. But she did not expect a war of a year or more. Her calculations were based on victory within six or eight months. Furthermore, the immense expenditure of shells under the new conditions of trench warfare took Germany, like everybody else, by surprise. She was able, however, to import as much of the 1914 cotton crop as usual, during the past winter and spring, through the surrounding neutral countries. This will be proved later by official statistics. A very large part of the 500,000 tons imported has been used for making explosives, the great German cotton mills, which normally operate 9,800,000 spindles, having curtailed their consumption at first by one-half, and more recently by two-thirds.

About one-half of the cotton imported since the war began has been stored by Germany as an ammunition reserve. She has at present something like a million bales, or 250,000 tons, available. Austria has no reserve of cotton. Supposing Germany to receive no more cotton from now on, she will be unable to make any more of the standard high explosives after those 250,000 tons of cotton are used up. Very recently, probably because the German spy system has reported that England at last is preparing to entirely stop the cotton trade, the German authorities have forbidden the manufacture of all excepting the most necessary cotton goods, and in the manufacture of these have forbidden the use of any but prescribed yarns. These restrictions, the order states, do not apply to firms working "on military contracts."

GERMANY'S RESERVE.

Supposing that the manufacture of cotton for commercial purposes is entirely stopped, the present reserve will enable Germany to make about 150,000 tons of high explosives. This is a high estimate. Not all the cotton Germany has can be used for explosive, for armies must have cotton for clothing, bedding, tents, ground sheets, tarpaulin; even motor cars cannot be run without cotton, used in making rubber tires. Cotton is used in all munition factories in some processes, so that a cotton famine would paralyze a modern army, entirely aside from the scarcity of ammunition it would cause.

Since Germany can make less than 150,000 tons of high explosive, rather than more, out of her present reserve of a million bales, and since from 800 to 1000 tons of cotton are fired away daily on the battle lines, the following facts are true:

The Germanic powers have at present enough cotton to maintain their present ammunition expenditure until January 1, provided they are now using 1000 tons a day at the front.

They cannot keep on fighting at the present rate on their present cotton supply beyond the end of the first week in February, if they are using only 800 tons a day in shell and small-arm fire.

Should the German supply run out entirely, any prices at all would be offered surrounding neutral states for cotton. Those states, with their imports entirely cut off, might be able between them, by using no cotton themselves for commercial purposes, to suppply 50,000 tons to Germany. They could not supply more, for they have already sent into Germany practically all the surplus cotton they have imported from America.

This extra supply of 50,000 tons would prolong Germany's ammunition supply until the latter part of February if she and Austria are shooting off 1000 tons a day; until the end of March, if 800 tons is the correct figure. Here Germany would have come to the end of her rope, excepting insofar as she could prolong her resistance by economizing on shells and bullets, and such economy with the allied supply of projectiles continually increasing would rapidly lead to the destruction of the Teutonic armies.

The mere threat of England to declare cotton contraband has aroused outward indignation and perhaps inward consternation in Germany.

REVENTLOW'S VIEW.

"If England declared cotton to be contraband, it would be a terrible and almost unbearable blow for the populations of neutral countries and their whole economic system. Moreover, Great Britain would take the opportunity to obtain complete control by means of her agents and spies of the trade of these neutral countries, and use the position thus gained for the benefit of British industry and British trade. The measure would be directed not against the military efficiency of Germany, but against the economic independence of the neutral states."

The severe restrictions now placed upon the manufacture of cotton goods have created a new labor problem. About 30,000 men will be put out of work in the Chemnitz district, and negotiations are proceeding between the government authorities and representatives of the textile industry. Public meetings are being arranged all over Saxony, and the local authorities threaten to close such meetings unless the manuscripts of all speeches are submitted in advance for official approval. There is special anxiety in the towel industry of Saxony, and the firms are appealing to the government for leave to use up their existing stocks.

A few figures will show how the 2,000,000 bales of cotton, which reached Germany since the war began were obtained from America. First, a few thousand bales came direct to German ports. Before the British Order in Council, forbidding all trade with the enemy, half a dozen Yankee ships braved the mines and sailed into Bremen or Hamburg. But there were too many mines to make this voyage profitable, for after a couple of disasters insurance rates mounted sky-high; and then came the British blockade. Direct importation of cotton from the United States has not taken place since war began in sufficient amount to be worth attention, and since March 11 not one American cotton ship has reached Germany.

There remain the four neutral states, Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, who have access to Germany, either directly or across the Baltic Sea, under the protection of German warships. Italy, long before she declared war, refused to permit the passage of cotton to her future enemies.

IMPORTS TO NEUTRALS.

Here are official figures of the four North Sea neutrals which tell an amazing story. The imports of American cotton to Holland from August 31 to April 30, 1913-14 (the 1913 crop) were 32,780 bales. In 1914-15 (the 1914 crop) the imports amounted to 413,820 bales! In the same months Sweden imported 24,930 bales the year before the war, and 735,510 bales in 1914-15! To Denmark, of the 1913 crop no bales at all were sent, but the melancholy Danes "consumed" of last year's crop 65,370 bales. Norway took sixty bales before the war, and her imports rose in a year to 107,400 bales.

Considerably more than half of the cotton Germany has received since the war broke out is accounted for in these figures. But the British claim that even these official reports of the neutral governments are doctored and purposely delayed. Cotton imports, they say, have been even greater than admitted. Lord Emmott, president of the war trade department of the British government, which issues licenses for the export of goods to neutral countries, says that "twice as much cotton entered Holland in March as was shown in the official Dutch figures."

Germany has actually succeeded not only in importing raw cotton for high explosives under the nose of English warships, as the figures given indicate, but she has actually imported cotton yarn from England during the war, out of which to make her indispensable fabrics, so that her precious store of raw cotton, which is potential ammunition, may not be wasted in making mere cloth. This is shown by figures in the Cotton Gazette of Liverpool, organ of the cotton trade in England, which shows that the exports of cotton yarn from England to Norway were 218,700 pounds in June, 1914, and 848,300 pounds in June, 1915; covering the same periods the exports to Holland were 3,200,800 pounds and 4,498,300 pounds respectively; to Denmark, 106,400 pounds and 204,700 pounds, and to Sweden 108,900 pounds and 260,800 pounds.

SUCCESS IN IMPORTING.

The success of Germany in importing her usual amount of raw cotton from the 1914 American crop was not due to England's lack of knowledge of what was going on, but to England's fear of getting in trouble with America if she took more radical measures to stop the traffic. In October last an effort was made to prevent Holland from selling cotton to Germany by forming The Netherlands Overseas Trust. This organization of influential and wealthy Dutchmen guaranteed that no goods imported in their name would reach the Germans. No cotton was allowed to go into Holland from that time forth unless it was consigned to and accepted by this trust.

The Netherlands Overseas Trust and their guarantees are jokes. Everybody in Holland has long known this, and the British know it now. The figures I have given prove it, for the cotton sent into Holland since the war began, thirteen times Holland's normal consumption according to her own figures, and twenty-five times as much according to the British, was all consigned to The Netherlands Overseas Trust, and consequently guaranteed against reshipment. A large consignment of ferro-manganese was recently sent into Holland, consigned to the overseas trust. Ferro-manganese is used only for smelting, and there is not one smelting furnace in The Netherlands.

The figures given in this article will have served their purpose if they make it clear in America why Great Britain considers herself forced to make absolutely certain that no cotton of the crop of 1915 reaches her enemies. When the war began most people, including most officials, did not think it was going to be a long one, and the average Englishman, if he thought about cotton at all, thought that Germany had enough stored up to last her for the duration of the conflict. It was six months before people began to agitate for a cotton embargo that should be really effective. Now they are going to get it.

ENGLAND'S CONCESSION.

England's maximum concession to the United States will be the purchase of that part of the 1915 cotton crop which usually goes to Germany and Austria, with the understanding that no more cotton may be supplied to Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden than those countries used the year before war began, which only amounted to a little more than 60,000 bales. This would cost England about $150,000,000 at 10 cents a pound, the price most generally mentioned. An agreement would be made not to sell the cotton until after the war, so that the gigantic transaction would not affect the market price this year.

Other compensation plans will be suggested. One of them, hinted at in the House of Commons, is to buy from the United States the amount of cotton normally exported to the North Sea neutrals, which, as its sponsor naively suggested, would cost "a very little money," and then prohibit the export of any cotton to neutral countries adjoining Germany.

RUSSIAN TOWN OF BIELSK TAKEN BY THE GERMANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (via London.)—The Germans have captured the Russian town of Bielsk, twenty-five miles south of Bialystok, and have driven the Russians over the Biala River, according to an official announcement given out today by the German army headquarters' staff.

"In the western theater of the war nothing of importance has taken place.

"Eastern theater of the war, army group of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg—In the fighting east of Kovno, 450 prisoners and six machine guns were taken. South of Kovno, the enemy evacuated his position on the Jesia River and is retreating in an easterly direction.

"In the fighting west of Tykocin, the Russians lost 610 prisoners, including five officers and four machine guns.

"The army of Gen. Von Gallwitz took Bielsk and, south of that place, drove the Russians over the Biala.

"The army group of Prince Leopold broke the renewed resistance of the enemy yesterday evening and since early this morning the enemy has been in retreat. More than 1000 prisoners have been taken.

"The army group of Field Marshal Von Mackensen advanced its left wing over the Koterka sector and from the mouth of the Bug to Pulva. The enemy continued to retreat. Near Brest Litovsk and east of Vladova further progress was made."

RUSSIAN CITIES TO ADMIT JEWS.

WILL BE TAKEN IN TEMPORARILY BECAUSE PALE IS OCCUPIED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, Aug. 21. (via London.)—Owing to the occupation by the Germans of a great part of the Pale of Jewish settlements and the inclusion of the remainder in the sphere of military operations, the condition of the Jews is critical. Five hundred thousand Jewish residents have been deported and a probably greater number have taken refuge in the interior provinces where they have no legal rights.

Prince Cherbatoff, the Minister of the Interior, brought the question of their status before the Council of the Empire and that body has decided temporarily to permit Jews to settle in the cities of the empire with the exception of those of Moscow and Petrograd and the suburban residences of Emperor Nicholas.

OAKLAND (Cal.) Aug. 21. — The closing of the Episcopal Synodical meeting was marked today with a testimonial to President Wilson, requesting an amendment to the Federal Constitution as a basis of a Federal marriage and divorce law. In a resolution presented by the Rev. E. P. X. Hickman of Los Angeles, it was set forth that "that for fifty years the Rocky Mountain and Pacific division has furnished more divorces in proportion to population, than any other section; and that whereas people go to and from one State to another to obtain divorce by fraud or marriage by elopement, the Synod should memorialize and request President Wilson to take immediate action. The general convention of Protestant Episcopal churches is also urged to take up this matter. The Synod favored the resolution.

CHARGED WITH PERJURY.

Lawson Juror Whose Affidavit Helped the Union Leader Get a New Trial is Arrested.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TRINIDAD (Col.) Aug. 21.—Grover Hall, a member of the jury which on May 3 convicted John R. Lawson, international board member of the United Mine Workers of America, of first degree murder, today was arrested at Raton, N. M., on the charge of perjury.

Hall's arrest was on an information filed in the District Court here by Atty.-Gen. Fred Farrar. It is based upon an affidavit by Hall, incorporated in Lawson's motion for a new trial, in which Hall swore that he had been coerced by a court bailiff to agree to a verdict of guilty.

Hall's affidavit, which the Attorney General charges was false, was used in a motion for a writ of supersedeas, granted by the Colorado Supreme Court this week. The motion for a new trial previously had been denied by Judge Granby Hillyer, who tried Lawson. The Supreme Court on the same day it granted Lawson's motion for a writ of supersedeas, barred Judge Hillyer from presiding at future trials growing out of the recent strike of Colorado coal miners.

Hall swore he held out for a verdict of acquittal from Saturday night, May 1, until noon on May 3, and that during that time Frank Gooden, the bailiff in charge of the jury, repeatedly told him that his wife was seriously ill. On May 2, he declared, Gooden informed him that Judge Hillyer had ordered that the jury be given no food until a verdict was returned. Then, according to the affidavit, Hall agreed to return a verdict which he claimed he did not think was just.

HOLLAND NEEDS COAL SUPPLY.

Miners are Busy Trying to Get Enough Fuel.

Depend Greatly on Germany During Emergency.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

HOENSBROEK (Province of Limburg, Netherlands). July 31.—The miner's pick and drill were never so deftly wielded since Holland had a history as they are just now. Coal is in great demand. The Dutch mines are poorly developed and produce comparatively little fuel, and it cannot be obtained in sufficient quantities from Germany and Great Britain at present to satisfy the calls of the various industries and public works dependent on it.

The limited production of coal in Holland is said by some to be one of the principal causes of the maintenance by this country of what they describe as friendly neutrality toward Germany. Even now, when a certain amount of coal is still coming in from the neighboring power, the authorities here are encountering difficulties not only in running the railroads, but in supplying fuel for the pumping stations all over the country, whose operations keep The Netherlands from again becoming a swamp.

COAL IN LIMBURG.

Holland has plenty of coal beneath the surface of her most southerly province—Limburg. The fields, however, have never been properly developed and the Dutch are now regretting their lack of foresight in this regard, which, at a time when they feel they would like to be entirely free in their action, has placed them in a condition of dependence on Germany for an article which they need badly.

With these difficulties facing them since the beginning of the war the mine owners have made a brave showing, but they have been still further handicapped by the mobilization of the Dutch army, which took away many of their best men, and by the calling to the colors of German and Belgian pitmen, many of whom had been employed in the mines in the province of Limburg.

Although Holland occupies only very low rank in the coal-producing countries of Europe, its mines are probably the most ancient, their records showing workings near Kerkrade as early as 1113. The pits now owned and worked by the State were for many centuries exploited by monks from the Abbey of Kloosterade, who continued their mining operations until as late as 1795. The pits, now named the Wilhelmina, the Emma and the Hendrik, gave employment to 167 officials and 4332 pitmen, of whom some 500 were called up for service in the Dutch army in August and the following months, while numbers of their German fellow-workmen also had to leave to fight their country's battles. Owing to the lack of experienced miners in Holland, it has become necessary to fill their places with foreigners, many of them Belgians, who fled from their own country after the German invasion.

Besides the State mines there are privately-owned coal fields in Limburg and North Brabant, while borings have been made also in Over-Ijsel and Gelderland. As these altogether produce only about 1,000,000 of the 5,000,000 tons annually required by Holland, the remainder is usually imported from Germany and Great Britain.

The German mines, since the war started, have continued to supply 40 per cent. of their usual annual quantity to the Netherlands, but England has declined to permit the export of steam coal in any large quantity. Manufacturing concerns and municipalities turned to America for supplies, but the freight rates from the United States to Dutch ports were so prohibitive—the minimum reaching $8 per ton more than the rate from Germany—that nobody would buy. Amsterdam alone, for instance, requires 250,000 tons a year to furnish the city with gas, and this would mean an additional outlay of $2,000,000 per annum. The Dutch capital, therefore has cut down its supply of gas, and its street lamps are extinguished early in the night, the example being followed by The Hague, Enschede, Briel and other cities.

Peat enters always largely into the fuel supply of Holland and, in consequence of the shortness of coal, has been more called for than ever. Many private households have resumed the consumption of peat fuel, and its peculiar smell is now encountered everywhere in Holland.

Red Cross Work.

GERMANY OFFERS TO PAY AMERICAN PHYSICIANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Aug. 21, (via London, Aug. 22, 2:48 a.m.)—James W. Gerard, American Ambassador to Germany, announced today that arrangements had nearly been completed whereby a number of American Red Cross physicians and nurses, formerly employed in Germany and Austria will be sent to Russia to investigate the conditions under which German prisoners of war are confined there.

Because of a shortage of funds it had been planned to recall to the United States all the American Red Cross attaches in Europe. The German government immediately suggested that it was willing to pay the salaries and expenses of a corps if, instead of returning home, they would go to Russia and investigate conditions there thoroughly. Ambassador Gerard after securing the sanction of the Red Cross authorities, called for volunteers. Three doctors and eighteen nurses signified their willingness to undertake the proposed work. It is stated that they will be paid by Germany if the American Red Cross Society is unwilling to continue their salaries.

Negotiations are still under way looking to the creation of a similar organization in Russia which would investigate the condition of Russian prisoners in Germany. The members of this corps would be paid by Russia unless the Red Cross Society should bear the expense.

AGGRESSIVE CAMPAIGN FOR TRADE IN CHINA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—An aggressive campaign to secure for American business a share in the development of the enormous resources of China has been planned by the Departments of State and Commerce. The plan contemplates the developments of an American vested interest in China that will insure the United States a fair share of that country's foreign trade and be powerful enough to take care of itself in the complicated political and commercial situation there.

The scheme was developed by Paul S. Reinsch, Minister to China; Julian H. Arnold, commercial attache at Peking, and Dr. E. E. Pratt, chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Mr. Reinsch brought to Washington a programme framed by himself and Mr. Arnold which was submitted to Dr. Pratt, Secretary Lansing and other officials. It was generally indorsed and the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce already has begun work along the lines suggested. Mr. Arnold will return to the United States this winter and tour the country to secure capital for investment in China.

State Department officials have been watching commercial conditions in China since the recent granting of extensive special privileges demanded by Japan. No political steps have been taken to secure concessions or privileges for Americans, however, and the policy of the government has been steadfastly against commercial politics, such as other nations have employed in China. The plan now proposed is expected to develop an international condition there which would be powerful enough to meet the competition of other nations.

Dr. Pratt pointed out today that American capital was piling up as a result of the European war and that vast sums of idle money are available for investment. The bureau expects to take advantage of every opportunity offered in China and to have an American interest strongly intrenched there at the close of the war.

Dr. Pratt issued a summary of the Chinese trade, which stated in part:

"A well-capitalized American bank is necessary to American trade advancement.

"China offers splendid inducements to American capital in mining enterprises, especially in tin, zinc, antimony, lead, coal and iron. Hunan province, the most accessible of the richer mineral areas, is a particularly inviting field for investment.

"China offers splendid inducements to American capital and American machinery in connection with the erection of cotton yarn mills.

"Opportunities for the investment of American capital are offered in the China rug-making industry, for rugs for the American market.

"American capital and expert management applied to tanning Chinese hides with a tannery at Kalgan, Tientsin or Hankow would be a paying venture.

"China imports annually nearly $10,000,000 (gold) worth of aniline and synthetic dyes. A high grade American substitute for the European products could probably secure a great deal of this trade, which is now at a standstill owing to the lack of supplies.

"On account of the war, China offers a splendid field for American window glass of the cheaper grades. Window glass importations in China net several million dollars gold each year and the prices are nearly treble those of a year ago.

"Because of the war China will be obliged to purchase much of her railway materials and machinery, electrical and industrial, from the United States.

"With the favorable exchange which exists at the present time, Chinese products, which previously went to Europe, should find markets in America. Among these are sesamum seed, vegetable-tallow, hides, egg products, mineral products, wood oil, peanuts, bean oil, gall-nuts, etc."

Work along some of these lines already has been begun by agents of the commerce bureau in the United States and several New England business men are now in China closing contracts for the installation of American machinery in cotton mills built under Chinese government supervision. It is expected that the establishment of an American bank in China will be the first big result of the campaign and this proposal is now under consideration by various financial interests.

Port-au-Prince is Scene of a Slight Disturbance.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—One battalion of marines, 350 men, at Annapolis, has been ordered to be prepared to embark for Haiti if Admiral Caperton calls for [illegible] forces. They probably would go on the cruiser Tennessee, now on her way north from Port-au-Prince.

Further trouble with unruly natives inland from Cape Haitien, indicated as a possibility some time ago, is believed to have prompted Admiral Caperton's request that an additional marine battalion be in readiness to join his force. Officials made it plain that he had not definitely asked for reinforcements and the Tennessee will not go to Annapolis unless further requests come from the admiral.

The remnant of the revolutionary army left Cape Haitien after refusing to disarm and with the threat that they would repel the invasion of Haitien soil by armed [illegible] Admiral Caperton wished to have a sufficient force available for duty in the north to control the situation.

A slight disturbance was reported by Admiral Caperton as having taken place at Port-au-Prince last night. The message said quiet prevailed today.

cuted. Under the supervision of the navy half a thousand small boats, launches and pinnaces, bristling like porcupines with fixed bayonets, carried the troops quietly ashore and returned repeatedly for fresh loads. Each man was equipped with an intrenching tool, ammunition and food for three days. Immediately after the landing fifty Turkish outposts surrendered and these were the only soldiers of the enemy seen during the day.

The spectacular bombardment and continuous roar of cannonading, which were a feature of the original landing at Siddel-Bahr, were conspicuously absent this time. Everything was quiet and orderly as if it were a peace maneuver and not a shot was fired until nearly dark. Turkish reports say that 60,000 British troops landed within twenty-four hours.

When half of the force was ashore it was divided into two sections, one marching inland to the south of Salt Lake, now a sunbaked and deeply ditched plain, and the other marching north beyond the lake. The forces deployed through the salt marsh, covering as much ground as possible. The first section moved northeast and the second southeast in attempt to make a junction with Australian and the New Zealand forces north of Gaba Tepe.

Two miles inland the forces halted for a rest. Reconnoissance parties reported that there were no Turks in sight and the troops advanced to make as much ground good as possible before the enemy offered resistance. They covered six miles before nightfall of Saturday. Artillery, mule transports, water wagons, kitchens and hospitals were brought ashore in sufficient quantities for temporary purposes.

Turkish forces were hurriedly mobilized and rushed to oppose the invasion, the first detachments arriving just before sunset. Though hopelessly outnumbered at first, the Turks received reinforcement after reinforcement and then there began the biggest battle that has yet been fought on Gallipoli Peninsula.

PITCHED BATTLES.

All night both sides worked madly on trenches, artillery positions and barbed wire barricades. Scores of small pitched battles occurred. Often Turks appeared behind the British lines, whereupon they were immediately rushed by the infuriated "Tommies" who literally choked them into submission or bayoneted them to death.

Silent bayonet attacks punctuated the night, small parties of Turks charging the troops working on the defenses. The British soldiers dropped intrenching tools and wire cutters, grabbed guns and bayonets, dispatched the enemy and calmly returned to the work of building defenses. Several well-organized bayonet attacks on a large scale were delivered by the Turks.

The battlefield was out of range of the guns of the destroyers and cruisers and the army had to depend entirely upon itself. Artillery exchanges were intermittent, neither side having enough cannon for effective execution.

During Saturday night the Turks mobilized about 70,000 men and at daybreak flung them against various points of the British line. The British made many violent counter-attacks and both sides were supported by considerable artillery. The battle raged all day Sunday in the terrific heat of the Asiatic sun. The Turks had the advantage of fighting on higher ground and of knowing the country.

The battle front twisted and squirmed all day like a huge snake. Because of the ever-changing positions of both forces the only shelters were bowlders, stumps of bushes and ravines. The Turks turned the rugged beds of the winter mountain torrents into almost impregnable trenches.

Turkish sharpshooters were in their glory. Often they were caught far behind the British lines with great heaps of used cartridges at their feet.

During the heat of the battle British pioneers worked to complete the fortifications. This seemed to enrage the Turks, who time after time flung battalions of infantry in bayonet charges upon the trench diggers. The forces often engaged in hand to hand fighting. The men after emptying the magazines used their rifles as clubs. Bombs and hand grenades did great execution in these encounters, and frequently machine guns were turned on the advancing Turks. This always scattered them.

THE DUST ENEMY.

Dust was the greatest hardship. Kicked up by thousands of scurrying feet it disturbed the troops more than did the rifle fire. Shortage of water caused some trouble, but the wounded received excellent attention. Long lines of stretcher bearers carrying wounded continually passed from the front to the field hospitals. A man was hardly wounded before he was picked up and taken to the rear.

Toward night the battle front formed an irregular semicircle centering on Suvla Bay and having a radius of five miles. After dark thousands of British fighters turned to digging trenches and making the position secure. The Turks battered away mightily, hurling onslaught after onslaught on the British, massing forces at one point, then suddenly shifting the attack to another point, but they were unable to move the British back anywhere.

Farther northward, almost under the guns of the big fortress of Bulair, which proved so disastrous to the Bulgars in the Balkan-Turk war, the French made feint attacks. Among the invaders there was a Greek legion composed of Ottoman, Greek and Christian volunteers in the French army. The legion acquitted itself nobly, falling in battle nearly to the last man, for every man gave a wonderful exhibition of daring and patriotism. The French forces later withdrew to ships standing ready to receive them in the Gulf of Saros.

On Monday, the second morning after the landing, the British made a violent right-flank attack, putting the enemy entirely to rout, with terrific loss. The Australian and New Zealand forces, holding the territory to the north of Gaba Tepe, which had been heavily engaged for four days, concentrated simultaneously on the left flank, the attack resulting in the junction and consolidation of the Australians with the British invading force, so that now there is a continuous battle line twelve miles long, twice cutting the main road over which the Turks defending the peninsula received all their supplies.

The British forces hold the villages of Buyak, Hanafart and Turchenkeui, through which the road passed. There is another road, but it is nothing more than a mule path over the mountains.

This is under direct artillery fire, which can sweep the valley of Bokalidepr clear to the waters of the Dardanelles. A battery is continually trained on this road and when anything seeks to pass a salvo of shells is fired and they explode in the center of the road. Every three minutes during the night shells are exploded over the road.

Wounded men described to me the battlefield as a horrible sight. It was littered with bodies, the scattered debris of a great fight, equipment and stores. Corpses were strewn in wild confusion half-buried bodies, heads, hands and legs protruding from hastily-dug graves. There were rifles, bayonets, ammunition belts, cartridges, soldiers' packs, blankets and coats, which had been frantically thrown away in some fierce charge. Half-eaten loaves of bread, now blood-soaked, and canteens and tobacco boxes, which had been abandoned, were everywhere.

One man described the funeral pyres. At intervals there were monster fires with fitful splashes of flame darting out here and there and dense black smoke rolling upward. None ventured near them except the men whose duty it was to throw kerosene on the logs to aid combustion. A sickly stench permeated the atmosphere, forcing upon all the knowledge that dead bodies of Turks were being burned. It was absolutely impossible to mistake the smell of burning flesh. It is imperatively necessary in a tropical climate to remove bodies immediately to prevent disease, when there are not enough available to bury the dead. The British dead were buried in little fenced cemeteries near the shore.

The British having broken the land communications of the Turkish forces, it remains for the navy to destroy the water lines. These have already been disrupted by the British submarines, which control the lower part of the Sea of Marmora and which recently sank 100 sailing boats. There are not enough vessels left to the Turks to transport supplies across the Dardanelles for even 10,000 men. The British submarines are continually waiting to sink the surviving craft. Gunfire on the water communications causes the allies no worry.

GREAT DISTRESS IN ALBANIA.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME, Aug. 21, via Paris.—The people of Albania are suffering from terrible detsitution and lack of sanitary necessities, according to reports seceived in Italy. Dr. Richard P. Strong, director of the American Red Cross sanitary commission, which is operating in Serbia and Albania, has sent a dispatch to Thomas Nelson Page, American Ambassador in Italy, requesting that Mr. Page appeal to the American Red Cross and to the Rockefeller Foundation for food and medicines to combat the great distress in Albania.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AZUSA, Aug. 21.—As a result of short investigation by an engineer sent from San Francisco by the Railroad Commission, the Pacific Light and Power Company, which has hitherto refused to make connections with the city's new transformer station, has been ordered to connect at once.

For some time there has been a difference between the City Council and the Pacific Light and Power Company. The juice corporation has claimed the right to sell power and light within the city at retail rates to which the city officials have taken exception, claiming that the corporation has no franchise permitting them to take this stand.

The supply of power to the Pacific Rock and Gravel Company is the source of the greatest difference and the city insists that the right to sell the power to this concern belongs to it and not to the Pacific Light and Power Company. The contract is a valuable one and seeking to enforce its rights, City Attorney Steele set the matter before the Railroad Commission.

The engineer is looking over the situation and the order given to the Pacific Light and Power Company to connect immediately with the transformer station is the first victory for the city in the contention.

MANY SOLDIERS SEEN IN PARIS.

Given Chance to Visit Families from the Front.

Authorities Put Sudden Stop to Disquieting Rumor.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, July 31.—The boulevards of Paris have come into their own. Thousands of soldiers now mingle with the usual wartime Sunday crowds—soldiers of all arms and in uniforms of all the regulation colors, bringing back some of the joy and animation that disappeared last summer. They are grouped with families and friends on the terraces of all the cafes, they whiz along all the streets in taxi autos or in sumptuous limousines; they crowd the entrances to all the moving picture shows and promenade with the arms of women resting on their faded, stained sleeves, while little tots hang to their bronzed necks or cling to their calloused hands.

They are the popular "poilus" (the hirsute) home from the front. It seemed last Sunday that all the 50,000 that left the trenches Saturday on four days' leave were there.

It is believed these soldiers were returned from the front to check one phase of a systematic propaganda of discouragement that started at the beginning of the war and is still going on. The latest manifestation of it was a flood of anonymous letters to soldiers at the front informing them that, while they were shedding their blood, their wives were leading lesse lives at home. This is supposed to be the reason for the decision of the war department to give four days' leave to the men at the front in contingents of 50,000 at a time, so that they may look into the situation at home on their own account.

ANONYMOUS LETTERS.

The anonymous character of much of the news that circulates gave the fabricators of false news a clear field, the ignorance in which the public is kept concerning the details of the military operations making it impossible for anyone to deny stories that are circulated; it also makes it difficult for the police to reach the culprits, though the secret service did succeed in tracing some of the work of an eccentric millionaire named Prouvost, living at Saint Raphael, who has been convicted by a court-martial and sentenced to prison.

After making a fortune out of insurance Prouvost espoused the anarchist cause, published subversive pamphlets and journals and finally fell into the clutches of the Bonnot band, whose sensational crimes excited Paris two years ago. False news began to circulate behind the lines early in the fall of last year; soldiers in hospitals and at the front received anonymous letters and circulars with significant headlines such as "They are deceiving us." "Germany has made peace overtures that we repulsed," "Our generals have had entire regiments of our soldiers executed."

GLORIFIED GERMANY.

All these documents glorified "great Germany." Names and addresses of soldiers in hospitals, names of refugees advertising for lost relatives, names of women advertising for employment—all these, whose state of mind seemed to make them accessible to depressing news and suggestions, received anonymous letters and circulars. A suspicious circumstance was that those sent to soldiers were postpaid, while most of the correspondence sent to them is postfree. Thousands were distributed by unknown means through the big department stores, slipped by mysterious hands under street doors and into private letter boxes; they were even scattered over the floors of postoffices and the cars of the subway.

It was finally discovered that the subjects treated and the language used were the same as in some proclamations dropped by German aviators upon positions held by troops of the second line of Basseux in November. Finally a woman was detected dropping large packets of letters into letter boxes, and was shadowed. She received letters from St. Raphael in the department of the Var in the name of Herman, her real name being Donnadieu, wife of a well-known anarchist, living with another anarchist named Hureau. All three were arrested and their correspondence was traced to the millionaire Prouvost. Prouvost admitted paying the postage on the letters and circulars, but declared that he had no intention of engaging in a guilty propaganda. Behind Prouvost, Hureau and Madame Donnadieu the police think there was a well-directed system of German espionage.

The Eclair declares that it has traced some of the false news circulated in Paris to naturalized Germans and gives the names of some of them.

THOUSANDS CLAMORING FOR FOOD IN MEXICO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 16 (by courier to Vera Cruz, via New Orleans, Aug. 21.)—Promised relief to the suffering population of Mexico has not yet materialized. When Gen. Gonzales, Carranza's commander, entered the capital he declared he would begin immediately the distribution of 100 carloads of corn, 7500 sacks of flour and large quantities of sugar, lard, coffee and other staples. None of these has been distributed nor has a diligent search located the supplies. Instead, three carloads of corn, sugar and coffee are being sold at alleged exorbitant prices by officers of the forces of Gen. Gonzales in the railway yards in Buena Vista.

Charles J. O'Connor, representative of the American Red Cross, witnessed the sale of these commodities and made a report to Washington. O'Connor has been unable to help the thousands of persons who line up daily in front of the Red Cross headquarters here. One hundred clerks are employed there in classifying all applications for assistance and many volunteers are working so that as soon as supplies are available relief work can be hurried.

WHITE STAR LINER CYMRIC CONVOYED OVER ATLANTIC.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Passengers and crew of the White Star liner Cymric asserted upon their arrival here today that the Cymric had been convoyed for 36 hours after leaving Liverpool, August 11, by relays of British warships, five in number, and that she had not been permitted to sail unaccompanied until the war zone had been left behind. Several passengers said the periscope of a submarine had been seen but the officers of the Cymric declined to discuss this assertion.

The Cymric took virtually the same course as the Arabic, which was sunk Thursday by a German submarine. The Cymric carried 189 passengers of whom 105 were in the steerage.

When the steamer left her dock the high flag pole recently erected at the mouth of the Mersey, where all outgoing vessels could not fail to see it, displayed the warning that German submarines were lurking in nearby waters.

This warning, the passengers said, was in the form of a big black ball hoisted at the top of the pole. It had been agreed among ship owners at Liverpool, it was said, that the black ball was to be the signal of danger when the Admiralty's warning of near-by submarines came to port too late to warn outgoing craft by messenger or telephone.

Before the Cymric was out of the Mersey, sailors provisioned the life boats and swung them outward. The passengers were assembled and assigned their respective places in the boats so that there might be no confusion in emergency.

When clear of Liverpool harbor, the Cymric sighted a small cruiser, formerly a converted yacht, which steamed silently alongside, sometimes approaching as close as 200 yards, tily nearly sunset, when the second relay, a fast vessel of the destroyer type was sighted ahead, apparently awaiting the Cymric's arrival in her zone.

The cruiser dropped behind and the destroyer took her place. That night all lights, except candles, were extinguished and every porthole was blanketed. The passengers slept with life belts at hand.

All next day the convoy was continued. Four destroyers passed the ship from one to another, each warship apparently patrolling a certain zone and acting as the liner's escort through her patrol. The destroyer, according to the Cymric passengers, darted back and forth and around the ship, circling her frequently.

Some time during the night of the 12th the destroyers ceased their solicitude over the liner and dropped behind.

F. V. Springer, of New York, European representative of an American rubber manufacturing company, told of the alleged discovery by British authorities of a plot to poison respirators purchased for use of the troops in the trenches against chlorine gas. The discovery of the plot, he said, resulted in an immediate cancellation of all orders for respirators that had previously been placed.

STRIKES TUNGSTEN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BEAUMONT, Aug. 21.—After fifteen toilsome years, which won for him the sobriquet of "desert rat," P. J. Osdick has returned from the waste places to tell of his lucky strike with a group of seven mining claims rich in tungsten. The property is located five miles from Johannsburg, Cal., and has been leased upon the basis of a 10 per cent. royalty to the owner. Much of the ore from the Osdick mines is yielding from $540 to $600 worth of tungsten to the ton, according to report.

One effect of the European war has been to elevate the price of tungsten, which now sells for as high as $14 a unit—that is twenty pounds. Eleven leases are now being worked on two of Mr. Osdick's claims, and the ground is blocked off in squares of 200 feet each way. Two shifts of men operate the two hoists in taking out the ore, which is shipped to San Francisco.

ORGANIZE ASSOCIATION.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GARDEN GROVE, Aug. 20.—The orange growers of this section have elected a committee, which was empowered to act under the State law and procure articles of incorporation for an organization to be known as the Garden Grove Citrus Association. They will proceed at once to take out the necessary papers. All that remains in order to have a full-fleged association is to adopt by-laws. The committee, which will act as temporary board of directors, is composed of J. O. Arkley (chairman,) J. W. Crill, Milo Allen, W. W. Dungan, Ed Dozier, W. L. Russell and C. A. Westgate.

NICHOLS TROPHY SHOOT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, Aug. 21.—The third of the 100-bird contests for the Los Angeles Athletic Club handicap trapshooting championship and the Nichols trophy was the attraction on the Los Angeles Gun Club grounds this afternoon. The scores were as follows: F. H. Nichols 78, H. P. Densel 78, Harry Cline 74, John Cline 77. The scores in the twenty-five bird contest were: C. H. Richards 17, Harry Cline 18, Frank Young 16. The practice scores were: H. D. Towne 10, John Cline 19, Joseph Amestoy 19, John Cline 19, Amestoy 17, Towne 14.

SWIMMING CARNIVAL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OCEAN PARK, Aug. 21.—The swimming carnival at the bath-house this evening attracted a large number of water fans who took no little pleasure in witnessing the performances of their favorites going through the evolutions. The programme of fifteen events opened at 9 o'clock with a forty-yard race for children under 8, and was followed by fancy swimming plunges for distance, exhibition swimming, diving display by Alleen Allen and her mermaids, back stroke swimming demonstrations, balloon scrambles, cigarette races, swimming with hands and feet tied, life saving demonstration, greased pole novelty stunt and a performance by the Eskimos from the village in their native boats.

Lucid Explanation.

I Will Say

"I always had trouble in my stomach. I took some Peruna. Since then I feel all right. Only two bottles of Peruna were sufficient for my case." So says Mr. W. H. Strauss, 1622 Spruce St., Easton, Pa.

Here is another case of stomach trouble. A mining surveyor. A man fifty-seven years old. He took Peruna for chronic stomach trouble. The result is he says: "I feel that I am good for twenty-five years more." His name and address is: Mr. William Follis, Mayetta, Kas.

Mrs. S. E. Henderson, Pollocksville, N. C., relates: "My trouble seemed mainly with my stomach. I was so bad that my mouth became affected. Gums would bleed every day. I took Peruna according to directions. My trouble all passed away in three months. I will praise Peruna as long as live."

Take Lime for Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (July 27, 1912, Page 308, Dr. C. F. Disen of Minneapolis, holds that a "deficiency of calcium" (lime) is responsible for the physical conditions which lead to tuberculosis and the therapy he advocates rests on this basis."

One of the reasons for the widespread success of Eckman's Alterative in the treatment of tuberculosis is its ability to supply this deficiency. It contains a lime salt in such combination with other valuable agents as to be easily assimilated by the average person. Many cases seem to have yielded to it.

We make no exaggerated claims for it, but prefer that it be tried on the same basis as any other prescription, and since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe. From your druggist or direct

PURSE SNATCHER FIRES AT CROWD.

FIVE BULLETS FROM REVOLVER STOP PURSUIT; NOBODY HIT BY MISSILES.

A score of men and women, several of whom narrowly escaped death from the whining bullets, were thrown into a panic early last evening when a negro purse snatcher they were pursuing in East Twelfth street turned as he was about to enter an alley between Wall street and Maple avenue, and emptied the five chambers of his revolver at the surging mass that followed him.

Fortunately all five shots missed their marks. The crowd pursuing the negro scattered at the fusilade, and before it could resume the chase, the thief had disappeared into the gloom of the alley.

The man-hunt was started when the purse snatcher grabbed the hand-bag of Mrs. C. A. Azling, No. 420 East Pico street, as she crossed Wall street on Pico street. Mrs. Azling screamed and started running after the negro. The thief ran towards Twelfth street. Mrs. Azling's cries aroused persons in the neighborhood, and in a very short time a score of persons joined the chase.

Turning in Twelfth street, the negro dashed towards Maple avenue. Several men darted across Twelfth street to intercept him. Seeing his escape cut off, the negro halted at the alley and pulled his revolver and the shots resulted.

Mrs. Azling declared last night the negro was well dressed. If it were not for the near-tragedy that resulted, the whole affair might have been considered an excellent joke on the purse snatcher, as there was only 10 cents in the hand-bag.

MUST FUMIGATE BOOKS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Aug. 21.—Fred S. Whitcomb, who did notable work on the School Board a number of years ago, has been appointed Monrovia's first sanitary inspector at a salary of $75 a month. The office was created by ordinance only last week and is to make possible the enforcement of the new health ordinance, passed by the Council at its last meeting.

A unique feature of his work is that he will have to daily fumigate all library books returned to the public library by borrowers. Every volume must be disinfected.

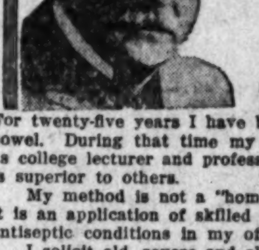
SHOES! SHOES! SHOES!

And My, How Cheap You Can Buy Them Now! The Mammoth Shoe House, 344 South Broadway, Holds Great Sale.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20.—"I never bought such real shoe bargains in all my life," said a woman just leaving the Mammoth Shoe House at 344 So. Broadway. Overhearing this remark, I stepped inside and my! what a sight I beheld. The store was just thronged with customers; the clerks busy as bees, and everywhere were tables and racks of shoes. "It doesn't look like hard times here," I said to a floorwalker standing near me. "No," he replied, "we are glad to say that business with us has been very good. This sale is attracting a great deal of attention."

"How can you sell shoes for so little?" I asked.

He told me in reply that the Mammoth Shoe House policy of quick sales and small profits, combined with the fact of recent immense purchases bought at tremendous reductions made the extremely low prices of the shoes possible. Glancing over the store I could see here a table full of low shoes for women at 50c; another table priced $1.00; men's shoes, and they were dandy ones, too, for $1.95, and children's shoes priced — but what's the use—you might not believe me if I told you, so low are the prices; but when you come down tomorrow I would advise you to stop in at 344 South Broadway.—Advertisement.



I CURE PILES

Fistula and all Rectal Diseases

WITHOUT an OPERATION

By MY PAINLESS DISSOLVENT METHOD

For twenty-five years I have been curing diseases of the rectum and lower bowel. During that time my experience as hospital and railroad surgeon as college lecturer and professor, has enabled me to develop a method that is superior to others.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment," but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic conditions in my office.

I solicit old, severe and obstinate cases of fistula, prolapsus, fissure and ulceration that have heretofore resisted all treatments employed. If you are a sufferer from rectal trouble I invite you to investigate my method thoroughly by talking or writing to any of my cured patients. If you will call at my office I will be pleased to give you the names and addresses of many well-known Los Angeles people I have cured, whom you may interview in regard to my treatment.

Read what a few well-known Southern California people have to say of my method. Many similar letters are on file in my office.

WELL-KNOWN SANTA MONICA MINISTER CURED.

This is to certify that Dr. C. H. White has cured me of a distressing hemorrhoidal ailment of 25 years' duration. His method of treatment is effective, but not severe. He has the appliances, the knowledge and the skill born of many years of specialization in this fruitful source of physical disease. He accomplishes all his claims in his advertising, and at reasonable expense.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPERINTENDENT CURED.

My Dear Mr. White: I am thankful for the privilege of bearing witness to your ability to treat, without pain, and with success, the delicate and disabling diseases which result from sedentary work. To all who need the services of a skillful, sympathetic and experienced specialist in your line, I heartily commend you. Very sincerely yours,

PRESIDENT OF WHITTIER COLLEGE CURED.

For more than ten years I was a sufferer from a painful affliction, which nearly ruined my usefulness as an organizer and teacher. Dr. C. H. TRUCK DRIVER IS HELD TO BLAME.

FOR FATAL ACCIDENT ON ROAD; CORONER'S JURY FREES JITNEY MAN.

As the result of two inquests held yesterday by the Coroner, a truck driver was censured for careless driving at the time of a fatal accident and a jitney driver was freed on the testimony of witnesses, who swore the driver was not making more than fifteen miles an hour when another fatal accident occurred.

The inquests were held over the bodies of Wilfred Herbert Perry, 30 years old, of No. 704 West Thirty-fourth street, and Duncan Cassidy, 33 years old, No. 715 East Fifth street. Mr. Perry was killed when hit by a jitney bus at Vernon and Moneta avenues Friday evening. The jitney, driven by Max Kupcinet of No. 501 East Thirty-ninth street, crushed his spine, extinguishing life almost instantly.

When the Coroner's jury met at the Pierce morgue yesterday afternoon to hear evidence, several witnesses, some of whom were riding in the jitney, testified the driver was not moving at the tremendous rate of speed at first reported. The verdict stated Mr. Perry came to his death by accident, and Mr. Kupcinet was allowed to go free.

Kenneth Mendenhall, 27 years old, a truck driver employed by the I.O.F. Sanatorium, was less fortunate. His truck collided with a touring car driven by Grey Gorcen of No. 2705½ West Temple street, last Wednesday, on the Lincoln road this side of San Fernando. Mr. Cassidy, who with his 10-year-old daughter, Mary, was a passenger in Mr. Gorcen's machine, was so severely injured that he died Thursday night at the County Hospital.

The Coroner's jury, sitting at the Button morgue, found a verdict of careless driving. The driver is in the I.O.F. Sanatorium with a broken shoulder. He was unable to attend the inquest.

ORE LIMIT IS NOT IN SIGHT.

Development is Pushed to West of Camp.

Possibilities are Growing at Extension Mine.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) Aug. 20.—The western limit of this district is far from being reached, if one is to judge from the statement of leading operators who are spending thousands of dollars in exploiting that section.

"The western termination of the ore bodies has not yet been found in the Tonopah Extension," said Manager John G. Kirchen this week in speculating on the possibilities of the formation extending out on the flat where a few years ago no one would have thought there was any ore existing.

"On the 1260-foot level we have proved the values for a distance of 400 feet, and on the 1350 we have proved ore for 200 feet.

"Our profits for July were approximately $40,340, but it must be borne in mind that the present price compared with July, 1913, when silver was 60½ cents an ounce, represents to us a loss of $750,000 a year.

"But even with this depreciation we are continuing to extract and reduce ore, although we are not crowding records in bullion production under present conditions."

On the Extension one shift is employed on the old shaft keeping four drills busy in spite of the fact that this shaft has been a steady producer for the past fifteen years. The new shaft is employing four shifts and the output is more than satisfactory. The water flow from the Victor is being easily held, with only one pump operating constantly giving a daily flow of 225,000 gallons. The south crosscut is being driven ahead through ground that caved when the workings flooded. This is on the 1540 level, which will be continued until connection is established with the Extension workings, when the Victor shaft will be used for extensive development work and the hoisting of ore, as well as waste.

EMPHASIZES GROWTH.

The steady growth of the western belt is emphasized by a statement of an unexpected showing on the Tonopah Bonanza, a property situated at the furthest point west in the district, at least two miles from the center of town. After sinking the shaft to a depth of 825 feet, the Bonanza encountered what is called the oxidized Midway andesite, proving conclusively that the ore zone extends in that direction. Further sinking will be necessary to get into the West End rhyolite or the trachyte, either of which is in the ore-bearing formation.

The west drift in 858 level in the Tonopah Belmont mine is making a showing of three feet of good ore. On the 900 level the southwest crosscut has picked up the faulted segment of the rhyolite vein. This shows two feet of very good ore.

Stoping has been started on the 1100-foot level of the Desert Queen on the Occidental vein. The company is running west from the 1300 to prospect a big block of trachyte. All other openings in the property are disclosing about the same as last week. Values are practically unchanged and the tonnage is maintained at the same figure.

Between eight and ten flasks of quicksilver are being produced daily at the plant of the Nevada Cinnabar Company at Ione, the old county seat, and a carload shipment will be sent out next week. The metal is now quoted at between $92 and $95 per flask of seventy-five younds in first hands and between $95 and $100 per flask in second hands.

The Scott furnace is now producing at capacity, the walls having become thoroughly charged, so that the metal flows from the condensing chamber with regularity, increasing and decreasing, according to whether the ore being treated is of high or low grade.

WAR BENEFITS.

The mine is responding to development, and a better grade of ore is being broken daily. This is one of the war industries that have proved profitable to Nevada, as the company had just entered upon the productive stage after reorganization when hostilities opened in Europe. Another new industry that has come into its own since the war is the mining of antimony in this county. Antimony has been a drug on the market, and some of the best lead properties running a high percentage in antimony have had to be abandoned owing to the penalties exacetd by the smelters for treatment charges.

The largest local antimony mine is situated ninety miles east of Tonopah, which is the nearest shipping point, and the old owners have taken steps to install modern equipment capable of producing from forty to fifty tons daily.

HALF A DOLLAR IN.

But It is in His Throat and He Hurries to the Receiving Hospital. Coin Sought in Vain.

"Doctor, I am a half a dollar in," whispered Lars Tabert, a young man living at No. 322 East Twelfth street, as he walked into the Receiving Hospital late last night.

"Well, you have more luck than I have," remarked Dr. Kane, as he turned to face a very red-faced young man.

"No, I haven't," declared Tabert, "because, you see, doctor, this half-dollar is in my throat."

So Dr. Kane, armed with a sliver, fished and fished for the money, but up to a late hour this morning had not located it.

Returned the Compliment.

[Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph:] A busy housewife came into the sitting-room with a determined look in her eyes.

"I really shall have to punish those children," she began.

"What have the little beggars been up to now?" asked father, looking up from his newspaper.

"Why, they've made a mess of my sewing-room," explained the wife. "Needles, reels of cotton, scissors—everything has been hidden away in the most unexpected places. It is really exasperating."

Her husband laid down his paper and smiled benignly.

"I did that," he said, calmly. Then, in answer to a questioning look, he went on: "You tidied up my desk so beautifully the other day that I thought it only fair to return the compliment. So I tidied up your sewing-room."

MASTER WINE MAKER.

Sends Word He's Coming From France to Take Care of Cucamonga's Grape Crop.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CUCAMONGA, Aug. 21.—"The Old Wine Maker," De Bonnet, is coming back from France. The growers of Cucamonga today received the news for which they had been anxiously waiting.

De Bonnet is one of the most famous of wine-makers in California and because he was in Paris and his nation at war the Cucamonga wine grape growers feared he could not again come to direct the making of the wines of the ancient vineyards of Cucamonga.

A cablegram today from Paris announced that De Bonnet would sail at once for America and would reach Cucamonga in time for the making of the wine. For many years De Bonnet has crossed the Atlantic to come to Cucamonga to make the wines that have made the big vineyard region famous throughout the United States.

The growers of Cucamonga, who themselves own and operate the winery of the Cucamonga Vintage Company, say nobody can make wine like De Bonnet, and anxiety that there would be no great artist at the winery this year was dispelled with the cablegram.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 21.—George W. Smith, policeman, who asked that he be charged with manslaughter to settle agitation started by representatives of the Mexican government, was again today exonerated of the charge of manslaughter for the killing of Victor Martinez.

The Coroner's jury exonerated Smith, but the Mexicans were not satisfied. They demanded a trial, but no one appeared to swear to the complaint until Smith himself arranged for the signing of the document.

Justice Edward Wall today held there was no evidence that would warrant holding Smith for a jury trial. Smith thought Martinez was seeking to draw a revolver while he was resisting arrest, and he shot the fighting Mexican.

THIEVES SELL JUNK.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Aug. 21.—Simon Cohn and Max Weiss, charged with being the boldest thieves in California, were landed in the City Jail here last night after a busy day for them. The two men came to Redlands in the afternoon, went to the home of Max Weisberg, broke into the barn and stole a lot of junk, drove to San Bernardino and sold it for $20, drove back to Redlands and left the horse and buggy, climbed into a jitney bus and were arrested at Colton last night. The two men, according to the police, made inquiries about the junk business here and learned that Mr. Weisberg, the principal junk man, had gone to Los Angeles. So they rented the buggy, filled it full of stolen junk and found a ready sale for it in San Bernardino. Neighbors saw them take the junk, but did not report it to the police until after the men had left here for good. Cohn and Weiss deny guilt.

MAY BE MURDER AND NOT SUICIDE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 21.—Unusual and mystifying circumstances surrounding the evident suicide of F. M. Lynn, former Santa Fe engine man, would furnish a plot for a Poe or a Conan Doyle.

Had his note not been found the Coroner would have declared it a case of murder, and suicide would never have been suspected, but now, after proof that he wrote the note in which he gave the reasons for his self-destruction, there is still the possibility that Lynn did not take his own life.

Soon after his death the crew of a Southern Pacific freight train found his warm body on the sand by the track near Bealville. The crew notified the dispatcher and went on. The Coroner and the Sheriff went after the body, noting the details. They supposed the freight crew had carried off the pistol. These trainmen were present at the inquest today and they found no pistol. Yet Lynn carried one from home with him the night before when he went up from here to resume his job on the section.

Lynn feared violence from Mexicans he had arrested and was warned they were not out of jail. His wife knew this and so did the section crew and they believed he met with foul play until the note was found in his clothing blaming the Santa Fe for his death. He was an extra engineer and was discharged last year for running down some Mexicans while running ahead of his schedule time. He brooded over the loss of his position but was later a policeman here.

The paper in his note matches exactly the tablet in his desk at home. So does the ink and there was no pen and ink at Bealville. His family declare he wrote nothing while at home Wednesday, but that when home the previous Sunday he had been despondent and that he did some writing. Since then he was cheerful and was in a cheerful mood at Bealville shortly before his death.

So there is the possibility that his own note helps to shield a murder. The position of his body, the lack of powder burns where the bullet was fired on the exposed breast, and the further fact that the gun was evidently held in the left hand, if he shot himself, are all circumstances favoring the murder theory.

STRINGENT LAWS FOR JITNEY BUS.

LONG BEACH WOULD PREVENT FURTHER ACCIDENTS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Aug. 21.—Public clamor for stringent regulation of the jitney bus traffic following the death of four persons in Tuesday's accident has been met by James R. Williams, Commissioner of Public Safety. He is drafting an ordinance that is expected to put an end to rapid and reckless driving of the five-cent vehicles.

Commissioner Williams is drafting into the new ordinance the following "musts" for jitney-drivers:

No five-cent fare auto must be driven at a greater speed than fifteen miles per hour anywhere in the city limits.

Jitney drivers must bring their machines to a full stop at railroad crossings and stop, look and listen, for approaching trains.

Spedometers on jitneys must be in working order and in plain sight of the passengers.

Drivers must be over 21 years of age, will be required to pass an examination as to their fitness, and must secure a permit, which will be revoked if they are caught violating the provisions of the ordinance.

Races between jitney drivers late at night have been reported to the police often lately, and the motorcycle officers are on the watch for these gentry. A speed of 50 miles per hour is common when one of these races is on, according to passengers. Patrons will be asked to use their rights as citizens and arrest any jitney driver caught speeding.

SUBMARINE DOCKS.

A request has been made by the United States Government to Works Commissioner Hargis that the city grant the use by the Navy of a portion of the municipal docks for the purpose of docking submarines. It is probable that the local harbor, because of its quiet waters and excellent situation, may become an important base for submarines.

In case of the selection of this port as a base, it is expected that a large number of the officers of the mosquito fleet will remove their families to this city and make their home here. Merchants are anticipating that in that case a stream of navy dollars will pour into their coffers.

NEW PAVILION.

Plans for a new dance pavilion are being formulated by C. W. Keeran and the owners of the new Campbell pier. There is no open five-cent dance pavilion here at present, and the new structure will vie with the largest on the other beaches. It will be built on the west side of the Campbell pier and will have one of the largest floors in this part of the State.

THOUSANDS GO TO SAN DIEGO.

Los Angeles Day at the Fair Arouses Natives.

Policemen's Band Parades in Exposition Streets.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 21.—Bands of all kinds, Indian bands, Italian bands, military bands, have played at the exposition but it remained for Los Angeles to bring a brass band of policemen. And the band of Los Angeles Finest who came to escort Mayor Sebastian and his party on their official visit to the exposition made such a hit that the thousands of Angelenos from the Mayor down swelled with just pride as the musical policemen serenaded during the day.

Five thousand Angelenos arrived this morning by train and by auto to assist in the celebration of Los Angeles Day at the exposition and many more arrived tonight for over Sunday. And San Diegans, both official and private citizens, showed their appreciation of the northern guests by royal entertainment.

Thousands of Knights of Pythias from Southern California were in the crowd as the day was also Knights of Pythias Day at the fair. Drills by gaily-garbed Dokkies. Uniformed Ranks, band concerts, receptions, and dinners and a great "tacky" dress carnival on the Isthmus tonight made a full day for the visitors.

For Mayor Sebastian it was a very full day for he attended both as the official head of Los Angeles and as a member of the Knights of Pythias which nearly required being in two places at once. After seeing the city this morning he formed the central figure in the Knights of Pythias parade to the exposition this afternoon. He reviewed the parade with President G. Aubrey Davidson from the steps of the Sacramento building, the guest of honor with Mrs. Sebastian and their party at a reception given at the Southern California building, and at the woman's headquarters and a dinner given by President Davidson at the Cristobal, tonight, was initiated into the Dramatic Order Knights of Khorassan and did the Isthmus sandwich style, between times.

MAYOR'S PARTY.

Los Angeles official citizens were well represented and in the party with the Mayor were: Mayor and Mrs. Sebastian, Chief of Police Snively and Mrs. Snively, Glen McWilliams, secretary to the Mayor, and Mrs. McWilliams; Deputy City Clerk Carroll and Mrs. Carroll, Councilman Wheeler and Mrs. Wheeler, Councilman Wright and Mrs. Wright, and many other prominent Angelenos.

The official party was escorted about the exposition grounds by President Davidson and Mrs. Davidson, and Mayor Capps and Chief of Police Wilson assisted in entertaining the visitors. Said Mayor Sebastian:

"This is my third visit to the exposition and it seems more beautiful this time than ever," and his opinion appeared to voice that of the others who had made previous visits.

The parade to the grounds included Knights of Pythias, the Uniform Rank, the Dokkies, with an escort of cavalry and marines, headed by the police band of Los Angeles who are members of the Silver Star Lodge of that city.

Competitive drills on the Plaza de Panama by the Uniform Rank teams and the Dokkies teams of the Knights of Pythias were held soon after the arrival of the parade and were witnessed by the Mayor's party. A reception was held in the beautiful Blue room of the Southern California Building in which the Angelenos are particularly interested as Los Angeles county contributed seventy-five per cent. of the tax fund for it.

The guests were graciously received by the hostesses of the building and shown about the exhibits and the model farm which some of the party expressed the desire to carry home. Miss Molly Byerly Wilson, a dramatic contralto and a Los Angeles girl, sang selections at the big out-of-door organ. The Angelenos apparently greatly enjoyed the finished singing of the Los Angeles girl who has just returned from years of study in Berlin.

PRESIDENT'S DINNER.

Following the tea given the visitors in the Woman's Headquarters by the women's official board, the president's dinner to the party was served at the Cristobal. At this were all of the official guests and their wives.

This evening Al Borak patrol of the D.O.K.K., the Los Angeles patrol gave an intricate drill on the Isthmus, the Silver Star band gave concerts and Angelenos and San Diegans by the thousands in tacky costume for the occasion, frolicked on the long amusement street, competing for the "tacky dress prize."

In the competitive drills of the Knights of Pythias of the afternoon the handsome Royer cup held by the San Diego No. 6 team of the Uniform Rank was retained by San Diego. The other prizes won were: San Pedro No. 62, second; Santa Barbara No. 48, third; Pasadena No. 32, fourth. KEEP SAME TAX RATE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ARCADIA, Aug. 21.—After going into the matter thoroughly from all possible angles, the citizens of Arcadia have decided not to lower the tax rate, as was planned. The rate of last year, 60 cents, will be continued for the coming twelve months, plus 65 cents to cover the bonded indebtedness incurred by the city for water development and street improvement. The new wells of the municipality are giving an excellent flow of water and plans are being made to build an electrical plant to operate the pump motors.

GIRLS EAT A RATTLESNAKE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MOUNTAIN HOME, Aug. 21.—Allen Whitney was the host at a dinner party at his camp in Mill Creek Canyon near here that rivalled some of the freak dinners of the ultra rich of New York. The meat course of this famous dinner was San Bernardino mountain rattlesnake, smothered in cracker crumbs and browned to a turn.

Whitney killed the snake near his camp and having heard that the flesh was better than chicken, decided to try it. He invited several guests but only a few of the young folks at the camps were brave enough to accept. They reported the meat to be the best they ever tasted to an admiring and awestruck crowd that watched the disposal of the delicacy.

EVEN FIG LEAVES ARE BURDENSOME.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 21.—Sticklers for the conventional, and some others, are shocked beyond measure at the story of an early-riser who chanced to observe a bevy of young men and maids disport themselves in nature's scanty garb in the cool waters of the municipal pool at Fairmount Park.

The story of the astonished observer, who makes daily matutinal trips to the summit of North Hill, recites that a seven-passenger touring car unloaded its occupants at the plunge at the early hour of 4:30 o'clock.

The absence of the park attendants made it quite unnecessary to bother about a censor, just as the absence of even the semblance of a fig leaf for a bathing suit made it unnecessary to have the length of a skirt taped off, had the censor been on the job.

The identity of the sons and daughters of Neptune escaped the excited observer of their antics in the municipal pool, but the rest of the community is doing some clever guessing.

OFFICIAL TO PREACH.

The humanizing of the Indian service, getting close to the stoic nature of the nation's aboriginal charges, will be the theme treated by Hon. Cato Sells, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, in an address at the First Congregational Church Sunday evening.

The congregations of the First Baptist, Calvary Presbyterian and First Congregational churches will unite for the occasion. The distinguished visitor will pass some time at Sherman Institute during his stay here.

EXPERTS ON SPUDS.

The startling decline in the yield of potatoes in the majority of the potato-growing sections of the State will be considered in an address to be given by W. N. Shear of the United States Department of Agriculture at Perris on September 17.

Expert advice as to the proper methods of growing the potato and the eradication of fungi, will be submitted by the Washington official, who will be assisted by A. J. Cook, State Commissioner of Holticulture, in exploiting his subject. The addresses will be delivered under State auspices, the meeting scheduled for Perris being the third of a series of six being held in various parts of California.

DRUGGIST ARRESTED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASCO, Aug. 21.—J. P. Nolan, local druggist; William Gilbreath, former saloon-keeper here until the town went dry, and Gilbreath's son were today arrested on complaint of Constable Wiles for selling liquor without a license. A large stock was found in the store, it is said, and, according to authorities, Nolan bought the intoxicants and the Gilbreaths peddled them. Bonds of each have been fixed at $1000.

"It has been almost impossible and entirely inadvisable, according to Mr. Keene, to return to Switzerland during the war, even though that little warrior nation be not drawn into the conflict."

He was dressed in a black-and-white suit of mixed material, a black-and-white striped shirt, a white collar and black tie.

STORES' PEOPLE FROLIC AT ZOO.

EMPLOYEES OF A DOZEN HOUSES GUESTS AT PICNIC.

About a Thousand Persons Watch the Animals, Lunch al Fresco and See Motion Pictures, Ferocious Pie and Watermelon-eating Contests and Prize Dancing.

The Associated Department Stores of Los Angeles, including about a dozen of the principal institutions of this character in Los Angeles, held their annual employees' picnic yesterday afternoon and evening at the Selig Zoo, more than 1000 persons attending. The entire day was given over to contests and amusements, with a prize dance closing the programme in the evening.

Immediately following their arrival, the clerks, cash girls, errand boys, department managers, and office help were served with a basket luncheon on the lawns of the park. The afternoon was devoted to inspecting the animals, and Madame Madlone sang for the merrymakers, rendering her vocal selections in the leopard's cage.

During the afternoon the errand boys indulged in a ferocious pie-eating contest, during which many pies and several stomachs were ruined. A watermelon-eating contest that followed was not so destructive to the digestive organs, but succeeded in spoiling several fresh complexions worn exclusively by some of the prettiest cash girls.

After supper, served in the same manner as luncheon, free motion pictures were thrown on the big screen in the zoo. This interesting and instructive entertainment lasted an hour. The band then struck up a one-step, and the crowd moved to the huge, open-air dance pavilion.

At 10 o'clock the floor was cleared for the prize dance. After much strenuous competition, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Welch were declared winners. The choice was vociferously applauded by everyone.

The picnic broke up at midnight with the picnickers tired, but very happy.

THEY ARE COMING AND GOING BY HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS.

Greatest Travel Rush to and Through Los Angeles—All that the Trains and the Ships Can Carry—Results Beneficial to Everybody.

THIS IS THE SEASON of "standing-room only;" of emphasis on the evil of procrastination. If you don't believe it, try to go somewhere in this gladsome summertime, when the levia- among tourist crops is setting up new records of many-sectioned special and regular trains, ping hotel clerks, and eleventh-hour resolves go awry. The resolves that are doomed to handling are those based on the presumption that reservations for any old trip may be for the asking. They can't, for Los Angeles is the tourist capital of the world these days it never was before. It is the crossroads of the world, too, and the trolley, railroad, and ship lines are garnering more business than they ever handled before.

Angeles has entertained nearly million exposition visitors since 1. The approximate figures are according to compilations of and steamship compan- This is 90 per cent. of all visi- the State during the past fif- weeks. It is a 200 per cent. in- in travel over any correspond- of the past. its title of the "gateway Los Angeles has thrown its to the millionaire and to merchant, entertained them them on to the expositions. welcomed, with open-handed the de luxe traveler and expenditures may be com- terms of cents. to Secretary Wiggins of of Commerce, a visitor well get away without $10. Taking this as an average it means $4,100,000 expended by our 410,000 visitors. They probably spent a great deal more. But let this pass—we have obtained innumerable other benefits besides the money. We have obtained several billion dollars' worth of advertising, for one thing. And our guests got and are getting their money's worth many times over.

Spotlighted in July were the great gatherings of the Elks and the National Federation of Musical Clubs. They brought their tens of thousands of visitors. But the great work of advertising Los Angeles is through the seeds of longing for our sunny clime that have been sown and will begin to sprout in the breasts of the chance-come Middle Westerner or Northerner about the time the weatherman throws discretion to the winds.

Also never before in history has Los Angeles entertained so many distinguished visitors, ranging from Cabinet officers to the Maharajah of Kapurthala, and from grand opera singers turned motion-picture actresses to staid archaeologists.

By actual computation, nineteen Governors have visited the city so far, while members of exposition commissions and mayors of important cities have become so numerous as to attract but passing notice. So far there have been no kings, but this is readily attributable to the little unpleasantness across the waters.

It has been, and probably will continue to be, an inundation of humanity to see the world's two greatest expositions and old earth's finest open-air exhibit. Hotels have been crowded, jammed, and often forced to turn them from the doors. More trains were long ago put on the railroads; while the steamship companies, with no extra boats available, have been forced to tighten schedules almost to the breaking point.

At the present time, more trains are regularly scheduled into Los Angeles than into any other city west of St. Louis, while the calling list of coastwise vessels is the lengthiest in our history. Service to New York, with two of the finest vessels flying the American flag as mediums, is an established thing.

MIXING.

But to get an idea of the kind of tourist business this city is doing, one has to mingle with the crowds on any of our popular excursion trips, as the Catalina Island, Mt. Lowe, Orange Empire, Kite-Shaped or Old Mission trolley. There one meets the man from Lowell alongside the Southerner or a sombreroed individual from far back country somewhere.

Friends from the old home town also have a way of dropping in, most unexpectedly, and telling of others who are on their way. We stand at the crossroads of the expositions and welcome all. Our Mission Play and

ABOUT EIGHT THOUSAND DOLLARS DISAPPEARS.

ON THE HEELS of the sensational daylight robbery of the Boyle Heights branch of the Home Savings Bank by armed bandits on Friday, information came to light yesterday of the theft of approximately $8000 from the Security National Bank of this city, and the swindling of the Union National Bank of Pasadena out of $2500.

Officers of the Security National were unwilling to talk of the loss yesterday, but they admitted that the money disappeared and that the thief has never been apprehended. It is reported that detectives working on the case have an important clew and expect to lay the crime at the feet of the guilty party at an early date.

The man who is accused of swindling the Pasadena bank is known by the name of F. A. Hengert. He was arrested Thursday night in El Paso and extradition papers were issued yesterday. He will be returned here probably tomorrow.

While the theft at the Security National Bank was not discovered until the bank opened for business one morning, it is the belief of those who investigated the case thoroughly that the money was stolen before the big vault was closed the evening before. In fact, what little evidence it has been possible to secure points to the theory that the cash was stolen from the counter after it had been counted and bundled for deposit in the steel inclosure.

The money consisted of 1600 $5 bills, the package being bulky but not heavy. In fact, it would have been possible for the thief to secrete it under his coat and get away without exciting suspicion.

Immediately after the theft was discovered detectives of the United States Department of Justice were notified and they worked diligently but in vain on the case. Pinkerton detectives also were assigned to the search. Up to yesterday no one had solved the mystery.

DOWN TO ONE MAN.

Suspicion during the first few weeks of the investigation fell upon several persons, but finally it was generally accepted that former theories were groundless and that one man alone did the job. He was shadowed constantly for many days, but at no time was there sufficient evidence developed to warrant his arrest.

In following the suspect and delving into his habits it was learned that he had juggled accounts in several of the leading Los Angeles banks, that his wife had deposited a considerable amount in one of them shortly after the theft, and that he had spent money very freely. That he could not have gone such a fast pace on his own salary was well established.

Several persons were in the bank during the last half hour before closing. Two or more of them were there ostensibly on legitimate business, and in addition there were some bank employees. Upon whom suspicion rests no one will state, but that he is well known in the city, is recognized socially, and is a member of one or more prominent clubs, has been admitted.

Vice-President Zombro of the bank declared yesterday he could not discuss the theft. "It happened a long time ago," he said, "and I am sure it is not news now." Mr. Zombro further declared that the thief did not

At South Pasadena.

SEATS ON WATER WAGON AT THE PUBLIC'S EXPENSE.

REFORM is not coy at South Pasadena. The water wagon need not be sought assiduously there and may be ridden even without the aid of nonskid breeches. In fact, every man of that community too weakened by altercations with John Barleycorn to climb unassisted on the sprinkling cart will probably be boosted thereon by a goodly share of the population. For the city has taken up with zeal the "Saylor new drink cure plan."

Its author is Traffic Officer Saylor, who, from his station at Mission street and Fair Oaks avenue, has observed the ravages of demon rum on the persons of various established residents of his community. He has also noted that a sojourn in jail does not cure a thirst. So he has promulgated his plan.

Under it known periodical drinkers of South Pasadena will not go to jail again. Each on his next conviction is to be given a suspended sentence, according to the plan, with the proviso that he undergo a well-known "cure" at an institution maintained for such as he.

The money with which to send drinkers to this institution is to be raised by popular subscription, and made in the form of a loan. Already officers of the Young Men's Christian Association, pastors and others, have proffered their services as solicitors for the Saylor fund.

It is expected the patient who takes the "cure" under the benefits of this fund will go to work when he finds himself solidly on the water wagon and will return to the holders of the fund the amount paid out for his regeneration.

Just now the fund is projected as a South Pasadena affair exclusively and is largely for the benefit of certain oldtime residents who seem unable to sidestep the periodical spree. It is believed South Pasadena is the only city of its size where a similar movement has been undertaken.

CITY LEADS IN LEG VARIETY.

Many Kinds Found; Some are Quite Useful.

Becoming Obsolete Now for Locomotion.

But Still Employed in a Number of Ways.

BY HAROLD H. SCOTT.

In this day of aeroplanes, submarines, automobiles and Phords, not to mention the hundreds of greater and lesser carriers, common and otherwise, from steamships to baby carriages, the world seems to have forgotten the importance of legs; has come to look upon them with disdain; to exhibit a growing disinclination to use them any more than is absolutely necessary.

There are a great many kinds of legs—thin legs, fat legs, straight legs, crooked legs, frog legs, table legs, et cetera. Quite naturally there was a time when, with so large a variety of legs, there were just as many uses to which they were put. But that time is passing. Legs were primarily intended as a means of locomotion, but, as I have already intimated, their use for that purpose is fast becoming obsolete. But they are still employed for a variety of things, to wit: As bumpers to ward off the blows of heavy furniture in the dark; to display gaudy hosiery; to cushion bleacher seats when they become unusually hard, say along about the end of the fifth inning; as a means of getting on and off mechanical conveyances—and banana peelings—and to decorate the arms of easy chairs.

Just as They Go Meandering Along.

The war leg.

Though you will not find it in the Chamber of Commerce literature, along with the statistics of climate, factories, bank clearings and Mr. Mulholland's educated river, Los Angeles leads in legs as it does in everything else. Of course, this is only natural and not at all to be wondered at.

ALL IN LEGS.

Among the specimens which abound in our City Beautiful is the jitney-bus leg, than which no finer specimen can be found the world over. The jitney-bus leg is peculiarly adapted to the vehicle from which it derives its name. It is of inestimable value to the commuter who is willing to take chances on a jitney and who must of necessity have legs which can be neatly folded under the seat to accommodate Neighbor Jones, who perches precariously on the door to his right and cleverly intertwines his own legs with those of the party opposite, on the left-side door. This careful arrangement of legs increases the carrying capacity of the bus fully 50 per cent.; indeed, as many as seven men have been seen riding in this manner and apparently suffering no more inconvenience than a person traveling to Mt. Baldy on a broken roller skate. It's all in the legs.

Then there is the Main-street leg. But perhaps the less said of this the better. Certain vain persons have seen fit to decorate the lobbies of some theaters on that street with life-size photographs of this variety, but they seem to be vain in vain, for these specimens lack the virtue of being either good, bad or indifferent. Do not misunderstand, however. They are by no means a minus quantity. They are there, even as stalks in a corn field, and displaying a like degree of grace and symmetry.

The war leg is a species which is fast disappearing on this side of the Atlantic, though large quantities of them are now being made in Europe. The possessor of the war leg will recount, proudly and at great length, how his leg was amputated by a Johnny Reb, "shot clean off, just like that." However, unless he can display a sufficient number of medals to substantiate his claims of valor, it were just as well to disbelieve them, even though you lack the moral courage to state your convictions. Impatient railroad trains have been known to amputate legs just as cleanly as bullets—when the owner of the legs was a little tardy in moving off the right-of-way.

OTHER STYLES.

Then, of course, we have the "O" and "X" styles in legs. They are almost too common to warrant special attention. It is only fair though, having committed the sketch, to qualify it with the necessary explanation. You may think that the gentleman on the right in the sketch herewith is wearing bouillon cube trousers because he is part of the ox. He is not. Those are checker-board-of-the-war trousers.

But the pendulum leg! Ah, those are real legs. You have all seen them; those long, straight legs which swing back and forth with the regularity of alternating pendulums. Their owner sails along above them blissfully unconcerned about their movements as they move steadily back and forth, back and forth, tick-tock, tick-tock. They travel with equal ease over city pavement or country road—and they always get you there on time. Ah, to have such legs!

In direct contrast to the pendulum leg we have the peg leg; poor insufficient, unstable, uncertain, hesitant legs, which demand the concentrated, undivided attention of their possessor to keep them in the "straight and narrow."

And now, attention to the cow-puncher leg—not the movie variety, but the genuine article, imported direct from the range. These legs are notable principally because of the fact that they are rarely, if ever, to be seen in their normal state. Why one should go about with their legs incased in hot, uncomfortable leather, is impossible to imagine. Of course on the range this armor is indispensable, being provided with rings which are caught over hooks in the saddle, and so prevent the rider from tumbling off when the horse increases his pace faster than a walk. But even the consolation of wearing a wonderful Panama creation, which is large enough to shade the pedal extremities, would hardly appear to be sufficient inducement to don those outrageous rhinoceros-leg protectors. But they certainly make up in bulk what their wearer lacks in anatomical perfection. Perhaps that is why he wears them.

"The passing show" is merely an appreciation of those who have not yet forgotten how to use their legs.

LOVE VINE IS GOAT GETTER.

BEAUTIFUD PLANT FATAD TO ANIMALS IS PLACED IN ANGELES FOREST.

The beautiful love vine, known in botany as cuscuta, that spreads a golden tangle over the chamisal and wild buckwheat, almost hiding them from view, will go down in the archives of the Angeles National Forest as the official "getter of the goat of the goats." It is a leafless plant with yellow or orange-colored stems, yet it is more deadly to the goat than a menu of empty tin cans and hoop skirts.

For five years the forest supervisor was looking for a herd of goats that would keep clear the firebreak, eating off the grass and removing food for forest fires. Some months ago he secured 800 goats from H. G. Brinkerhoff of Arizona, and had the beasts taken to the woods back of Redlands. A competent herder was employed, and for some time it seemed that the experiment would prove to be a success. The goats waxed fat, and the grass disappeared from the firebreaks.

But now there is serious trouble. The goats have been eating the yellow love vine, and more than 100 of the animals have died from poisoning. Mr. Brinkerhoff is disgusted with the result of his experiment and is looking for another range.

Supervisor Charlton is discouraged. Just as his goat experiment was about to prove a success, and the scoffers given the merry ha-ha, the deadly love vine appears and the goats, who have fed on the dangerous but beautiful growth unwisely and too well, turn up their toes.

ARSON INVESTIGATION.

Grand Jury Begins to Hear Evidence Today with Many Indictments Expected.

Twenty indictments may be returned by the County Grand Jury as the result of an investigation of the "arson ring," which will be started tomorrow morning. Evidence has been assembled by county detectives under the direction of Deputy District Attorney Keetch and he is certain, he says, that there will be sensational developments.

The grand jury will have evidence that has been gathered also by detectives for the fire insurance companies, following suspicious fires in various parts of the city and one particularly large fire in Pasadena.

They Are Coming.

other attractions have already become household words the length and breadth of the land. The reason is that every visitor sees them and goes away with the knowledge that they are California institutions like the sunshine and the palm trees.

In fact, were it possible to film the inside of the ordinary tourist's head after he has spent a week here you would find a conglomerate in which the "Mission Play" and its concomitant, San Gabriel Mission, were blended, inextricable, with recollections of Catalina, palm trees, geranium hedges, oiled roads, sunshine and the lilt of "I Love You, California."

If the tourist be of the especially impressionable kind, then there will be olfactory recollections of the scent of burning eucalyptus; while all chorus the marvel of our arrangement of having the nights cool enough for blankets. But, as the good book points out, "to him who has will be given."

THEIR HANDS FULL.

That it has been a highly satisfactory season for the railroads, hotel, transfer companies, and the steamship lines is willingly, almost gleefully, admitted by those who are managing such enterprises. The main trouble has been to accommodate all who present themselves with their money in their hands.

One day last week twenty carloads of humanity went down to the harbor to catch "the boat" for Catalina. They all got across, but it took two vessels to handle them. The better-known trolley trips are also run in two and three sections, while the harvest for the "rubberneck" wagons is of such plenteousness that the sight of money no longer moves their agents to transports of rapture.

Between here and San Francisco the travel is so heavy that the railroads have had to put in more sidings. Otherwise, with more trains by 100 per cent. than they ever ran before, the railroads wouldn't be able to make a running time of forty-eight hours between the two biggest cities of the Coast.

GET IN EARLY.

Even as it is you have to apply a week before hand if you want to get a "lower" to the bayside town. Right now the Southern Pacific is running both the Lark and the Coaster in three sections in either direction between here and San Francisco, while on the Santa Fe, it is now "the Angels" and "the Saints," for there are three each of these trains now in operation to handle the anxious. By boat to San Francisco or from that place to Los Angeles it is a matter of wait in line for your ticket, or buy weeks ahead.

Though there is now every reason to believe that July saw the high tide of travel to Los Angeles, with the Elks' and the musical clubs' meeting here, and twenty trainloads of Shriners stopping off to see the best show of all, railroad men are convinced that we will have easily three-quarters of a million out-of-the-State visitors before the year ends.

"August will fall a little behind July," said General Passenger Agent McGinnis of the Southern Pacific yesterday, "but the decrease in travel is scarcely perceptible. There will, of course, be a decrease after school opens. But there are still hundreds of thousands of persons who haven't seen the expositions who will come before they close."

HIGH TIDE.

Some idea of how travel rose to high tide between April and July may be obtained from figures of the Southern Pacific showing the eastern influx to the State through the road's El Paso, Ogden and Portland gateways: May, 32,042 persons; June, 49,171 persons, and July, 78,382 persons. The monthly reports of the other roads show similar ratios of increase. It is also an interesting fact that the Denver and Rio Grande delivered more passengers to the Salt Lake for Los Angeles the first two weeks of this month than to its connecting road, the Western Pacific.

Though the majority of persons, who have come here, have been in family parties, the tour concerns have done their part well. Last week one concern brought in its fifty-second party, while another company brought in its forty-fifth.

What Los Angeles has done for its visitors is a subject that scarcely needs amplification. It has cost more than $100,000 to entertain distinguished guests; nearly 5000 automobiles have been used at one time or another; the school children and civic and commercial bodies have outdone themselves in their floral parades and pageants; the latchstring has been out so long and has been so constantly pulled that it is now a bit worn, but it is there for use and there is open-handed hospitality behind it.

Velvets, Corduroys and Velveteens Have Arrived

Before we tell you that they are among the most important of all fabrics, from the standpoint of fashion, let us explain why this is an important announcement:

Germany makes some of the finest velvets in the world. Today, at Rotterdam, between fifteen and twenty million dollars' worth of velvets, intended for this country, lie unshipped, because of the war.

Prices of the velvets, already received in this country, have soared. Huge orders have been placed with American makers, but their capacity is not great enough to meet the demand, even under ordinary conditions, and how could they possibly make up for those millions of dollars' worth ordered from Germany, but which have not come? This year is extraordinary, for—from sheer contrariness, perhaps—velours of all sorts have won a place for themselves in the heart of Fashion that nothing seems to shake!

So, when we say—at the old prices—remember that to have velours at any price is fortunate; but at the old price is a miracle!

The richest are the chiffon velours, at $4. They are 42 inches wide. These we have in the new rich, dark street shades as well as in evening colors.

Costume velvets, 44 inches wide, in deep, rich autumn tones, and black are $3.50.

At $2, very much the same quality, but 32 inches instead of 44 inches wide, in plain colors. This is considered a wonderful velvet, under ordinary conditions at the price.

At $2.25 you'll find the "invisible stripe" velvet that reflects a charming and delightfully new idea in corduroys—the stripes are half an inch apart, and look as though the pile were held down by a hair stretched across. The stripe is almost invisible.

At $1 there are twenty-seven different autumn shades of our renowned 27-inch imported corduroy.

Velours of all sorts are good, and are growing better every day — partly because they are scarce, and largely because they are irresistibly graceful and rich.

Beautiful Silk Parasols $2.25 and $4.75

Every one of them reduced from prices much higher—because it is growing late.

There are plain and fancy—striped, checked, bordered—almost every style that is in good style this season.

These reached us last Wednesday, by express from New York. Tomorrow morning they will be marked and ready for sale—and such a sale as it will be—never has this store had anything of the same delightful sort to sell at such prices!

For convenience we have divided the lot into two groups:

Fancy wings, ostrich stick-ups, imitation paradise, imitation aigrettes, curled ostrich tips and clipped ostrich fancies.

Black, white, mustard, purple, brown, red, blue—besides every imaginable combination.

Women's Autumn Suits

They are here—the most delightful suits, the most striking and beautiful, that this country knows how to make.

But as we write this, they are not yet out of their tissue paper wrappings. But Monday they'll be ready for you to see.

We have only heard who designed them; who made them—and in awed tones we hear that the cloths and the linings look as though France had chosen them.

Come, if you can, and see for yourself. We must wait and get the full story of their beauty—before trying to tell you about them.

Prices will range from $19.75 to $125. There will be more at $25 and $35 than any other price.

The Exposition Scarf

Fortunately, they are smart and becoming, as well as warm!

The Clean-up of a Great Maker's Business in Leather Hand Bags $1.95

Genuine Pin Seal and genuine Morocco, in more than twenty distinct and delightful styles.

Some are quite large, soft, pleated bags, with nickel or bronze frames, finished with a stone-set clasp, fitted, and lined with Dresden silk; others are small, but made in the full pouch pocket style that has been one of the chief features of the bags sold late this spring and early this summer. Black, gray, putty color, blue and tan—almost any of the staple colored suits can be matched in this lot.

Crepe de Chine Matinees $3.95

These are what the French call "sacques"—the charming, short, negligee that is worn in the morning with some lovely silken petticoat, by women who breakfast in their own rooms.

They are light blue, pink and lavender, trimmed with an edging of Valenciennes lace, and with lace used, sometimes as revering is used, to hold the parts together.

A New Line of Underclothes at 69c

We've been trying to tell you, from time to time, of the ideal Basement we have in mind; how we try to meet your taste for simple styles, and good quality in the way you are always hoping it will be met.

These underclothes at 69c are an example of the best we believe it possible to do at this price. The line includes everything—night gowns, envelope chemises, combinations (drawers and corset covers,) all of them generously cut.

The long-cloth is not the finest—but it is remarkably good at the price. The laces are good German and French Valenciennes. The styles are simple—the making good; not fine, mind you, but thoroughly good.

The result is: Underclothes that look much more than their price; that satisfy the taste, and the pocketbook at the same time.

He is accused of passing about $150 worth of bad checks in Los Angeles and as many in some of the beach towns.

The prisoner is said to have had little trouble in securing the money from merchants as he represented himself as his brother, who holds a responsible position with a big automobile concern.

LOCAL BANKERS HONORED.

Los Angeles bankers played a prominent part in the convention of the American Institute of Banking at San Francisco last week. George Carlisle, of the German-American Trust & Savings Bank was appointed a member of the credentials committee and addresses were made by E. G. McWilliam and F. C. Bold. Among others present from this city were C. W. Prollius of the National Bank of California, F. A. Ruenitz of the Farmers and Merchants' and L. W. Ely of the First National Bank.

WRITES OF INDIAN RAIDS.

Americans Killed near Los Noches, Mexico, Declares Wireless Operator on Coasting Schooner.

Details of an Indian raid and the killing of four Americans near Los Noches, Mexico, are contained in a letter received yesterday by John J. McQuaid of this city from his grandson, John Frank McQuaid, who is a wireless operator on a schooner plying between West Coast ports. The letter also tells of the presence of the United States gunboat Denver at Topolobampo, to protect the American colony of about 100 persons at Los Noches.

Mules now draw what few cars are left on the Kansas City, Mexico and Oriental Railroad, the letter says, because the factionalists have seized the locomotives. They have also burned most of the cars. The railroad's terminal is at Topolobampo.

Young McQuaid, whose ship is the Oregon, declares he is on board with three other Americans, all in fear of the Mexican crew, that has exhibited signs of violence. At the time he wrote, July 31, the craft was lying at Playa de Colorado.

About 100 new Fisk and Castle trimmed hats at $10.00

These very wonderful hats came to us as a "thank you" for the thousands of dollars' worth of orders we have given these famous millinery houses in the past!

The fact that these hats came to us so that we can sell them at $10 is little short of remarkable, for at this season of the year the houses of Fisk and Castle find themselves hard put to it to turn out enough hats for their regular trade at regular prices.

Besides the four very striking models which we have illustrated, there are others in quaint little turban, back scoop, and sailor effects. They're all of the finest Lyon's silk velvet—each one trimmed in a strikingly different way—each one as becoming as can be!

And besides these very wonderful hats which we're going to feature at $10—there will also be ready hundreds of other new hats at $5—at $7.50—$12.50 and $15.00. You'll find much that will be of interest to you, even though you're not yet ready to buy your new hat.

Some new crepe de chine blouses will be underpriced $3.95

If one of the blouses went to you this morning with this advertisement, it would not be necessary for us to tell you that they were underpriced —you couldn't help but see that $3.95 is a very low price for such heavy crepe de chine waists as these—

These waists are made with neat box plaited fronts, with convertible collars, with full length sleeves and with self loops and neat wash buttons. They come in a full range of sizes up to 46 in both white and flesh!

Rich new blouses of silk crepe and lace $5.00

It's a pity that there isn't room in this advertisement to give an adequate description of these delightful new waists which we're going to put forward Monday at $5—and yet it's doubtful even if we took a whole page, if we could describe these waists so that you would imagine them as being as attractive as they really are. There are about a score of different styles—each one, it seems a little prettier than the others. All of them exceptional values at $5.00.

NATURALLY QUARRELSOME.

The greatest favor one can do some men is to afford them the cause of quarrel. These fellows have such dispositions that they are never at peace unless they have something to fight about. Such as these were probably the inspiration of the recall applied to the commissioners of suburban towns.

DAYLIGHT IN.

Naturally an opening will let in the daylight. Russia cannot help receiving many foreign impressions during this war that will result in mental expansion after the war. At the same time, even a Russian who is seeking the light may be demure to the advantages of forty-two centimeter culture though it be spelled with a "k."

THE FUTURE OF POLAND.

Czar Nicholas, having been expelled from Poland, is now willing to grant to that country the national autonomy which it contended for in vain for many weary years. It is up to Germany to say whether the dream of Kosciusko shall find fulfillment and Poland assume a separate station among the powers of Europe, or whether she shall simply exchange Nicholas for Wilhelm as a ruler.

TWO AT ONCE.

"It never rains but it pours." Ask Los Angeles, not Galveston. Here we have been waiting for weeks for some big road show and suddenly we have precipitated upon us on the same opening night William H. Crane and a big company of stars at one theater and Mrs. Patrick Campbell in a new Shaw play at another big house. Well, none of us are in danger of mental indigestion, however much the vision may be gorged. Both "The New Henrietta" and "Pygmalion" are intended to entertain us and neither was designed to make us think.

SELF-DIVORCEMENT.

There are two kinds of outlaws, those who are wanted and those who are not wanted, and the undesired are saddest in their plight. There is the man who leaves home because he is wanted too much, and the man who leaves because he is not wanted at all. The one is wanted by the wrong people and the other is not wanted by the right ones. The proposition is simple and therefore never solved. It is merely a question of every man being in his own place, for it is not within the mandates of universal law that an inherent can be contested.

SULPHATE OR SULPHIDE.

Another sad case of accidental poisoning in Los Angeles has again demonstrated the carelessness of the public in handling death potions. On this occasion the change of three letters in the name of two chemicals caused a deadly poison to be inadvertently substituted for a harmless drug. Barium sulphate is safe, barium sulphide is fatal, and the misreading of a prescription changed sulphate into sulphide; turned healing into death.

For the sake of chemical classification the names barium sulphate and barium sulphide no doubt accurately describe the two different salts of this metal, but for filling prescriptions, where life and death are in the scale, the two definitions are too nearly alike, and sulphate might too easily be misinterpreted as sulphide. No deadly poison should be differentiated from a harmless drug in a written prescription by the change of three letters. In the dispensary all poisons should have clear and distinct names that cannot be confounded by the most careless scribe or reader for an innocent remedy, however closely the two may be connected chemically. Human life is too precious to be staked on three small letters in the alphabet.

ALMOST NO TIN!

In a recent number of the Science Conspectus, published by the Society of Arts of the Massachusetts Institute of Tecnology, reference is made to the fact that the United States uses nearly half of the world's production of tin, yet mines practically none.

"This question of tin," the article states, "is a very serious matter for the United States. One hundred million pounds of tin, equivalent to about $40,000,000, is needed annually and must be purchased from foreign producers. There are no prospects, visible as yet, of domestic production of the metal. This granted, the most important problems relate to control of foreign deposits by Americans; domestic smelting of foreign ores, and possible recovery of tin once used." It is further pointed out that, broadly speaking, the United States is wholly dependent for its tin supply upon the production of the Federated Malay States and Bolivia.

A fortune awaits the inventor who shall discover a cheap process for recovering the tin in the cans which in countless numbers adorn rubbish heaps and dumps. To collect these cans is, of course, a comparatively easy matter, but to make use of the tin is the real problem, for thus far it has been possible to recover this tin only by a difficult and expensive process. That is because so much organic matter and grease usually adhere to these used cans. If someone could discover a cheap and simple process of recovery it would enable the United States to depend upon itself rather than upon foreign countries for a considerable portion of its tin supply.

AN INCONSISTENT CONCLUSION.

The (American branch) League to Enforce Peace, of which William Howard Taft is president, was organized in Philadelphia June 17 to 19. At the meeting three New England States, three Middle States, eight Southern States, six Western States and one Pacific State (California) were represented and twenty-seven States had no representatives.

The league adopted these proposals:

We believe it to be desirable for the United States to join a league of nations binding the signatories to the following:

First. All justiciable questions arising between the signatory powers, not settled by negotiation, shall, subject to the limitations of treaties, be submitted to a judicial tribunal for hearing and judgment, both upon the merits and upon any issue as to its jurisdiction of the question.

Second. All other questions arising between the signatories, and not settled by negotiation, shall be submitted to a council of conciliation for hearing, consideration and recommendation.

Third. The signatory powers shall jointly use forthwith both their economic and military forces against any one of their number that goes to war, or commits acts of hostility, against another of the signatories before any question arising shall be submitted as provided in the foregoing.

Fourth. Conferences between the signatory powers shall be held from time to time to formulate and codify rules of international law, which, unless some signatory shall signify its dissent within a stated period, shall thereafter govern in the decisions of the judicial tribunal mentioned in Article One.

This is in substance and in detail the plan formulated and presented by The Times previous to the Philadelphia meeting here referred to.

Ex-President Taft stated the central idea of the league as follows:

"All the world is interested in preventing war in any part of the world. Neutrals are so subject to loss, to injury and to violation of their rights that they have a direct interest in preventing war, and so direct is their interest that we may well hope that international law may advance to the point of developing that interest into an international right to be consulted before war begins between neighbors. The central basis of the plan which we respectfully recommend to the authorities who shall represent our government in any world conference that will necessarily follow the peace is that the great powers of the world be invited to form a League of Peace, which shall embody in the covenant that binds its members the principle just announced, to wit, that every member of that league has a right to be consulted before war shall be perpetrated between any two members of the league; or to put it another way, that the whole league shall use its entire power to require any member of the league that wishes to fight any other member of the league to submit the issue upon which that member desires to go to war to a machinery for its peaceful settlement before it does go to war."

In a circular issued by the officers of the league after its adjournment the following strange statement is made:

"It is not proposed finally to restrain nations from going to war, if they are determined to do so, nor to bind them to comply with any decision a judicial tribunal or a council of conciliation may make; but merely that before they resort to arms, thereby disturbing the social fabric and the order of the whole world, and inflicting irreparable injury upon neutrals, they shall state their case before an impartial body and before the world, and give time to have it considered on its merits."

As the sole object of the league is to promote and, if necessary, enforce peace among the nations which shall create a "government of governments," it is an abandonment of its fundamental principle to say that "it is not proposed finally to restrain nations from going to war, if they are determined to do so, nor to bind them to comply with any decision a judicial tribunal or a council of conciliation may make." It is as if a legislature were to make its statutes recommendatory instead of mandatory and obligatory. It is as if a court were to say: "We strongly urge the defendant not to cut down the trees in the plaintiff's front yard, but if he is determined to do so, we will not restrain him."

The League to Enforce Peace will have either to alter its declared fundamental principles or recall its supplementary modification of them.

We doubt whether the foregoing supplementary declaration fully accords with the views of ex-President Taft, who is known to stand for something stronger than a rope of sand.

THE FUTURE OF MEXICO.

Almost every South American republic has at some period of its history passed out of revolution into evolution, and, after years of anarchy and inconceivable destruction of life and property, the hour seems at hand when Mexico, assisted by her Latin American neighbors and friends, and by the United States, may enter upon a new career of peace, order and prosperity.

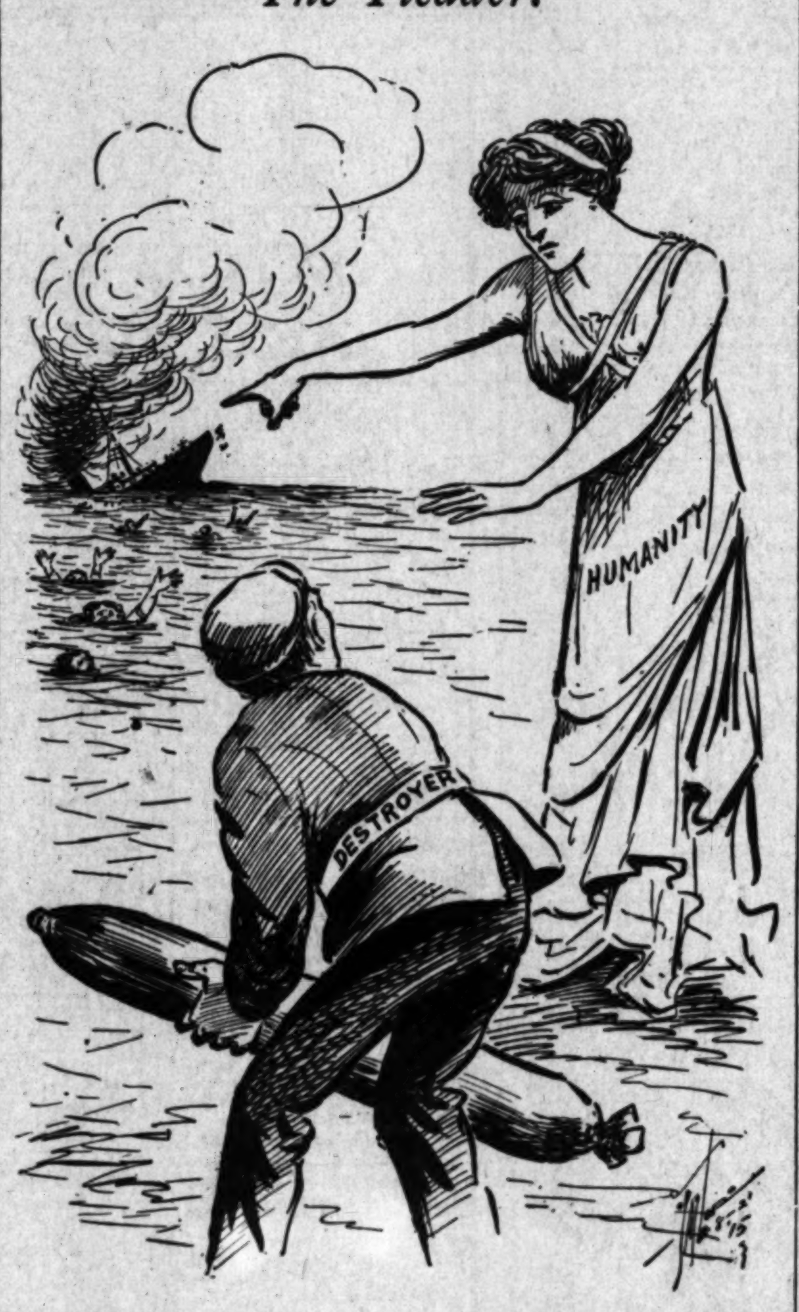
If Carranza shall participate in the coming conference of representatives of the warring factions, and that conference shall, as is hoped, result in providing for a free, full and fair election, and the choice, by a majority of the Mexican people, of an administration in Mexico City "sincerely committed to government in the interests of the many instead of the few, and hostile to all enemies of liberty, political, economic or ecclesiastical, it will," as an eastern writer says, "be necessary for the outside government or governments aiding in bringing this result to pass, to so order their acts of state as to conserve the newly-established government."

The enemies of the new government must be debarred from supplies of arms from any quarter. Its credit must be aided in financial centers. In a variety of ways, by loan of expert advisers in the fields of education, agriculture and construction of irrigation and reclamation plants, the United States could give practical aid of inestimable value during the process of reconstruction which awaits the new government.

Confiscation of railways, mines, oil and agricultural lands, which have been since the fall of Madero decreed by any of the revolutionary leaders temporarily in power, will need to be rescinded, whether such confiscation was without authority of law or was the result of the inability of the owners to comply with law in consequence of disturbed conditions.

The agricultural and mineral resources of Mexico offer a most inviting field to both capital and labor. When these shall be liberated from the constrictive clutch of warring factions our sister republic will progress with leaps and bounds. If the warring factions shall reject the good offices of the six Latin American nations and the United States and elect to pursue a career of anarchy and murder it will amaze and disappoint the world.

The Pleader.



AFTER THE PENNIES.

Mr. Asquith and Mr. Bonar Law, having reached for all the pounds and all the shillings in sight, are now reaching after the pence. They have issued a lengthy circular letter to all employers of labor in Great Britain urging them to "facilitate" investment in the war loan by employees.

The process of "facilitation" is not to include the bringing of "undue pressure" to bear upon wage workers. Certainly not. There should be no variation of trade uses and customs. All that is asked is that the employers shall grant to their employees "adequate facilities" for placing a portion of their earnings in the yawning mouth of the British Lion.

The employers in larger establishments are urged to open an office adjacent to the one in which work people receive their pay, and thus employees would have the opportunity of buying government vouchers while they had money actually with them. It is not intimated that anything would happen to those unpatriotic and thirsty employees who preferred an opportunity to buy beer to an opportunity to aid in the glorious work of shooting Germans—still their illiberality might result in their losing their jobs. Quien sabe?

There are 400,000 employers in Great Britain with over five employees each. If these 2,000,000 workers earn but $25 per month each, that would be $50,000,000, and one-tenth of that sum invested in the war loan would place $5,000,000 per month in the government treasury, and that would buy a lot of shrapnel and other material for the extermination of Germans and Austrians.

The stock issued to the workmen in exchange for their contributions will bear a high rate of interest and will be redeemed at its face value in thirty years. Surely the hand workers of England will take their country's note due in thirty years for their savings. What a comfort it will be to the workman to reflect that every tenth blow of his hammer and every tenth scrape of his hoe will help to slay or maim a German.

HUMAN SACRIFICE.

Leo Frank was offered as a human sacrifice to mad mob righteousness. Once more our Southern States are giving us a grewsome exhibition of our enlightened achievement in civilization.

Not a single European newspaper will miss this tasty bit of American news. It will be cabled over with luscious detail, like last week's Mississippi picnic, when two negroes were publicly hanged while the citizens made merry and feasted at the foot of the gallows; like the Texas orgy of recent memory when slow-burning was the victim's happy portion; like the Thaw trial and such tit-bits of news which are regarded as peculiarly characteristic of our free democracy. Can we wonder that Europe seems a little lacking in respect for us sometimes? Nothing wounds the pride of a traveling American more than this sort of home news in foreign papers, yet there always seems enough and to spare of it, thanks to our Southern States and their enlightened, well-balanced, calm methods of meting out justice to an erring fellow-man.

The South would have us believe that they suffer from conditions from which the rest of the country is immune and that nothing but an occasional orgy of human sacrifice in the name of public morality can deter the colored brother from sin; a contention that doesn't hold water, for hundreds of thousands of white men manage to live in decent harmony and law-abiding justice with colored men the world over.

The fact is communities get the lynching habit and cultivate an appetite for bloody, mob-righteous revenge. Not alone are negroes their victims; the white man is equally acceptable when the mood is on. Mob law cannot and does not dispense justice under any circumstances, and this sort of drunken righteousness is far more revolting than any amount of common wrong-doing.

For our national honor's sake it is time the country condemned with no uncertain reprimand the prevailing taste for lawless revenge and human sacrifice. Any town guilty of overriding the law in this way should be disfranchised for a term of years and made to feel the shame of its lack of self-control. Its courts should be allowed to try no cases during the disfranchised period, since the people cannot be relied upon to abide by the judgment of their courts. Some such national protest and action is due to the rest of the people of the United States which succeed in bearing themselves with dignity, self-control and justice, tempered with mercy. As it is, a few scattered mad mobs are able to give the whole country a bad name, to shamefully misrepresent us as a nation to the world.

A pretty spectacle of ridicule we make of ourselves with a women's peace movement glibly whining for peace and a higher civilization in one city and a howling mob wallowing in an orgy of human slaughter in the sacred cause of righteousness in another.

DEMORALIZING THE HEN.

We are shocked to read that a French scientific poultry raiser claims to have doubled the production of eggs by feeding hens bread soaked in wine.

He admits that it befuddles them somewhat, but without any injurious effects. In fact, he appears to have pursued the theory that stupid femininity is the most prolific; that an intellect is apt to retard reproduction of the species, even as is urged against the college girl.

But can we permit such an improper remedy, even in so good a cause? What have our prohibitionists to say about it? Dare honorable Californians with enterprising poultry ambitions morally permit themselves to test the French theory? Is it not the plain duty of our noble democracy to give the hens every assistance to improve their mental clarity, even to the detriment of egg production?

It is but another aspect of the persistent feminist question. Must we consider the good of the community or the good of the individual? Are we under a moral obligation to foster the precocity of hens and go egg-hungry, or is the mental development of the hen to be sacrificed to the human stomach? If at this stage we denied education to women or insisted upon an antidote on the evidence that educated women have less children, would civilization stand for it, even with warrior statesmen crying out for more babies?

Presumably the domestic hen was becoming a feminist. Presumably she had acquired an intelligence that was proving too knowing. She was cultivating a mind with too egotistic a penchant for minding its own business. And a little bread soaked in wine proved an efficient antidote. Are the eugenists prepared to recommend that we feed our college girls with a little bread soaked in wine? No, they would not. Then does not humanity owe the feathered world a like protection? Is not the hen entitled to her mental development? We repeat we are shocked that this cruel materialistic thesis should have come out of enlightened, progressive France. But we recall that there "Chanticleer" was born.

WITH MEXICO ON OUR HANDS

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES]

BY ALBERT BUSHNELL HART,

Professor of Government, Harvard University.

WARSHIPS are again dispatched to Vera Cruz. If men are landed from those ships there will be a fight. A fight will almost inevitably result in our occupation of that port. Inasmuch as the previous occupation of 1913 did not pacify Mexico and did not relieve the sufferings and losses by American citizens in Mexico, a second landing cannot be expected to settle the trouble. To be effective it must be followed by sending a considerable number of troops to the City of Mexico. A mere military threat had some effect the first time. If repeated in about the same form nobody minds it. Mexico is like an opium fiend; requires a stronger and stronger dose every time in order to affect it.

The time has come to face the condition of Mexico and the part which the United States should take. The Diaz government, after about thirty years of apparent success, broke down in 1911 because, whatever its merits, it was founded upon military force and was sustained by silencing, banishing or executing the leaders who from time to time tried to find some other basis of government. In March, 1911, 30,000 United States troops were sent to Texas, and troubles speedily occurred because the Mexicans insisted on fighting out their battles within a few hundred yards of the American border and allowed their bullets to find targets inside the United States. After four years and a half American troops are still on the border and Mexican bullets still occasionally wing their way across the line.

Civil war has gone on steadily in Mexico, which has seen four military dictators in four years—Madero, Huerta, Villa and Carranza. Some American miners and planters have managed to keep going throughout that time by paying heavy taxes and requisitions; many have been forced to leave the country; some have been killed. There is no peace, no order, no fixed government, nobody to whom outside nations can appeal. It is asserted that the peons are still putting in crops and that more land is under cultivation than ever. Thousands of peons, however, occupy only the land necessary for their shallow graves; for it has been a bloody, desperate, murderous civil war in which the shooting of helpless prisoners is one of the milder crimes.

In a similar period of anarchy in Mexico fifty-four years ago English, Spanish and French troops landed at Vera Cruz, and the French marched up and took the capital. By common consent, however, the European powers held off this time and looked to the United States to bring order out of chaos, to relieve their citizens from the intolerable sufferings of the war and to give them a chance to put in their claims for indemnity. Three years they waited and then were engulfed in a war of their own which puts it quite out of the question to take an armed part in American disturbances.

The United States, therefore, is carrying the triple burden of protecting foreigners in Mexico, protecting Americans and putting an end to the big fire inside the house of our next-door neighbor. So far it has made no advance. We are no farther along than four years ago. All the promises of Mexican statesmen have gone for nothing because there is no Mexican statesman who is obeyed by the whole country. Nobody can secure peace so long as there is a strong military chieftain who wants to fight. Mexicans are doing exactly what the Germans and Russians and English and French are doing. They are killing and devastating without any very clear notion of how they are going to stop the fracas.

The only power in the world that has the power and opportunity to force peace upon Mexico is the United States. Yet how force it? Able military authorities, including some who have been in command on the border, have advised that it would take not less than 200,000 men to break up the military resistance in Mexico, and some of them believe that, if the army were once in, it could never be withdrawn without the whole country collapsing again.

An invasion of Mexico means at the very least the holding of that country for years as a dependency. Meantime every effort would be made to induce the Mexicans to follow the Cubans in forming a democratic type of government. The best that can be hoped is that the Mexicans five years hence may be in about the same frame of mind as the Filipinos, who are compelled to keep order, are provided with an honest and competent government, and yet are willing at any moment to shake off the government imposed upon them. The worse that can be expected is a guerrilla war of four or five years, like the two years in the Phillipine Islands, in which thousands of brave American boys must perish in order to give peace and good government to 15,000,000 people who do not want it.

The United States now has on its hands Cuba, Santo Domingo and apparently Haiti. Treaties are pending which would mean the forced annexation of two of the five Central American powers. It looks as though President Garfield's remark might come true that an isthmus canal would become a part of "the coast line of the United States."

Old Billy Bubble is hunting trouble, he's always in a sweat; he wants to borrow a bunch of sorrow—an easy thing to get. If things are pleasant enough at present, he knows that grief's in store; if days are sunny, he'll bet good money that torrents soon will pour. If things are humming, old Bill's up-coming, with prophecies of gloom. "There'll be a panic," he says, "titanic, and that will end the boom." When crops are growing, and men are crowing, o'er promise of big yields, "the hail will hit 'em," says Bill, "and git 'em, or cyclones sweep the fields." Old Billy tires us when he desires us to hearken to his rede, for foolish whining and vain repining are not what people need. They are not spoiling to go a-toiling in mines where gloom is dug; they'd rather tarry with chaps who carry the cheerful type of mug. The doleful speaker, the trouble seeker, becomes a public pest; if you are searching where trouble's perching, forsake the foolish quest.

Inspection Tour.

CUSTOMS CHIEF LAUDS HARBOR.

[illegible] Small Duties to Wipe Out Deficit.

[illegible] M. Halstead, chief of the customs division of the United States Treasury Department, here on a tour of inspection of this district, discharged an exclamation and an interrogation point yesterday in a brief interview.

The exclamation pointed with pride to the record made by the customs service during the Wilson administration; the interrogation point was the question what the said administration is going to do about the financial situation unless the tariff duties are changed. Mr. Halstead admitted that he does not know how the appropriations made by the recent Congress are to be paid, or the overhead expenses of the government are to be met unless something radical is done.

Being a Dane, born and raised in the State of Washington, he is gifted in the lore of occult, and when asked what the Wilson administration would have done if it had not been for the war that has accelerated all lines of business having to do with the furnishing of war material, Mr. Halstead answered the question like [illegible], by asking another.

"Suppose I had never been married, would I have been the father of children?" he inquired quizzically, his face beaming with laughter. "I don't know," he acknowledged.

On the subject of the improvement in the customs department of the [illegible] Mr. Halstead said: "In the past two years there has been a reduction of $1,200,000 in the running expenses of the customs division, brought about by the lopping off of a lot of the dead-wood that accumulated during previous administrations, and a close running to schedule in the matter of all expenses connected with the department.

"Absolute civil service prevails throughout the customs bureau, and although the collectors are political appointees, politics as it is understood cuts no figure in the employment of the men under the collectors."

"How are the customs receipts coming, and in your opinion has the war contributed to the present situation—the diminution of the public revenues?" was asked Mr. Halstead.

RECEIPTS GOING DOWN.

"The receipts are going down, down, and the war is at the bottom of the trouble. The imports from the [illegible] countries engaged in war, have dropped to nothing. It is true that with the increase in the scope of the free list, in normal times, the receipts would be smaller than under the [illegible] tariff law, but the imports have almost disappeared.

"Under the provisions of the Underwood tariff law, sugar will go on the free list on May 1, next, and it will be necessary for Congress to raise [illegible],000,000 from some other source. The sugar harvest begins in [illegible] and runs until July, and refiners will be most likely to house their product until after it goes on the free list.

"But that will not reduce the cost of sugar to the ultimate consumer, if the lessons of the past are of any value. There has been a lot of talk about the cost of the poor man's breakfast being reduced, but it has been just as in the past when the duty has been removed from certain articles. Coffee has been on the free list, and that is supposed to be a part of the poor man's breakfast, yet there has been no substantial reduction in the price of coffee. The average cost of importing coffee in this country is [illegible] to 11 cents a pound, yet the retail price is about 33 cents per pound. The poor man pays the difference and the extra profit goes to the importer.

"The same as to tea. That belongs to the poor man's breakfast, or at least on his table. It is on the free list and the price is just about the same as when a duty was laid on the importation of tea. A small tax on coffee and tea would furnish revenue for the rehabilitation of the [illegible] revenues. The same condition exists in relation to many other articles where a small tax would place [illegible] out of trouble the finances of the country.

ABNORMAL CONDITIONS.

"I believe that under normal conditions the Underwood tariff law, supplemented by the income and special taxes, would have furnished enough revenue for the uses of the government, but abnormal conditions are in evidence, and help must come from somewhere. A tax of 1 cent a pound on crude rubber would produce millions of dollars, and increase the price of automobile tires not to exceed 90 cents on account of the added duty. The man with enough money to pay [illegible] for tires ought not to object if the price was boosted 90 cents by the added duty.

"There are scores of articles where a duty or a small addition to that provided by the provisions of the present law would provide millions of dollars for the public coffers, and the cost to the consumer be [illegible], for the history of tariff legislation comes mighty near proving that to remove the duty does not materially reduce the cost of the article.

"The coffee export duty in Brazil furnishes a large per cent. of the revenue necessary to conduct the affairs of that country, yet it comes into our ports free of duty, and prices are just about the figure that obtained when a duty was levied."

PREDICTS HARBOR GROWTH.

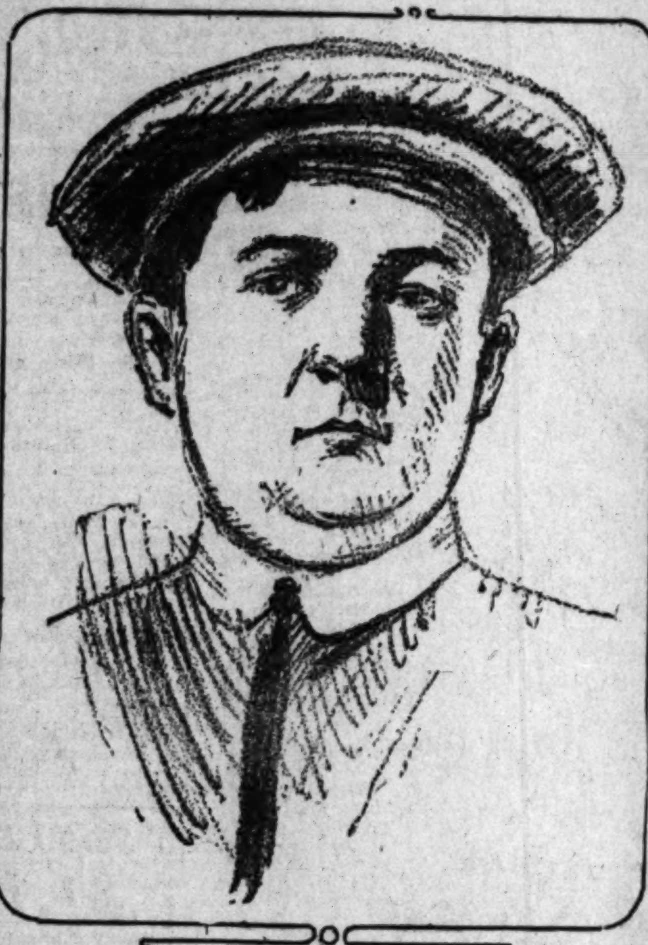
Mr. Halstead was enthusiastic about the growth of trade at the local harbor. He said that the tonnage of vessels docking at San Pedro is more than [illegible] what it was a year ago, and all indications point to a still greater development.

The Panama Canal, in his opinion, will be a trade bringer to the Pacific Coast, and he was delighted with what he had seen in connection with the manner of handling government business in the local district.

He referred to the record made by customs officers in the arrest of smugglers along the Mexican border, and said: "Why, only today the collector has received dispatches indicating that more than [illegible] worth of this contraband has been captured. When it is understood that it is necessary to watch [illegible] of miles of desert and mountain to catch violators of the law the record is something to be proud of." He said more smugglers are caught here than in the rest of the country.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Halstead, in company with Collector Elliott, left for San Diego, where they will spend a part of today, from there traveling by automobile to Tia Juana, Campo, Andrade, Calexico and other points along the border. It is the first trip of the head of the customs service to the local district, and he is anxious to acquaint himself with conditions prevailing from Los Angeles Harbor to the Mexican line. He has been in the customs service twelve years.

Alleged Swindler of Pasadena Bank.



F. A. Hengert,

Under arrest in El Paso and about to be brought back. Sketched from one of his most recent photographs taken while he was on an outing.

EXTEND TRADE TO SOUTH AMERICA.

LOCAL TRADING COMPANY IS NOW SENDING TWO STEAMERS MONTHLY.

Extending Los Angeles' trade supremacy to Guatemala and Nicaragua, the Mexican National Trading Company started bi-monthly steamer service yesterday between this port and Mazatlan, San Blas, Manzanilla, Acapulco, Salina Cruz, San Jose del Republic, Acijutla, La Union, La Libertad and Corinto.

The first boat to sail, the San Ramon, carried 600 tons of freight and fifty-three passengers. It will be followed in two weeks by the Fairhaven, which was formerly known as the Robert Dollar, and later by the steamship Idalgo. The trip to Corinto, which is the principal port of Nicaragua, and back again will take about forty days.

Senor Ferrer, formerly of San Jose de Guatemala, but now of San Francisco, is president of the company. He spent the past week in this city, and named C. P. Visel, with offices in the Ferguson Building, as agent for the company. The other officers of the company are: J. P. Hays, San Francisco, vice-president, and James R. Cochran, San Francisco, secretary.

This service opens a wide field for Los Angeles industry. The west coast from Nicaragua north has money to spend. Contrary to the prevalent opinion the balance of trade has been and is tremendously against the United States. They are consistent shippers of a heavy tonnage of beans, coffee, sisal (hemp,) rubber, garbanzas, cocoanuts, coquatos nuts, vegetable oils, early fruits and vegetables, gold, silver, copper matte, commercial ores minerals and dye stuffs.

These commodities are all sold for gold on a United States gold currency basis and hence the shipping points are plentifully supplied with money. Los Angeles is selling these points a few staples in dry goods, groceries, hardware and sporting goods and in the ratio of the trade is receiving about one dollar's worth of business for about every $28 expended. The present move will serve to open opportunities for Los Angeles wholesalers to expand into a volume of business that is theirs by territorial rights.

OPIUM SMUGGLERS ACTIVE.

Much Contraband Seized and Many Arrests Made near Boundary line by Deputy Customs Collectors.

The reports made to the Collector of Customs yesterday indicate that smugglers of smoking opium have been unusually active the past few days, more than $6000 worth of the stuff having been captured in this city and at various points near the Mexican boundary line.

Deputy Collectors Shreves and Beach and Inspector Chaffin picked up G. E. Elliott and H. Millar, on the Otay Mesa, near Tia Juana, and in their possession were found thirty-seven cans.

Later Deputy Collector Shreves and Inspector Chaffin, arrested Manuel Perez and Jose Garcia with fifty-seven cans. These men were lodged in the San Diego County Jail.

In the vicinity of Calexico, mounted Inspectors W. T. Harris and Fred Buck, took two men, McGee and Dice into custody, with sixty-five cans of smoking opium. They were found on the El Centro stage, and the driver Joe Deland, was picked up to tell what he knew about the load the men were conveying out of the country. These three are in the County Jail at El Centro.

Yesterday, Louis Daigle, arrested by the city police, with twenty-five cans of opium in his possession, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Williams, and held in $2500 bond for the action of the Federal grand jury.

Bank Robberies.

get quite $8000. He denied a report that $1800 had been taken under similar circumstances a short time before.

The Security National, as well as nearly every other important bank in the country is well insured against loss in any way and as a result was well protected in this instance. The bank is not the loser.

Pinkerton detectives know a great deal more about the case than they felt at liberty to tell yesterday. "These are private matters," one of them declared, "and we can not talk about them. The only thing I will say is there is nothing new in the case. Of course we never forget any robbery, and something may develop at any time."

PASADENA SWINDLE.

The arrest of F. A. Hengert in El Paso upon instructions from the local Pinkerton office and Sheriff Cline is believed to have brought to an end the wholesale operations of one of the smoothest bank and labor swindlers in the country. He is charged specifically with passing a fictitious check for $731, the complaint having been sworn to yesterday by H. L. Mouat, cashier of the Union National Bank of Pasadena. According to Mr. Mouat, the bank has sustained a loss of approximately $2500 through Hengert's swindles.

Hengert is expected to resist extradition and for that reason the necessary papers were issued yesterday and an officer started for El Paso prepared to bring the prisoner back in any event.

Dispatches from El Paso last night were to the effect that H. A. Hingert—as he gives his name there—has offered to return and face the charges. The Los Angeles authorities do not believe everything he says.

Deputy Sheriff Manning has been working on the case from the Sheriff's office and has been assisted by Pinkerton men. The latter have information purporting to show that Hengert once lived in New Orleans under another name, and an investigation is being made of some of his financial transactions there.

In addition to the alleged bank swindle Hengert, according to the authorities, owes numerous bills in Pasadena, Long Beach, San Diego and Los Angeles. It is understood they aggregate more than $5000. For more than a month the State Labor Bureau has been after the man in an endeavor to induce him to settle some claims.

Hengert is a painter and decorator. He possesses a winning personality, is a convincing conversationalist, and in many circles in Southern California was considered a good fellow and a good spender.

HIS MANIPULATIONS.

He is said to have had contracts for decorating and painting a church in Pasadena and also in Long Beach. When he took the Crown City job he is reported to have gone to the Union National Bank with excellent recommendations. He deposited about $1500 and made a good impression.

His work on the churches progressed and he made frequent calls at the bank. There was nothing suspicious about his transactions and he was allowed substantial credit. When checks written by him on a San Diego and a National City bank were presented they were cashed without question.

What trouble the contractor was having with the men he employed and those from whom he made purchases the bank did not know, and he was able to divert suspicion until the 7th inst., when he left the city. He sent a telegram to the Pasadena bank stating he would be back in a day or so, that he had been called to San Bernardino on business. Others received similar telegrams.

When the detectives got on Hengert's trail they discovered he had bought tickets to El Paso for himself, wife and child, having been traced by his baggage. The authorities there were instructed to look for him. They found him without trouble.

Before departing from Southern California Hengert is alleged to have told a former employee he was going to New York. To others he said he had some German bonds he wanted to dispose of and had a prospective purchaser in San Bernardino. One of the men who states he was stung by the decorator says the latter told him the bond story too.

Hengert is better known in San Diego than he is here or in Pasadena. He conducted a large business at No. 810 F Street, San Diego but lived at Chula Vista.

While in Pasadena Hengert met many of the wealthy men and spent considerable time at the golf clubs.

Police detectives ran down many clews yesterday but were unable to get anything tangible in the investigation of the midday robbery of the Boyle Heights branch of the Home Savings Bank. Last night they declared the only chance of apprehending the three bandits lies in the possibility of one of their countrymen "squealing" on them—a very remote chance.

Late yesterday it was reported that a suspicious looking Greek appeared in another local bank a few days ago and that he answers the description given of one of the fugitive bandits. The man's name is known and has been turned over to the police.

STATE OFFICIAL SNAPS THE WHIP.

DOESN'T LIKE WAY COUNTY AUDITOR'S OFFICE IS RUN.

The State Board of Control, through the whip-lashing Jack Neylan, doesn't like the manner in which County Auditor Lewis runs his office. As a substitute for the present method of running things, a veiled suggestion received by the Board of Supervisors yesterday indicates that the chairman of the State Board would like to dictate the personnel of the office here.

The letter complains that the present chief accountant in the office doesn't know enough about the new system to be installed uniformly over the State, and should be supplanted with a more experienced man. Albeit the auditor's office has received encomiums from the Grand Jury, from the Supervisors and others upon the orderly and efficient manner in which it is being conducted, this doesn't appear to satisfy the State Board of Control.

The State Board takes the position that the chief accountant is a pivotal position around which the new system must rotate and unless a man happens to be a "fan" for the new system it may die for want of his enthusiasm for it.

Southern Pacific Railroad
"The Road of a Thousand Wonders"

The next special excursion to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition under the management of The Times will leave Los Angeles Sunday evening, September 12. The price of ticket, which includes all necessary expense of travel, Pullman berths, all meals from the time of leaving until the return to this city, hotel accommodations and admissions to the Fair Grounds is

The Tower of Jewels, standing at the entrance to the main court, rises to a height of 433 feet. It is an imposing building of grace and strength and it is beautifully decked with thousands of glittering jewels. The Tower of Jewels divides the large gardens on the main promenade of the Exposition and the large central court, appropriately named the Court of the Universe, which is said to be the climax of architectural skill ever consummated at any other time or place. The Tower of Jewels is but one of the many interesting and beautiful buildings to be seen at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

Accommodations are now being made for the fourth special Times party to the Fair. The popularity of these excursions continues, and already one-half the members to go on the next trip have made their reservations. It is safe to state that every accommodation will be reserved within the next few days. The party is limited in number, therefore any person who desires to secure passage and accommodations on the September tour should act promptly and call at in advanced sociology in Columbia University.

"The county authorities have taken a long step forward in their reorganization plans for county charitable work," said County Superintendent of Charities Martin in discussing the naming of Mr. Williams as director of outdoor relief.

An interesting report on inmate records for the Los Angeles County Farm for the five-year period ending June 30, 1915, was issued yesterday by Mr. Martin. It shows the average age at admittance as 63 years and that eighty-one per cent. of those admitted are men.

Norway and China contribute the lowest percentage of inmates, while the United States leads the list, with fifty-five per cent., followed by the British Empire, with twenty-three per cent., Germany, eight per cent., and Mexico, France and Sweden, with slightly under two per cent. each. On the social state side, single blessedness gets a bad eye. That state contributes forty-three per cent. of the inmates, followed by the widowed, forty per cent., the married ten per cent., while the divorced bring up the rear.

Slightly over thirty-eight per cent. of those admitted are mechanics, while the trades contribute thirty-four per cent., unskilled labor, twenty-five per cent., and the professions slightly under two per cent.

IMMENSE PEACH CROP A PROBLEM.

CAREFUL MARKETING WILL BE REQUIRED TO GARNER BEST RETURNS.

The peach crop of the United States is this year a record one, estimates placing it at over 58,000,000 bushels, an increase of nearly ten per cent. over that of last year. It is believed the crop will largely exceed even these record figures.

Many of the large producing areas will have substantially increased yields, in some of which there was a dearth last year, while in the entire country there is only one district—that of Colorado—in which the crop is noticeably shorter than in 1914.,

The Texas yield will be much larger than last year; Oklahoma's will establish a new record; Arkansas and the Missouri territory will show big figures; Georgia will equal last year; new records will be made in West Virginia, Maryland, and Western Pennsylvania; Delaware, New Jersey, and Connecticut yields will be good; Western New York, big; Ohio district and Michigan about the same as last year; the Northwest, with a great increase, may break the record, and California will have fully as many peaches as last year.

As a number of these big producing districts will be marketing at about the same time, the marketing problem involved will be one requiring the most expert attention, in order that distribution may be made to the best advantage and most profitably to the producer.

Last year California produced 64,000,000 pounds of dried peaches in addition to the several million cases of canned fruits put up.

With such a uniformly good crop throughout the country the peach crop is bound to have its effect upon the marketing of many of the California fresh fruit crops. It also opens another channel for the possible use of the new Federal Department of Marketing, which indirectly the past season gave such valuable assistance in the distribution of the Imperial cantaloupe and melon crop.

Great oaks from litle acorns grow. It is likewise true that great fortunes often are made from little advertisements in The Times' "liner' 'section.

THIS IS CERTAINLY HOME BUYING TIME

Not in many years has it been possible to secure such values in good houses as we are now offering; or to buy a house on more lenient terms.

You can now get the house you want for less money than ever before. At whatever price you limit yourself you can now get more home value than ever.

TEN SALES THIS WEEK

We talked in the past of selling a house a day. This week we made ten such transactions. If you will investigate the facts as to why we are selling so many houses

You Will Find That We Are Not Only Giving Best Values, But Class and Distinctiveness

Distinctive because different from the ordinary subdivision. Much more than the mere selling of houses and lots was taken into consideration in planning our tracts. Our restrictions call for elaborate parkings of lawns, palms and trees. The keeping up of these improvements, with the interest taken by the residents in growing of climbing vines and shrubbery, makes our property desirable and always in demand.

THOSE WHO INVESTIGATE BUY

Telephone our Bungalow Department now that you want to know more about the special prices that have recently been made on some of our houses. A representative will be very glad to call in his automobile and show you the houses and quote you prices.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY DOROTHY B. JOHNSTON.

THE City Hall will be visited by many club members tomorrow morning, when Estelle Lawton Lindsey's proposed "tin-plate" (No, not tag) ordinance comes up for a hearing in the City Council.

Members of the Woman's City Club and Friday Morning Club, whose executive boards have voted to stand back of the Councilwoman in her demand that buildings, apartments, hotels and saloons shall have the name and address of the owner above the front door, will be out in numbers.

Mrs. Seward A. Simons, president of the Friday Morning Club, who has been in San Francisco doing the exposition, is expected home today.

Mrs. J. J. Conaty, who went East directly after the close of the club season, has returned from an extensive trip to Chicago and other interesting points. Mrs. Conaty lost a sister while away—the only shadow on the otherwise delightful visit. Mrs. Conaty is an energetic worker in the Woman's City and Friday Morning clubs.

Miss Ella True, prominent club worker, has returned from the northern exposition.

The Ebell Club.

While summer is supposed to be the time when club women have a cessation from activities, this is far from true with the Programme and Printing committees, who must have affairs in splendid running condition by the opening of the club season.

The Ebell Club has just handed to the printers its complete list of committees who will be responsible for the various phases of work during 1915-16. All that now remains is the issuing of the departmental calendars from month to month, which is in charge of the curator, Mrs. C. S. Ward, and her assistant, Miss Laura Paxton. POWER BONDS MAY BE SOLD.

SPECIAL COUNSEL IN NEW YORK TO CLOSE DEAL.

President Betkouski of the City Council and chairman of the Public Service Committee, announced yesterday that prospects are bright for the disposal of the $6,500,000 power bond issue.

"W. B. Mathews, special counsel for the water department, will be in New York next week to close the sale of the bonds," said Mr. Betkouski yesterday. "Before leaving Los Angeles, Mr. Mathews informed the Public Service Commission that he believes the bonds can be sold to good advantage and I believe that the money will be available for use within the next two or three months.

"We have had a long, hard fight to bring about the distribution of aqueduct power and now that prospects for realizing success are bright, I am proud of the part that I have taken in aiding this fight. Despite financial conditions in the East, I believe our bonds should find a ready market for they are backed by the best of security.

"Plans for condemning the Southern California Edison Company's system as a nucleus for the municipal distributing system are ripe and the deal can be completed as soon as we have the proceeds available from the sale of the bonds."

JOKER IS VOID. MUST PAY FOR WATER.

The Pacific Reduction Company was notified by the Board of Public Works yesterday that the city is not obligated to furnish free water for the plant under the contract signed several months ago. This, provided the city can make good, will save large revenues to the water department and will obviate the necessity for constructing a water-cooling plant at the reduction works.

The contract between the city and the Pacific Reduction Company contained a "joker," which at first was interpreted to mean that the city must furnish free water to the company. City Attorney Stephens gave an opinion yesterday to the effect that the water provision is simply mandatory on the city to furnish a reasonable supply of water—at regular rates. It cost the city some $20,000 to extend mains to the company's plant and, for a time, it was believed that the city would have to furnish $50,000 worth of water a year or erect a cooling plant to cut down the amount of water used, but under the City Attorney's ruling, President Handley of the Board of Public Works believes that the reduction company must build a cooling plant at its own expense, besides paying for the water used.

TO FIX RATES. COUNCIL WILL PETITION.

Councilman Roberts will introduce a resolution tomorrow providing for an appeal to the Railroad Commission to fix rates for water charged by all of the remaining private water companies doing business within the city, including recently-annexed territory.

Councilman Roberts announced yesterday that the Public Utilities Committee will recommend that instead of petitioning the Railroad Commission for 5-cent fares to Bairdstown only, the Council ask for a like reduction to the Palms, Farmdale and all other points recently annexed to the city.

Chicago Alderman Calls.

T. O. Wallace, member of the Chicago Board of Aldermen, called on Acting Mayor Betkouski yesterday. The Chicago Alderman is seeking information on telephone regulation to be used in a report to his board. In Chicago, he said, the Bell interests are seeking to buy the franchise of the Independent company, which uses automatic telephones, and the Board of Aldermen has not decided whether to permit the sale.

To Help Excavation.

The Board of Public Works yesterday granted permission to the State Normal School to take soil from the Los Feliz road to be used for grading the school grounds. The soil is to be taken from portions of the road that are soon to be widened and graded.

Property Owners Complain Vainly to City Authorities About Dangerous Nuisance.

An unsanitary condition at Seventh and Irolo streets, declared by property owners a serious menace to the health of the community, has been permitted to exist a long time despite various complaints in writing and by telephone from residents of the affected district. These complaints have been made to the health officer, the Board of Public Works and to the City Engineer's office.

The nuisance is a large sump hole in which water from the streets and the drainage of a large tract of land collect. This stagnant pool is covered with a green scum and gives forth a vile odor. Residents of the vicinity state that the condition has existed for more than eighteen months, while complaints have been ignored.

A similar condition exists at Eighth and Irolo streets, except that, instead of one large pool of stagnant water, there are several smaller ones.

Property owners who have written letters to the various officials complaining of the unsanitary condition state that they have not received acknowledgment of the receipt of their communications, and that no action has been taken to remedy the evil.

Official records at the office of the city health officer and at that of the Board of Public Works show the complaints were received and transmitted to the office of the City Engineer for action—and that seems to have been the end.

At the office of the City Engineer it was stated yesterday that immediate steps will be taken to remedy the situation. Will it be done?

Beneficial Trust Certificates of California Dairy Properties

Title Insurance and Trust Company, Trustee. Trust No. 3528

Title Insurance & Trust Company as Trustee will hold title to all of the real and personal property, accumulations, profits, etc., of the CALIFORNIA DAIRY PROPERTIES, free from mortgage or other lien (excepting that provided for the protection of the Trustee under the conditions of the Declaration of Trust) in trust for the Certificate Holders in accordance with and under the terms and conditions of an Agreement and Declaration of Trust dated August 14, 1915.

The property consists of 3893 acres, more or less, situated in the dairy district of Tulare County, California. The property will be divided into three ranches of approximiately 1300 acres each. Alfalfa will be planted and the separate ranches stocked with dairy cows, hogs, etc. The necessary buildings will be constructed, including a creamery and cold storage plant. Each of the ranches will be managed by a separate foreman and one superintendent will have supervision over the entire property. The superintendent and foremen will be under bond and held accountable for the proper results in the conduct of the property.

There will be a Board of Managers (one chosen by the Trustee, one by the Properties and three by the Certificate Holders) consisting of five members who will act in an advisory capacity with the Trustee in management of the property.

The only securities issued or which can be issued in connection with this property will be 5000 Beneficial Interests or shares, which will be sold for $100.00 each. When fully equipped and stocked, the property should be worth at least $250.00 per acre or $973,250.00, for which there will be only 5000 interests sold at $100.00 each or $500,000.00, or $125.00 per acre fully stocked and equipped and free from incumbrances.

An examination of the following table shows what ought to be expected in the way of a return upon the investment. The figures are based upon statements made by those in charge of dairy projects:

	Approximated Worth: (Based on a 6 per cent. income basis)	Estimated Net Earnings: (Based upon results obtained by other dairy properties.)	Percentage — Income to Certificate Holders (Based on first cost)
1st year	$ 973,250.00	$ 60,000.00	9 per cent. Net
2nd year	1,500,000.00	90,000.00	13.5 per cent. Net
3rd year	1,875,000.00	112,000.00	16.8 per cent. Net
4th year	2,500,000.00	150,000.00	22.5 per cent. Net
5th year	3,125,000.00	187,000.00	28 per cent. Net

From the earnings (after deducting such moneys as are necessary to establish a reserve fund and to protect the Trustee from liability under the terms of the Declaration of Trust, the Trustee will pay quarterly dividends to the Beneficial Certificate Holders of 75% of the balance remaining in its hands until $200.00 for each beneficial interest has been paid, after which time, the Certificate Holders will receive 60% of such balance remaining in the hands of the Trustee and also own a 60% Beneficial Interest in the entire property. However, if at any time, the Certificate Holders should desire to sell the property, upon the request of 80% of such Holders, under certain reservations contained in the Declaration of Trust, the Board of Managers shall direct the Trustee to sell the property and after deducting all charges, divide the balance pro-rata under the terms and conditions of the Declaration of Trust.

The Certificates are not like a bond; there are no maturity dates, no fixed charges, no possible contingency whereby a foreclosure of the Properties can be made. The property is held in trust by the Trustee for the benefit and profit of the Certificate Holders during the life of the trust.

In addition to the assets of the CALIFORNIA DAIRY PROPERTIES, securing these Certificates, the holders thereof are further secured by the fact that Title Insurance & Trust Company as the Trustee is liable for its breach of trust or default under the terms and conditions of the Declaration of Trust.

The form of organization of the CALIFORNIA DAIRY PROPERTIES as well as the legality and fairness of all conditions incorporated in the Declaration of Trust and in the Certificates offered thereunder to the investing public, have been approved by leading counsel.

The right is reserved to reject any and all subscriptions at any time and to return the moneys received to the subscribers, before the purchase of the Properties.

Los Angeles, Cal.

The money derived from the sale of the said Certificates will be used by the Trustee in the purchase, development and equipment of the following properties, viz:

3893 acres of land, more or less.

420 shares Elk Bayou Water Co. stock.

Creamery, sweet cream and cold storage plant.

Horses.

Note

The 3893 acres of land which it is proposed to purchase, is situated in the heart of the Tulare dairy district and at the present time, is equipped with buildings, dairy sheds, barns, tenant houses, bunk houses and live stock, consisting of dairy cows, hogs, horses, etc., and has sufficient water developed upon the same and a sufficient acreage planted to alfalfa so that within 90 days from the acquisition of the property, by the purchase of 200 additional head of dairy cows, a dairy ranch of approximately 1300 acres will, immediately, become equipped and placed upon an earning basis which should net 6% upon the entire $500,000.00 invested in the properties.

CANAL A BOON TO FRUIT GROWERS.

GREAT DEMAND FROM VARIOUS COUNTRIES DUE IN PART TO WATER ROUTE.

The changes in the world's shipping routes by reason of the opening of the Panama Canal are redounding greatly to the advantage of California, and California producers and manufacturers; and this in spite of the deplorable condition of the United States merchant marine, and the fact that the latest legislation has practically driven it from the Pacific.

Within the last few weeks inquiries for California products have come forward from England, France, Porto Rico, China, Japan and several Latin-American countries. While the Panama Canal cannot be said to be solely responsible for the opening of this promising trade in the above countries—the European war having played its important part—nevertheless, the all-water route is making most of it possible. Given an adequate merchant marine and California's sales to the world at large would have increased by leaps and bounds.

Another indication of the importance of the canal is found in a recent order placed in Tulare county for $50,000 worth of alfalfa hay for shipment to New York, to be there sold for from $20 to $27.50 per ton.

Once the world's shipping becomes normal, on the conclusion of peace in Europe, Los Angeles Harbor will become one of the world's great ports of entry, distributing imports throughout the great Southwest, shipping to the far corners of the globe the products of her fields, orchards, canneries and factories. Had American bottoms been now available this condition would have been with us now instead of waiting for such time as the foreign merchantman is ready to sail into our harbor.

God's Wondrous Way.

STRANGE BEGINNING OF A NOTED BROTHERHOOD.

BACK of the organization of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, under whose auspices the National Convention of Churchmen will convene in Los Angeles on Wednesday, is an interesting story of the mysterious ways of God, acting through the words of an intoxicated man. The hint of a wanderer, who died a few days later in delirium, was responsible for the founding of the powerful laymen's movement in the Episcopal church, which now has 3000 chapters and a total membership of 300,000 men in the United States.

One Sunday morning, thirty-eight years ago a young man, under the influence of liquor, called at the study of Dr. W. H. Vibbert, rector of St. James Church, Chicago. It was near the hour for Sunday-school to begin and Dr. Vibbert, after a kindly greeting, took the stranger to a Bible class taught by James L. Houghteling.

Once during the session of the class the stranger rose above his indifferent mood long enough to tell of an organization of men in England, which made a specialty of inducing other men to attend church. The pathetic case of the young man made an impression upon the class. Mr. Houghteling and others were strongly influenced by what he had said about the class across the sea.

A few weeks after the visit of the stranger, Mr. Houghteling and the members of his class met informally and organized the Brotherhood of St. Andrew for the purpose of looking after the religious needs of men. The association was named after the apostle Andrew for the reason that he, perhaps more than any other one of the twelve, belonged to the ideal type of Christian layman and also for the further reason that after he had become a follower of Christ, he went out and brought in his brother, Simon Peter, who also joined the standard of the cross.

The newly-organized brotherhood quickly made a difference in the affairs of St. James parish. The Sunday-school was enlarged, the attendance of men at the church services increased, and other features of the parish work strengthened.

The striking success of the brotherhood caused similar organizations to be formed in other Episcopal churches in Chicago. From Chicago the movement spread to the State of Illinois and finally to other States of the Union and to foreign countries.

Upon Mr. Houghteling, a successful banker and president of the Chicago Y.M.C.A., devolved the work of perfecting the brotherhood idea and he is regarded as the founder of the movement. He was president of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in the United States for many years. He traveled extensively in the United States in the interest of the movement and introduced the brotherhood into the Church of England in Canada. Later John W. Wood and Silas McBee introduced the brotherhood in England.

Mr. Houghteling died eight years ago. His son, J. L. Houghteling, will be one of the speakers at the forthcoming convention.

The founding of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew was the beginning of the great laymen's movement, one of the distinctive features of religious work at the present time. Organized brotherhoods are maintained in the Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, Congregational, Christian and other church denominations.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew in the United States defines itself as "an organization of men in the church for the spread of Christ's kingdom among men." Following are the national officers: President, Edward H. Bonsall of Philadelphia; first vice-president, H. D. W. English of Pittsburgh; second vice-president, Courtenay Barber of Chicago; treasurer, Alexander M. Hadden of New York City; general secretary, Hubert Carleton of Boston, and field secretaries, G. Frank Shelby of Denver, Benjamin F. Finney of Savannah and F. H. Spencer of Chicago.

MAPS FOR HUNTERS.

Supervisor Charlton is sending out 3000 maps indicating the lines of the game refuge in the Angeles National Forest, that will be of benefit to hunters who desire to obey the law. The deer season will open on September 1, and some of the best deer regions in the reserve are exempted from the rules of the game laws. Picoman Canyon, back of San Fernando, and the eastern desert slope, Lytle Creek, Cajon Canyon and the territory back of Banning. All of the forest rangers in the reserve have been appointed game wardens. The maps show just what part of the reserve can be hunted over, and what not.

SELLING FRUIT BY NOVEL PLAN.

SYSTEM OF ADVERTISING PAYS CANADIAN PRODUCERS AND CONSUMERS.

Canadian fruit growers have this summer inaugurated a new marketing campaign along lines which at least are well worthy the interest of the California grower.

The province of Ontario, Can., is the greatest fruit growing section of the Dominion, embracing as it does nearly 70 per cent. of that country's entire fruit acreage. Returns for the products of these orchards had not, however, proved satisfactory, and this in spite of the fact that the consumer had to pay a good round price for the fruits he purchased from the retailer, and in some instances had difficulty in getting certain fruits at all.

This year 5000 Ontario fruit growers "co-operated" and inaugurated an entirely new marketing campaign, one which has brought the consumer into close touch with the producer and at the same time has neither necessitated costly selling media or interfered in the slightest degree with existing ones.

An extensive advertising campaign was started, calling the consumers' attention to the crops becoming available and suggesting that he place advance orders with his retail store in order to be assured of ample supplies of cheap fruits. This was then supplemented by further advertising in the trade journals, thus getting in touch with the retailer. The campaign promises to prove a great success, having to date placed large quantities of fruit into consumption at a reasonable price to the consumer and at a profitable price to the producer. It has also induced a much wider distribution. It has done all this by informing the consumer and the retailer of actual conditions, and of when and how they can best obtain the various fruits as they come into market.

"Now, ladies and gentleman, I want to introduce you to this little lady. This lady is a native of Yamakipoo, the famous cannibal island. She is the chief's daughter. She has twenty-nine children and fourteen husbands. Three of the husbands have green eyes, and the youngest child, a 4-year-old girl, speaks six languages. Now, this is not a fake show, ladies and gen-lemen. You can see the marvels of Yamakipoo for a dime. The most wonderful, educational, interesting, absorbing wonder of the day," etc., etc., etc., ad infinitum.

JUST THE MEDLEY.

It is all right, dear reader, the author is quite sane. The above medley of phrases is merely an impression of the very exuberant verbosity, flavored with snatches of conversation, heard in the "Zone" at Venice and Ocean Park at night. This verbosity is accompanied by a still stranger medley of all kinds and conditions of music, with a mis-en-scene of myriads of electrical illuminations as brilliant and as fantastic as a futurist idea of heaven.

Venice at night is not unlike Coney Island, much smaller, of course, but very much more enjoyable. There is no sweltering heat and sweltering people. There are no banana skins strewn over the sidewalk inviting you to break your neck. And last, but not least, of all there is no New York gang with all its rough and tough element that frequently fills the amusement places of the eastern metropolis.

Above the hilarity of the sideshows one finds a strange melange of elegance and Bohemian gaiety. With its smart hotels, the streets lined with [illegible], and the cafes and cabarets alive with music and laughter, there is an atmosphere of fashion and [illegible], and "frivolity a-la-mode." The superb dancing hall at Venice, with its artistic illuminations, is a veritable fairyland, suggestive in charm of scenes from the "Blue Bird" of Maurice Maeterlinck.

The dancing hall is the Mecca of the beach habitues. Here may be seen a cosmopolitan gathering of every type and age. It is a fashionable gathering, indeed, with an abundant coloring of the latest 'modes,' coiffures and hose, etc., to say nothing of the well-dressed masculine element, occasionally accentuated by a youthful Adonis of the "fashion-plate" type. This specimen is generally distinguished by a one-inch moustache, and is supported by a cane with a silver knob.

NOISE PREDOMINANT.

Of all the amusements at the beaches, noise, if it can be considered an amusement, is predominant. In one of the cafes on the pier at Venice guests are supplied with a noise-making device. The orchestra, instead of playing music, plays noise, but plays it attractively. It is heard in great variety from the showman, and enhanced by the screams and hilarious laughter of the joy-riders racing "through the clouds" or over the "o-shun."

Beside this popular "amusement" there are many other idiosyncracies of the beaches and the beachers. Take, for instance, popcorn. You will find children and also adults devouring bag after bag of it from 8 a.m. to midnight. Probably there are quite a number that eat it in their sleep. It is nothing strange to see a conspicuously fashionable woman sauntering along the pier with a large bag of popcorn, throwing handfuls of it in her mouth with about as much legance and concern as one would throw scraps of paper in a waste-paper basket.

Another interesting feature is the small, odd-looking vehicle that conveys passengers along the sea front to and from Venice and Ocean Park. It is decidedly an uncanny-appearing affair, slow and silent in movement, with a conspicuous absence of wheels, and having a most pertinent habit of announcing its presence right behind your back with an electric bell. It puts one in mind of a davenport bed, having mysteriously rolled out from some apartment-house, taking a few of the guests for a little fresh air on the ocean front.

ON THE SAND.

During the day there is much of interest and amusement on the sands. Here the lover of art will find ample studies in anatomy. Scattered here and there are human forms, some fair and graceful, some fat and funny, and all so tanned that they almost seem like creatures of the sand. The only civilized thing about them is a bathing suit, which can be worn with an exceeding lure by the fair sex. Mermaids may have tails, but personally, I much prefer to gaze upon legs, provided they possess contour with a dimple or so in the knees. [You are certainly fastidious, Mr. Harte! Editor Times.] Of course, the dimples are not compulsory, just a matter of taste, you know, like auburn hair, Roman noses, Greek ears, or Dutch feet—in fact, anything singular.

Surf bathing is delightful; a dip in the ocean and then a sun bath on the sands—what more could a lover of nature desire? For me, however, bathing is more of a "September Morn" luxury, that is to say, a clandestine affair. Unfortunately, I am very slender, so much so, indeed, that my slim dimensions—or rather lack of dimensions—annoys my conscience when bathing in public. Thus I take my dip in the early hours of the morning. My sole companion is a seagull, and sometimes he brings a friend, a relative, or, perhaps, his wife, and the two of them look at me and talk—loud. I am perfectly aware that their topic of conversation is myself, but then birds will be birds, you know, and you cannot blame them for their lack of etiquette.

With all the gaiety of life at the beaches, there is a Bohemian atmosphere of theatrical excitement in the varied antics and activities of the "movies." Now that the beauties of nature have taken the place of the canvas scene, and the players performing in public, the mysteries of that fascinating wonderland "behind-the-scenes" are revealed with the hero and heroine living humans like ourselves in spite of their painted eyes and powdered faces.

SANTA MONICA.

Of all the beaches, Santa Monica appeals to me most particularly as a place of residence. There is a tone the dignity and repose, in its many beautiful homes, surrounded by radiant gardens and wide-spreading palms, with the mountains lending "enchantment to the view." I have no doubt Northern California is beautiful. My grandfather found it a country full of romance, with its missions and mining camps, and, of course, its "heathen" Chinese. But times have changed. The romance may still be there, but it lacks the lurid color that produced the "Luck of Roaring Camp," "Salomy Jane," and the like. Many of the missions, I fear, have been turned into modern hostelries, with bath and hot and cold water in every room, and as for the "heathen" Chinese, American civilization may have modified their appearance, but not their oriental morals.

THE NEW ROMANCE.

If I ever take up literature seriously (at present I am merely a student of the modern art of scribbling) I shall lay my scenes right here in Southern California, which is developing an entirely new romance—the romance of the movies.

My heroes shall be "leads," "juveniles" and "heavies," ordinary camera men and irate directors with abundant vocabularies of swear words. My heroines—well, you have seen them sitting in the cafes, divinities of fashion and elegance, sipping iridescent concoctions through straws with their ornate escorts, and powdering their dainty noses at least every ten minutes.

Truck Transportation.

RAILROADS BATTLE WITH MOTORIZED FREIGHTERS.

THE crops of the Imperial Valley, which from present indications would seem to be the largest in the history of that section, brought about the organization of a concern known as the Wichita Transportation Company. President E. M. Hackett, formerly of Texas, is now a resident of this city.

The company is operating five Wichita trucks, a value in rolling stock of $12,000, less than the cost of building one mile of railroad. This line is running from San Diego to El Centro, through a territory not paralleled by any railroad, also stopping at intermediate points.

A railroad is now under construction between these two points, but will not be completed for some time. The transportation company is making deliveries to towns that even this railroad will not touch.

What is undoubtedly a test case, has been brought against the company by the combined railroad interest of the State seeking to have them pay heavy fines for not having conducted their business in the same manner and under the same laws that govern the steam and electric railways.

"When we organized our business," said Mr. Hackett, "to haul freight from San Diego and return, over the mountains and through the desert of deep sand, over which wagons drawn by ox teams, horse and later automobiles and trucks, we little dreamed that we were in the slightest violating any law, and in fact do not now think so.

"If in this test case the railways should be successful, every man who owns a motor truck, hauling freight out of the cities to small towns and country points would be compelled to operate under the Railroad Commission governing railways and electric lines. This would necessarily force the truck man out of the business, and the railroads could not and would not give the service necessary of handling the limited freight business at small towns and out of the way places."

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) Aug. 20.—Deeds to the Treadwell and Brookshire groups, forty-six claims, at Jerome, have been placed in escrow here. The price is $1,000,000, and the United Verde Extension Mining Company, of which James S. Douglas is general manager, is the purchaser. A large first payment has been made.

The plant installed by the Lynx Creek Placer Company a few miles east of Prescott has proven entirely inadequate to handle the formation, owing to the boulders. Operations have been suspended until a new plant can be installed. The company may import a dredge from Montana or have an entirely new plant built in Kansas City.

It has been demonstrated that the ground controlled by the company is rich in gold. Even with the inadequate equipment, several gratifying clean-ups were made.

R. H. Burmister of Prescott has concluded a detailed examination of the Jersey Lily mine and announces that operations are to be resumed at once. The machinery at the property is in good condition and the workings are in excellent shape except for one small cave-in. A generation ago the Jersey Lily was an important gold producer.

A bond and lease has been taken on the C. K. Crosby claims, near Hillside, by Cort Simmons, Pete Eckberg, Oscar Rengo and A. Cook, all experienced mining men. They have gone to the property themselves and for a time will do most of their own work. The Crosby mine is equipped with a ten-stamp mill and cyanide plant.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

The first civil service examination to be held jointly by the county and State was held yesterday when fifty-two women and girls took an examination for stenographer to fill up the eligible list. The positions pay from $65 to $80 a month.

Horse Routed by Pheasant.

[Philadelphia Record:] Clyde Bradford of Center Hall, near State College, who has hunted pheasants through the Seven Mountains for twenty years, found the livest bird of that species inhabiting the brush in Center county, he believes. Here is Bradford's story:

While he was hauling cement to the borough reservoir an enraged hen pheasant, protecting her brood of six youngsters, flew from the bushes along the mountain road and viciously attacked his horse. She alighted on the animal's head, beating vigorously with her wings.

The frightened horse bucked, reared and lunged in its fruitless efforts to dislodge the mad pheasant. Finally the bird pecked at the horse's eyes, blinding it so that the heavily loaded wagon was backed off the road and down the mountain. Bradford leaped in time to escape injury. He said he would not try pheasant gunning from horseback next fall.

Of the total world production of commercial cotton in 1913 the United States contributed 60.9 per cent. Next to corn, cotton is the most valuable crop grown here, and it is the largest single item of export.

THE BELGIAN QUEEN.

Beloved by the Soldiers Whom She Visits in the Trenches While Concealing Her Identity.

[Cincinnati Enquirer:] A pretty story of the well-beloved Queen of the Belgians was told by Sir Cecil Hertslet, the British Consul-General at Antwerp, in the course of a speech at Eastbourne.

It was during Her Majesty's recent visit to the Belgian army's trenches on the Yser. The men in one of the trenches did not recognise their visitor, and one of them said: "Come along, madam. Make yourself at home," and another, "Oh, madam, this trench is dangerous."

The Queen replied: "Not for me. I am so small."

A soldier then produced a sack and placed in on the slope of the trench. The royal visitor sat down and proceeded to distribute the chocolate and cigarettes she had brought, laughing heartily at the men's merriment and jokes.

On the sack on which she had sat the soldiers wrote the words, "The resting place of the Queen." The soldier to whom the sack belonged was asked whether he would sell it as a souvenir, and he replied, "Not for thousands."

COPPER MINE IN NEW HANDS.

TWIN BUTTE HOLDINGS GO TO AMERICAN SMELTING.

Half Million Involved in Transfer, Which Includes Six Claims, and Active Work is to be Undertaken by the New Owners—Property is Exceptional.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) Aug. 20.—At a price reported to be $400,000, the American Smelting and Refining Company has purchased the Baxter and Bush copper property at Twin Butte. A first payment of $100,000 was made. Other payments are to be made in twelve, eighteen and twenty-four months.

Active development work is to be undertaken immediately by the American Smelting and Refining Company. Ore will be shipped regularly to El Paso.

Six claims are included in the group. The Minnie is the big producer.

It is said that a copper mine is a rich man's proposition, but this has proved a noteworthy exception. About a year ago E. G. Bush took a bond on a half interest in the property from William Reid and Alexander Rossi. J. G. Baxter owned two-thirds of the other half. The other third of the Baxter half was owned by Mike Irish, who had returned to Ireland some time before, and still lives on the Emerald Isle.

With an outlay of only $350, Baxter and Bush began work. They found a phenomenally rich stringer of copper ore almost at the grass roots, and in a short time had shipped a carload to the Hayden smelter. The returns were far above the cost of extraction and shipment.

With the funds received from ore shipments Baxter and Bush sunk their shaft to a depth of 175 feet. At that depth they started a drift, which is now 175 feet in ore which assays 6 per cent. copper and three ounces silver to the ton. At the time they sold they were shipping 2000 tons of ore monthly. The net return from each ton was $12.30.

The Black Bass.

[Columbus Journal:] A writer in the Springfield Republican protests against black bass. He says it is a pugnacious and tyrannical fish and will drive off all other fish. He is opposed to stocking the streams with black bass. Since that plan has been adopted the pickerel and perch and other fine fish have been driven off, and fishing, which was once a gentle experience, graced by nice strings of fish, has become a mere sport for experts at catching bass.

Another count of the indictment is that black bass is not a good fish for eating purposes. The writer says as an edible fish bass rank with the suckers and are good for the table only when the water is cold, and then the State law protects them. They must have a different kind of bass in the East from what we have in Ohio, for really it has been one of the faiths of our life that fried bass is the best fish dish in all creation.

But if the bass have hurt the good old fishing, when one could go up the creek and in a few hours return with a nice string of pickerel, perch, jack salmon, sunfish, etc., then we would draw the line on bass, for of all the experiences of the beautiful past, going a-fishing and bringing home a nice string is the happiest. Next to a honeymoon it is the highest delight of human experience.

FAIRS HELP OIL TRADE.

Increased Railroad Traffic Boosts Consumption.

Step is Taken to Enforce New Water Law.

State Supervisor Appoints Field Deputies.

The most prominent factor in the recent increase in oil consumption in California has been the exposition railroad traffic. It is estimated by competent authorities that 10,000 barrels per day excess oil is being used in handling the greater number of passengers.

Consumption of oil during May and June, as indicated in shipments, exceeded production, while last month the margin in favor of production was very small. There is every indication that the balance between shipments and production will continue to be pretty well maintained during the remaining months of the year.

WOULD PROTECT FIELDS.

An important step in the enforcing of the new water protection law, which would safeguard the oil fields of California from millions of dollars of loss, has just been taken in the appointment of deputies by State Oil and Gas Supervisor R. P. McLaughlin. These deputies will be stationed in the various oil fields and their duties will consist largely in becoming thoroughly informed of all the physical conditions of those fields and advising the operators as to the most effective method of controlling underground water. They will also furnish the supervisor with information necessary for the enforcement of the new law dealing with the subject of water in the oil wells.

The appointments are as follows:

H. J. Kirwan will attend to the work in Fresno and King counties and a portion of Kern county. He will be stationed at Coalinga. Mr. Kirwan is a civil engineer and has, for some years, filled the position of Oil Well Commissioner for Fresno county. For a number of years before entering public service he was employed by the engineering department of the Associated Oil Company.

Mr. E. B. Latham will have charge of work in the following counties: Kern, Santa Barbara and Ventura, his headquarters being at Santa Maria. Mr. Latham is a geologist, and for several years has been in charge of the work carried on by the Kern County Oil Protective Association in the Midway field. This association was a voluntary affair, but accomplished a great deal of very valuable work.

R. B. Moran will look after the work in Orange, Los Angeles and Ventura counties, being stationed in this city. Mr. Moran is an engineer and geologist of great experience. He is at present actively interested in several oil-producing concerns and has at various times been in the employ of nearly all of the large oil companies of California.

Chester Naramore will be in charge of work in Kern and Ventura counties. His headquarters will be at Taft. Mr. Naramore is a mining engineer with wide experience in managing producing oil properties, having had under his supervision parties in several California fields, and more recently having been in charge of operations for Canadian companies located near Calgary.

Project Second Plant.

TAFT, Aug. 20.—The Midway Gasoline Company has had such marked success in recovering gasoline from the gas of the wells on the North American Oil Company's property, on section 2, 32-23, that a second plant is to be erected less than half a mile from the original refinery on section 1, 32-23, of the Kern Trading and Oil Company. Grading already is in progress.

The gasoline from the six wells on the North American lease is shipped out in tank cars, no effort being made to find a local market.

FULLERTON, Aug. 20.—The Standard Oil Company has brought in well No. 15 on the Murphy lease. It is flowing 1500 barrels a day. This new well adjoins the famous gas well.

The Union Oil Company is rigging up for a new well which will be started between now and Monday on the Toussua lease.

Well No. 13 on the Graham & Loftus lease is being perforated and will be brought in at once.

MORE POLITICS THAN SERVICE.

Automobile Men Dissatisfied with State Branch.

How Johnson Henchmen Got Appointments.

No Civil Service Test for ex-Congressman.

Automobile owners of Southern California are now aware of the fact that the branch of the motor vehicle department of the State, established in Los Angeles a year ago, is not conducted so much for the benefit of the motorists as it is for the scheming politicians who make the Johnson wheels go around at Sacramento.

For instance, ex-Congressman Bell, a patriotic Progressive, whose enforced absence from Washington is by no means missed, is at the head of the branch office recently moved to the Union League Building at Second and Hill streets.

Mr. Bell, who was a Congressman from the Ninth District, has taken the place of W. S. Goble, assistant superintendent of the department. Mr. Goble was transferred to San Francisco where, it is said, a branch is to be opened. Although the head of the office in Los Angeles was under civil service, it is not so now. Mr. Bell's training has not been along automobile lines. Wherefore, it would have been a sad error to subject him to a civil service test in competition with others who have real knowledge of the game.

LAW REMODELED.

The way the ex-Congressman won his post here was through a remodeling of the law governing the motor vehicle department. Mr. Goble received $1800 a year as superintendent. Bell receives $2400, an increase based not so much upon his superior knowledge of autos as upon his unfailing fealty to the Johnson machine.

And there Frank H. Mouser enters the story. Mr. Mouser is an Assemblyman from the Seventy-fourth District. To cement his reputation for Progressivism he ran on all party tickets last fall. Also, when he got to Sacramento he worked and voted for the passage of the new motor vehicle law.

As a reward for his energy, Mr. Mouser was appointed an inspector, attached to the Los Angeles branch. Just what he knows about autos is judged in the abstract, for it is all hearsay. However, he is inspecting autos at a stipend of $1500 a year and a verification of his employment may be found at the local branch, where his name is on the pay roll and his face is seldom seen.

REWARD OF THE FAITHFUL.

The employment of Mr. Mouser involves one of those queer twists of Johnsonian doctrine, which provides that a friend may be aided anywhere, no matter what the law may have to say on the matter.

Section 19, article IV, of the State Constitution provides: "No Senator or member of the Assembly shall, during the term for which he shall have been elected, be appointed to any civil office of profit under this State, which shall have been created, or the emoluments of which have been increased, during the term for which he was elected, except such offices as may be filled by election by the people."

The complaint of the motorists is not alone against the plundering of the treasury through the giving of jobs to such political heelers as Bell, nor entirely to the illegal employment of lame ducks of the Mouser stripe, but to the added incompetency of the department by loading the branch office with incapable help and then moving the offices away from the traveled path in the automobile district.

Meanwhile, complaints have been aired against the removal of Mr. Goble, the juggling hirling of Mr. Bell, and wonderment grows apace as to what Mr. Mouser is inspector of.

It is said that the shrewd part of the revision of the law lies in the fact that the official title of the office was altered so as to remove the job from civil service.

Let Us be Neutral.

WHITTIER, Aug. 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] By far the ablest presentation of the questions relating to our relation to the war was written for The Times about the time of the Lusitania disaster by Gen. Otis. It should be published in pamphlet form and given to all our national legislators and the members of the Cabinet. As well might a mother attempt to put her full-grown son back into the knee breeches and short waists as for our nation to decide the new questions coming up under entirely new methods and conditions by the code of international law as it now exists.

The international lawyer is really in the way. What is now needed is good, common sense applied to the novel things now arising daily. A citizen who loves his country will not ship on an English vessel or one bearing contraband of war after being warned. If he does, he, and not his country should take the consequences. Why should he embroil a nation in a useless controversy to defend his foolish act.

A nation cannot be said to be neutral that furnishes the ammunition and implements to carry on a war with another nation.

A nation has no natural rights, because it has the largest navy, to prevent foodstuffs being sent to hungry men, women and starving children. J. P. Morgan, who has been, from the beginning, a catspaw for England for the bloody money he gets out of it, will undoubtedly be held by the Teutons to the strictest accountability. He will embroil our nation in the war and may destroy our liberty, and for what, that he may add a few more millions to his already overburdened purse.

Let us be really neutral, neutral according to the inevitable rules to be laid down after the war.

Let us keep our hands off. Warn any who ride on foreign vessels that they do so at their own peril. Stop shipping war materials, but ship food instead so that after the war is over we will not need to arbitrate by law nor by sword.

I do not wish to be understood as being on the side of Germany, but on the side of common fairness, common sense, and common honesty.

HOTEL MAN'S FAREWELL.

Funeral Services Tomorrow Over Remains of High Mason and Elk Called Unexpectedly.

Funeral services over the remains of John H. Fullerton, who died Friday in the Sisters' Hospital, will be conducted at the residence, No. 556 South Norton street, tomorrow at 2 p.m. Mr. Fullerton's death was unexpected. He had been sick only one week with pheumonia up to which time he had been enjoying the best of health.

Mr. Fullerton was a life member of Cheyenne (Wyo.) Lodge of Elks, in addition to being a Thirty-second Degree Mason. He was widely known throughout the Western States as a hotel man, and operated the Inter-Ocean Hotel at Cheyenne for over twenty years, previous to which time he conducted hotels throughout Colorado. About four years ago he retired from business, and had since been making his home in Los Angeles.

Questioned.

DOUBTS ABOUT THIS LECTURER.

LOCAD SLAVS DECDARE THAT HE'S IMPOSTOR.

Thriller of Audiences of Women with Tales of Siberian Experiences as an Exiled Russian Army Officer has Nothing to Show, so He Takes His Departure.

Several of the foremost members of the Slavonic colony in and about Los Angeles, arose in wrath yesterday and denounced "Lieut." Mikol Swartzkopensky, a lecturer who has been telling enthralled audiences of women about the inner workings of the Czar's court, where, he claimed, he had been a "stabs-capitan" of the Praobrojenski, or Imperial Guard, as an impostor and charlatan. As a result the lecturer folded his tent and went away, saying before he left that as he had nothing whatever with which to prove his contentions, it were far better that he leave.

The alleged story of his life, as told by "Lieut." Swartzkopensky, is a remarkable narrative. Admitting his father was a Jew and his mother a Russian, he declared that as "stabs-capitan" of the Imperial Guard he refused to fire upon the angry mob a certain day in 1905 when so ordered by his general. For this breach of discipline he was sentenced to Siberia.

According to his story he escaped twice. Although his dates are somewhat uncertain, he was sure he had escaped once from Siberia and once from Warsaw. The second escape, he said, was made by use of fake passports bought from the Mayor of Warsaw, who did not take the trouble to inquire whether he, Swartzkopensky, was an escaped Siberian convict or not.

Speaking excellent English, with a slight New York Jewish accent, the "lieutenant" related how he came to the United States two years ago, and traveling through the country, has made his home in California because of the wonderful climate. He says he served in the Russian army twenty years, and on his card appears the line "Former Russian Army."

STORY DERIDED.

Stephen Korwin Szymanowski, a descendant from the old Polish nobility, and author of reputation in the Russian and French languages, who has lived in the United States for twenty-seven years, and at No. 2016 Sunset boulevard the past eight years, derided this remarkable story last night. He was seconded by Jaroslaw de Zielinski, noted pianist, living at No. 1314 South Burlington avenue, who has also been a resident of this country for many years. Both Russians, despite their excellent educational advantages in Europe and America, and despite the length of their residence in this country, still speak English with some difficulty, omitting almost entirely the characteristic American idioms employed, so fluently by the "lieutenant."

"That man may have been in Russia," Mr. Szymanowski said last night. "He may also have served in the Russian army. I am not a military man. But I do know that no Jew is allowed in the Imperial Guard, even as a private. And the officers of the guard, especially a "stabs-capitan," are taken only from the highest nobility. Swartzkopensky is a Jewish name. Any man with even such a name would not be taken in the guard.

"Also, it is against the law of Russia for a Jew to marry a Russian woman, as this man says occurred when his father married his mother. Do you suppose if such a thing did happen the son would be allowed to hold an important office in the Praobrojenski?

"Another item. If such an officer had disobeyed orders, as this man said he did, he would be executed on the spot. Siberia is for political prisoners and nihilists, not military officers who mutiny. He is trying to make a hero of himself.

"You hear how I talk English. I am a man of letters. I have studied your language thoroughly, and have even written books in English. Furthermore, I have lived with you twenty-seven years. And yet this man, who came to America two years ago speaks like a native, using native idioms.

DATES MIXED.

"If this man refers to the "bloody Sunday," when the troops fired into the multitude, he has mixed his dates, and is disobeying orders just one year after the incident occurred.

"I do not care for Russia. I am an American citizen by choice. At first when I heard him talk at the Woman's City Club I thought, 'Well, it is none of my business.' Then I considered. You Americans are ignorant of Russia and Russian customs. It was my duty to expose this impostor, so that he may no longer prey upon the public of my country. I do not care what he says of Russia. That is past. But he is now fooling my fellow-citizens, and it must stop."

Prof. Zielinski echoed his friend's sentiments last night.

"That man may be a Russian, but I do not believe he has been there since he was a boy," he said. "The Russian officers are of necessity the most polished gentlemen obtainable. What do you thing of Mr. Swartzkopensky?"

Theatrical.

SEASON DAWNS AUSPICIOUSLY.

Two Big Attractions Coming Next Week.

"So Long Letty" and "Yellow Ticket" Continue.

"Legitimate" Star to be Seen at Orpheum.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell in Shaw's latest play, "Pygmalion," in which the noted actress will appear as a street waif redeemed for purposes of sociological experimentation by a social theorist, is billed for the Mason August 30. Mrs. Campbell will appear during the same week in several other plays.

Majestic.

William H. Crane, Amelia Bingham, Mabel Taliaferro, Thomas W. Ross and Maclyn Arbuckle, all well known stars, will appear in "The New Henrietta," adapted by Winchell Smith from Bronson Howard's radiant comedy, "The Henrietta," at the Majestic, on August 30.

Burbank.

"The Yellow Ticket," with Marjorie Rambeau in the leading role, has proven so great a success at the Burbank, that the piece is to be continued another week, commencing today. Miss Rambeau plays the highly dramatic role of the young Jewish girl, Mr. Bennison appears as the Baron, and Edmund Lowe plays the breezy American reporter.

Morosco.

"So Long Letty" is proving a goldmine for Manager Oliver Morosco. Extra matinees have been asked for, but Mr. Morosco has declined to work his stars more than nine performances a week.

The musical comedy enters on its eighth week tomorrow. The S.R.O. sign has been out during the whole seven weeks of the performance.

Orpheum.

William Morris tops the new Orpheum bill, opening tomorrow. This is his vaudeville debut here, he having appeared only in "legit." heretofore. He will be seen in "Mrs. Temple's Telegram." The playlet is adapted from his starring vehicle of the same name.

Others on the new bill will be the Steindel Brothers, musicians and nephews of the celebrated Bruno Steindel, soloist with the Bendix orchestra for years; Stewart Jackson and Dorothy Wehl, musical comedy stars, in a song and dance act, entitled "Before the Theaters," and James Teddy, the champion jumper of the world.

Gus Edwards' song revue, with new song and dance numbers, Allan Dinehart and company in "The Meanest Man in the World," Nan Halperin, in her breezy little interpretations, and the Volunteers, will be held over from last week.

Republic.

A better treat for the kiddies than "playing dolls" will be a visit to the Republic Theater this week, where "The Three Sisters Lilliput," said to be the smallest singing and dancing comediennes on the stage, head the programme that starts tomorrow.

Lanessta, "the human dragon," will make a strong bid for a division of headline honors with his spectacular contortion act. Others will be Florence Rayfield, a dainty singing and dancing soubrette. Captain and Marie Lawrence, who have a musical act, with several quick costume changes called "Musical European War Attraction;" the Hennings who have a juggling novelty, and Le Barde, with a rather instrumental number. The feature motion picture is to be "The Second in Command," Francis X. Bushman.

Pantages.

Hanlon Brothers and company in "The Haunted Hotel," are the headliners on the new Pantages bill, opening tomorrow. As pantomimists and inventors of stage illusions they hold a unique position in the amusement world.

Others will be Bothwell Browne in "The Green Venus;" with Francis Young and "perfect chorus" as a feature; Kelly and Calvin, the actor and the "wop;" Barto and Clark in "Marooned;" Morton Brothers in musical novelties; and Kitner Haynes and Montgomery in "Swells at Sea."

Hippodrome.

Dr. Royal Raceford, "the human dynamo," is the headliner of the new Hippodrome bill, opening tomorrow. Dr. Raceford is said to be past master in the manipulation of X-rays and electricity, and gives a spectacular performance, one of the features of which is the taking of X-ray pictures of persons in the audience. He also produces real lightning, and throws seven foot sparks about the stage.

Other attractions on the bill will be Musical Fox, the "rag time king;" York and King, colored impersonators," Bensee and Baird in "A Wee Bit of Scotch;" The Apollo Trio, "living bronzes;" Martini and Troise in a skit called "The 'Wop' and His Sweetheart;" the Seven Russells, minstrels, and the usual pictures.

Mission Play.

The great exposition crowds continue to pack the Mission Playhouse at San Gabriel. The month of August has surpassed July's records in attendance.

There have been 830 performances of the Mission Play and it is now in its seventieth week.

Felice Lyne, Who Visited This City Last Spring, is to Star with Company Supporting Pavlowa.

Felice Lyne, coloratura soprano, who spent several months in this city during the spring and summer, has been engaged by Max Rabinoff to star during the coming season with the opera company which is to assist Mlle. Pavlowa and her ballet. Miss Lyne will make her debut with the company at Chicago, probably as Gilda in "Rigoletto."

She is one of the youngest American singers to win a place for herself in the ranks of fame abroad. She first came into prominence when she made her debut with Hammerstein's company at the London Operahouse, four years ago. She has appeared in a few concerts in this country and in several performances with the Boston Opera Company, but most of her work has been abroad.

A VETERAN AND HIS IDEALS.

William H. Crane's Fine Conception of What the Public Needs and Wants in the Way of Dramatic Entertainment—His Successes and Life Illuminated by Optimistic Overtones.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK

ONE evening a party of theatrical people were discussing the many marriages of some of our stars. Someone in the little assembly turned to Mrs. William H. Crane and asked how long she and her husband had been married. When the later hesitated in her reply the questioner, with a guilty blush, apologized, assuring her that he never meant to be indelicate and begging her to consider the interrogation withdrawn. "Oh, it isn't that," replied Mrs. Crane, "but my husband and I have been married for forty years and after hearing about the matrimonial adventures of our friends here, I hardly feel respectable."

That was five years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Crane have now enjoyed their happiness for forty-five years and their golden wedding is certain to be an occasion of joy, for both possess that vitality which is youth. It is a secret.

No one ought ever to know, least of all Mrs. Crane, but when her husband married her he deceived her. He was getting $35 a week and he told her he was making $50. It was three months before he got a raise to that sum.

For forty-five years William H. Crane has lived in deadly fear that this duplicity would be discovered. I know this hurts, but I feel that in the end it will do them good. I am not a traitor; I am a surgeon. I believe in the truth always—when it affects somebody else. I am willing to tell the truth if it kills somebody else. I also enjoy the thrill of the judge who says sternly, "William H. Crane, stand up and be sentenced."

Well, bless their golden hearts! And, oh for more like them, which, alas, we have not!

You know, Crane is a great joy to the world because he is a star of the people. He wouldn't talk about Maeterlinck because he doesn't know Maeterlinck, but he knows humanity (heavens, how he knows it!) and he loves it and he plays for it.

He has gone in and out among the people of America for fifty-two years and during thirty-eight years of that time he has been a star at the head of his own company. It has been a good company. He has not been afraid of being outshone. He was only concerned that his combination should never be outshone.

He isn't the sort who says to his manager or his press agent: "My name must be mentioned as often, and my picture must appear as many times as the prettiest woman in the cast." And I know such a lot of petty gods who say and do those very things. I know a lot of others who know less about Maeterlinck and the like than William H. Crane, but they want to tell me more about those who sit in high places than these authors ever dreamed about themselves.

Don't imagine that Mr. Crane is not wise, because he is not bookish. It is merely that his wisdom is not the cheap reflection of somebody else's knowledge. Mr. Crane likes it if the people get a big idea out of a play, yet he won my everlasting commendation when he said to me, "You can't instruct people at the expense of entertainment."

You bet you can't. The public goes to a show to laugh or to rest. That comes first; the thinking they do about it ought to come the next day, or a month from the next day.

Mr. Crane never thought that he was the greatest actor in the world. He never stopped to ask himself whether he was great or if he could become so. He merely did his best. Now, after fifty-two years that is still his rule. When a "stage-struck" girl comes into one of his companies he asks her just one question, "Do you want to become a fine actress, or do you only want to gratify your pride and vanity?" Sometimes he puts it this way, "Is it work you want or notoriety?" He has no time for persons who are hunting fame. Those who work for him must be chiefly concerned about service.

When it came to authors Mr. Crane has wanted the works of men who came down to a human level, and he pleased the great mass. He had his ideals, but he never wanted them sung so high that nobody else could see them. He said to me the other day, "A great percentage of people resent being banged over the head by writer." writer.

Another object of Mr. Crane's career has been to keep his own stage clean. He has never played a suggestive part, nor taken a role in a play that was in the least "off" in its moral tone. "A time or two my managers have tried to get me into one of those French affairs," he said, "but I have a good old friend, who is a bishop, who every now and then tells his congregation that the stage would always be right for women and children, and for the church, too, if all the actors brought us the wholesome productions that I have always tried to offer, and I would not abuse that man's confidence for the gross receipts of every theater in America."

This has a double force, when you know that Crane is not a church man and that he adheres to no creed except that of the wholesome and the good. The soul of Crane is health, and his religion is healthy-mindedness.

If you go down the long list of his world-famed successes you will find only such works as "The Comedy of Errors," "David Harum," "Father and the Boys," "The Senator" and "The Henrietta," the latter now being "The New Henrietta," in which he is to appear at the Majestic a week from Monday night. He brings with him such wonderful people as Amelia Bingham, Mabel Taliaferro, Maclyn Arbuckle and Thomas W. Ross. It is really the same old "Henrietta" by Bronson Howard, but which has been brought down to the minute by clever young Winchell Smith, who will be here to rehearse it.

It was in "The Henrietta" that Mr. Crane and Stuart Robson were a great hit in 1887, and Mr. Crane still plays the part of old Nick Van Alstyne. He put it on in 1900, and even then it seemed very old-fashioned. Now, after twenty-seven years, it has been rewritten and is as modern as the last word in drama, with all the vigor of the original story preserved.

Mr. Crane is 70 years of age, but he never believes this until he reads it in a newspaper; then he knows it is so or the paper wouldn't publish it.

OPERA SEASON IS IN SIGHT.

CONSTANTINO PRIME MOVER IN LARGE PROJECT.

Two Engagements Here, Featuring Competent Artists, with Chorus and Orchestra Made up from Local Talent, are Planned—Kingsley to Give Organ Recital at Trinity.

Rumors of possible operatic projects locally have crystallized into something really tangible. This time it is Signor Florencio Constantino who is the prime mover, and the nature of the preparations that are being made would indicate that early in the fall Los Angeles music-lovers will be witnessing as excellent a season of musical dramatic efforts as have been seen in the city for a long time.

At present the heads of the enterprise are reticent as to the artists who will make up the company, but among those mentioned beside Signor Constantino are Mme. Alice Lorraine, prima donna soprano, and Marguerite Jarman, mezzo-soprano. A number of the principals will be imported, but the company will be largely made up of local talent.

Mrs. Harry Coe Ogden,

Dramatic soprano, who will assist Bruce Gordon Kinsley, organist, who has recently returned to this city, at a recital he will give this afternoon at Trinity Auditorium.

Agide Jacchia, unusually able conductor, who wielded the baton over Mario Lambardi's forces on more than one occasion here, may be secured as musical director of the productions. He is at present in New York.

The chorus for the operas will probably be the one which secured such high honors for itself in the "Fairyland" performances last month, and which has since been made a permanent organization. The orchestra will be composed of local musicians.

Up to the present most of the attention of the directors of the enterprise has been concentrated on the training of a ballet of sixteen members of Payne's Dancing Academy. These dancers have been receiving their instructions under the direction of Signor Mario Marti, who will be stage manager of the proposed productions.

Among the operas which in all probability will be given are "Faust," "Aida," Rigoletto," "Il Trovatore," "Lucia," "La Traviata" and "Lohengrin." Following the fall engagement here a tour will be made, and the opera company will return again to Los Angeles later in the season, according to present plans.

Ballet Russe.

One of the great artistic attractions during the coming season will be the Serge de Diaghilew Ballet Russe, which, following an engagement at the Metropolitan Operahouse for a season of four weeks, will make a tour of the leading cities of the United States, including in all probability Los Angeles. This ballet has already created a notable sensation in European circles.

Its repertoire includes dances arranged to the works of some of the greatest composers, as follows: "Les Sylphides" ("The Sylphs,") Chopin Glazounow; "Le Lieu Bleu" ("The Blue God,") Reynaldo Hahn; "L'Apres-Midi d'un Faune" ("The Faun's Afternoon,") Debussy; "Prince Igor," Borodin; "Le Pavillion d'Armide" ("The Pavilion of Armide,") Borodin; "Thamar," Barakirev; "Carnaval," Schumann; "Rapillons" ("Butterflies,") Schumann; "Le Spectre de la Rose" ("The Spectre of the Rose,") Berlioz; "Narcisse," Tzherepnin; "Petrouchka," Stravinsky; "Scheherazade," Rimski-Korsakow.

Kingsley Recital.

Bruce Gordon Kingsley, organist, who figured prominently in local musical circles several years ago, has returned to this city, and will give a recital at Trinity Auditorium this afternoon at 3 o'clock, to which the public is invited. He will be assisted by Mrs. Harry Coe Ogden, dramatic soprano, of Seattle. The programme, as announced, is made up entirely of selections from the music dramas of Wagner, except for two vocal numbers.

Dr. Kingsley has been touring for three years. During the spring he was engaged for three recitals on the mammoth organ in Festival Hall at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. So successful were these, artistically and financially, that the exposition authorities invited him to give a record engagement of thirty-five such concerts.

Mrs. Harry Coe Ogden, who will assist at the recital today, has been in this city but a short time. Last season she appeared in grand opera and concerts in the Pacific Northwest, making her headquarters in Seattle.

Following is the programme:

Vocal, Elizabeth's Greeting, "Tannhauser."
Organ, The Fire Music, "Die Walkuere."
Dance of the Apprentices, "Die Meistersinger."
Vocal (a) The Voices of Home, Sweet Home. B. G. Kingsley
(By request.)
(b) Ecstasy .... W. M. Rummel

Ingraham Musicale.

Miss Ethelyn Harrison, pianiste, will present the following artists in one of a series of musicales which she is giving at the Hotel Ingraham this evening: Holmes Bishop, baritone; Mrs. Holmes Bishop, soprano, and Miss Mae Gates, violiniste. The following programme will be given: "Serenade" and "Souvenir" (Drdla,) Miss Gates; "Under the Greenwood Tree" (Lehman,) Mr. and Mrs. Bishop; Melodie (Tschaikowsky,) Miss Gates; "Passage Bird's Farewell" (Hildach,) Mr. and Mrs. Bishop; "Chanson d'Amour" and "Russian Love Song" (Gordohn,) Miss Gates. Miss Harrison will assist at the piano.

To Head Department.

Olga Steeb, known as the "genius of the piano," is to head the piano department of the University of Redlands next year. The Los Angeles girl, who was acclaimed by the critics here and abroad as marvelously talented, is to take the place that was to have been filled by Prof. Carl Adolph Preyer. A backfire of his automobile broke his right arm and doctors say that he cannot play for a year. Dean Charles Edward Hubach of the College of Fine Arts, announced today that Miss Steeb would take up her work here when school opens. She now has engagements for a concert tour of the West and Middle West, but outside of this her entire time will be given to the university.

Sings at Exposition.

Molly Byerly Wilson, contralto, of this city, gave a recital at the San Diego exposition yesterday, accompanied by the large organ. A special reception, arranged by Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, member of the Southern California Panama Commission, will be given in her honor, at which she will also sing.

Appears at Fair.

R. Tenorydd Roberts, baritone, of this city, recently assisted Harold Gregoson, organist of Auckland, New Zealand, and late soloist at the Crystal Palace, London, in rendering a programme at the San Francisco exposition. He sang "Consider and Hear Me" of Alfred Wooler, and an old Welsh air, "Oh That Summer Smile for Aye," by W. Davies.

Leaves for East.

Marcella Craft has left San Francisco for the East. She will spend some time at Campbell Park, Ill., with her parents. She will then visit Mme. Schumann-Heink at the latter's home in Chicago. She will open her season the middle of October in a joint recital with Amato at Columbus, O. Her concert bookings include joint appearances with Fritz Kreisler and Mrs. H. H. A. Beach. Miss Craft will return to the Coast in the very early spring, having been re-engaged to sing at the Easter sunrise service at Mt. Roubidoux, Riverside.

Still on Coast.

Mrs. H. H. A. Beach is still in San Francisco and will probably complete some compositions on California themes before leaving for the East. Of the American composers who came west for the convention of musical clubs, she is the only one remaining.

Successful Recital.

A very successful children's recital was held at the Von Stein Academy of Music last Wedneday evening. A large audience was present.

Should Remain So.

[Saturday Evening Post:] In a border southern town lives an elderly negro carpenter who is locally distinguished for two things—his use of large words and his abiding fear of his wife, who is big, impressive and domineering. In this town a trio of young professional men keep bachelor quarters together.

Not so very long ago one of the three called the darky in to do some small repairing jobs about the apartment.

"Boss," inquired the old man, in the midst of his work, "does you white gen'l'mens live heah in total depravity of de feminine sex?"

"We do," was the answer.

From the bottom of his henpecked soul the old darky fetched up a long, deep, sincere sigh.

"Well, suh,' he said, 'ef I wuz ez you is, I should suttingly remain so."

"Aren't American men and women on speaking terms?" asked the woman who has lived abroad for ten years.

"I have been to nine hen parties in a week and Burton has attended five stag dinners. We have, in four weeks, been at two dinners and two dances together. Is American social life labeled 'For Women Only?' "

"Our men are so busy every day ——" apologized her sister.

"And night," frowned the speaker. "All Burton's stag dinners are business affairs. It is wrong to let men become absorbed in strictly business interests. It is pernicious for us to live on social piffle—alone."

"But what interest could men take in our —"

"But why make such a sharp definition of intellectual life?" interrupted the other. "Do you suppose all men and women want to share is breakfast, a few dances—and bills? American women are the clever conversationalists—when they are in feminine company. American men, too, have plenty of talk in their clubs and their own dens. Are we going to grow more feminine and more masculine until exclusiveness makes a gulf ——"

"But," protested her sister, who had been vainly trying to defend her kind. "I am sorry for the unmarried girls. I don't see how they can scrape up even a bowing acquaintance with a man. I've seen charming creatures dragged around to lunches, teas, receptions and matinees and even dinners, to clubs and philanthropies and lectures where there wasn't an eligible man in sight."

"Well ——"

"When I get home I shall specialize in young people. I shall do it to mix 'em up. Do you think I can make a bid for social favor if I guarantee, at my entertainments, to give you girls an opportunity not only to see but to talk with plenty of clever, interesting and even eligible young men?"

Her sister borrowed the other's vanity case and began to powder her nose deliberately.

"Yes," she admitted slowly, "if you are able to find such young men."

The Pursuit.

A thousand beauties that have never been
Haunt me with hope and tempt me to pursue;
The gods, methinks, dwell just behind the blue;
The satyrs at my coming fled the green.
The flitting shadows of the grove between
The dryads' eyes were winking, and I knew
The wings of sacred Eros as he flew
And left me to the love of things not seen.
'Tis a sad love, like an eternal prayer,
And knows no keen delight, no faint surcease.
Yet from the seasons hath the earth increase,
And heaven shines as if the gods were there.
Had Dian passed there could no deeper peace
Embalm the purple stretches of the air.

Spirit of California.

Ten years ago—art is indeed long and time fleeting—I wrote of Hanson Puthuff in this column: "He is a newcomer, but a most welcome one, as he is undoubtedly of the stuff that painters are made of. His handling is crisp and direct. His four canvases are the work of an impressionist who knows a paintable bit when he sees it."

And again, a few months later: "Those of us to whom Mr. Puthuff's honest work made so direct and so strong an appeal remember these four unpretentious canvases yet, and with no abatement of our first thrill of pleasure. 'Here is a man who will some day paint extraordinarily well,' we said to ourselves, 'and here is a man who will interpret great Nature's moods with a yet finer feeling and a still keener vision in the years to come. He is young, and he has only begun to grow.' "

Prophecy, as we all admit, is generally an act of crass supererogation. The stars clash so often in their courses that the prophet may be left alone, surrounded by ruined hopes and desolated glories. Lights are quenched, buds are blasted, iron bars are welded by the imp of circumstance. Nothing remains but the shadow of a dream.

But—and here's the point—ten years ago I did actually say these things of Hanson Puthuff's future career as a painter, and they actually have come to pass. Their fulfillment, indeed, was not long delayed, for year by year we noted progress in this artist's work, and at last, after a decade, the looked for "big thing" has arrived. And the painter is still young.

That big thing, I make no doubt, is bigger than Hanson Puthuff's fondest hopes, though I question if it is as big as thing that will follow it High stars do not always collide, summer's steady warmth comes after the nipping frosts of spring. The painter's desire of all desires, the opportunity to paint large mural decorations, is finding its satisfactions, for Puthuff is now working on ten of them, a series of landscapes embodying the "Spirit of California."

The ten panels, each 6 feet by 8 in size, are to be placed on the two longer walls of a motion-picture theater which Homer Laughlin, Jr., is building at Long Beach. Architecturally, it is promised, this theater will be the handsomest of its kind in the Far West, and the charm of its interior will be no less than that of its lines and proportions. All its parts will be in harmony, making it a thing of complete beauty.

Interesting problems of composition and color presented themselves, to be seized and triumphantly vanquished one by one. These, of course, come to every mural painter, giving peculiar zest to his task. The walls of the theater are to be a golden gray in tone, the drop curtain is to be burnt orange in color, and each panel is to have 26 feet of wall space. The panels will be sunk into spaces that are like votive niches in a church, and when the stage is occupied they will be covered by curtains, hitherto invisible and automatically manipulated, which are to be of the same gold-gray as the walls. Between acts the theater will be lighted like a picture gallery—which, indeed, it is, a gallery containing a one-man show of distinguished merit and interest.

Puthuff's scheme of color throughout all the panels is of necessity warm with many tints of gold, even though the subjects he has chosen, all Californian, are widely various. Their titles are, "The Arroyo," "Mountain Streams," "High Sierras," "Poppy Fields," "The Ocean," "The Desert," "Rainy Season," "Carmel Mission" and so on. Five of the decorative landscapes are already completed, and have been treated with splendid breadth and in full modeling. Flatter tones were eschewed as not being in harmony with the purposes of the theater and the intention of its builder.

The spirit of California is in truth found here in its many wonderful manifestations, a spirit so vast and so noble that its mighty beauty thrills the beholder. Puthuff has caught and recorded it again and again, on the mountains, in the valleys, along the ocean's shore, and with a masterful strength and directness that falls not far short of genuine inspiration. California's spirit must have gripped the painter's spirit hard to make him feel it so keenly.

One learns many secrets in ten years of close communion with the keeper of them—tremendous revelations, exquisite confidences, subtle suggestions. Puthuff has looked long and steadily, and at last he has been permitted to let us know what he has found out. He has discovered, indeed, overwhelmingly much, and the five panels already painted have fallen from his hands with the ease of amazing magic. The rest will follow as easily.

Stupendous range upon range of empurpled mountains, with clouds, pink and gold, piled above them heavenward, give grandeur to the decoration called "High Sierras," whose central peak is blotched with snow pallidly blue, and whose deep gorges hold many subtle colors. The picture has the commanding reposefulness, the overpowering majesty, of a mountain scene by Thomas Moran.

Far below the mountains lies "The Arroyo" in loveliest humility. Puthuff's panel portrait shows it when clothed in the golden veil of autumn. The distant hillsides are like pure gold, and so are the leaves of the gnarled old sycamore in the immediate foreground. But the slender stream is of glancing silver, and the far-off mountains show the deep blue of lazuli.

"Poppy Fields" brings us to spring time—the green and glowing spring of Southern California, when every hollow is a casket rich with jewels; when every hillock is studded with coins of gleaming gold. In composition this panel is especially successful, full of flowing rhythms. There is bigness here, but there is also beauty, strength and also refinement. No wonder the poets must sing the spring, the painters paint it!

Sunset's saffron sky, lovely and luminous, reaches above the cold graying sands and huddled clumps of sagebrush in "The Desert," the fourth panel in the series. A solitary cloud, dizened in pink and gold, is seen high afloat in the clear atmosphere. Toward the horizon a dark mesa massed and sculptured like a long purple tomb, emphasizes the wild loneliness of it all—as well as the splendid freedom and the uplift to the spirit. The scene has been transcribed with the utmost simplicity and truth.

"The Beach" holds the same impassioned beauty, the same august grandeur, that characterize the other panels of California. The clouds, almost hiding the light blue sky of late afternoon, pile up in tones of pink and yellow and colorful grays, the hills and rocks to the left hold many tawny hues, while the ledges still nearer have been enameled by the waves in greens and wine browns. The many curving arms of the shore reach out to the surges of a sea that sways with mighty motion, and crushes itself beryl hues upon the rocks.

I have shown, I think, that Hanson Puthuff has superbly felt the spirit of California in these five pictures. We may be equally sure that his inspiration will not fail him in the five that are soon to follow.

Traveling Exhibitions.

The California Art Club, which has for some years maintained exhibitions of paintings and scuptures in Los Angeles, has undertaken a new venture of similar nature, which it wishes to bring to the attention of woman's clubs, parent-teacher associations, church federations, and other civic and educational bodies in Southern California.

There is fast building up in this State an art of an indigenous and intimate nature and character. It is strengthened, rather than hindered, by our isolation from European and eastern influences—a measurable isolation, that is to say. As the artist always feels, in his search for an audience, that it is his neighbor and fellow-countryman who should largely make it up—and this not from duty, but rather from a certain sympathy that should exist between those who are so situated as to enjoy the same phases of visual beauty, day after day—therefore, the club as a gathering of artists appeals to other organizations that are progressive and forwardlooking, as bodies that are confronting the same cultural problems. Many untoward influences come between the local artist and the local public, and prevent his directly reaching them. These need not be enumerated. It is only necessary to say that the means to set them aside and develop appreciation and a true standard of taste rests only with such organizations, for they are cleaving to high ideals not tainted by commercialism.

In placing this announcement before such bodies the California Art Club feels that it is confiding its enterprise to organizations of a character in harmony with its purpose, which is to bring about a more worthy and more appreciated development of the fine arts in California. The club is pledged to the advancement of art here, and no work finds its way into its exhibitions that is not passed upon by the best of its members and found to be of merit.

During the summer the club has collected an exhibition of some of the best work of its members, which will be termed the "traveling exhibition" of the club, to be at the disposal of any club, school or organization making application, stating the date for which it is desired and the length of time that it is to be shown. The only cost will be the expressage from the Art Club headquarters and return. The pictures will be framed in uniform style and the total weight will be reduced to the lowest minimum that is practicable. There will also be a supplementary exhibition of water colors, etchings and photographic reproductions of paintings and sculptures, so that even the smallest organization may have an exhibition.

A feature that the club feels will be of special interest is a set of stereopticon slides that have been made during the summer, of paintings and statues, the work of the members. These slides are in the lumiere process of color photography and show the true colors of the works. They have nothing in common with the ordinary hand-colored slides. In connection with these slides Miss Alma May Cook, at one time art reviewer on a Los Angeles paper, will give an address explaining the pictures and speaking of the work being done in California, as well as the general movement looking toward American art for Americans. The speaker will go to any club, school or organization free of charge, and when the stereopticon slides are used the only charge will be for the use of a stereopticon machine and the services of an expert operator—approximately $6.

The club wishes to emphasize the noncommercial aspect of the movement. No effort will be made to sell the paintings, and all who are connected with the work are donating their services.

Such a movement toward creating a public interest in the higher field of the fine arts may have a very lasting effect on the art of California, and the club believes that it should look first of all to those organizations which develop public opinion of the day and are vitally interested in all that tends to the betterment of our civic and community life in every field, and it feels assured that this work will be welcomed in the programmes of the year.

For further information, and to make application, address Miss Alma May Cook, No. 1810 Avalon street, Los Angeles.

ART NOTES.

The California Art Club has moved from the Copp Building, where it was housed for some years, to one of the buildings of the old Normal School on Fifth street. One entire floor will be at its disposal, thus furnishing the club plenty of desirable room.

Emily White and Nona White gave up their summer studio at Laguna Beach some weeks ago. They left August 19 for San Francisco and Denver, from where they will go to their old home, Peoria. They will hold an exhibition of western pictures in Chicago during the autumn.

Rose Lippincott, for the past year assistant curator of the art department of the museum at Exposition Park, has resigned her position that she may spend a year of study in New York. She is an artist of many gifts who cannot fail to profit by the eastern schools.

Florine Hyer, painter of California roses, has again resumed the brush, and has taken a studio in Blanchard Hall. Miss Hyer had the distinction of painting flowers all summer in the garden of the wonder worker, Burbank.

EDUCATORS, SCIENTISTS.

Dr. Samuel Gibson Dixon, who has been awarded a gold medal for his work along health and sanitation lines by the superior jury of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, is the State Commissioner of Health for Pennsylvania, an office which he has filled for many years. Since 1890 he has been professor of bacteriology and microscopic technology at the University of Pennsylvania. He is the author of the work, "Physiological Notes," and has also written many articles for medical journals.

Dr. Richard Pearson Strong, having quelled the epidemic of typhus fever in Servia, thereby saving countless thousands of lives, now returns to this country to resume his place as professor of tropical medicine at the Harvard Medical School. He had previous plague experience in the Philippines and China. At the conclusion of his work in China he attached himself to Harvard University, where he has operated along research lines.

Dr. Maude Slye, the University of Chicago medical research worker, who recently established the theory that cancer is inherited and not contagious, as a result of ten years' experiments with mice, has been awarded the Howard Taylor Hicketts prize by the faculty of the university medical school.

D. Alfred Charles True of the Department of Agriculture is the chief of the new bureau of the States relation service, which will take over the work of farmers' co-operative demonstrations, agricultural schools, farmers' institutes, and the maintenance of agricultural stations in Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, and Guam. Since 1893 he has been editor-in-chief of the Experiment Station Record and Expert Station Work. He is also agricultural editor of the "New International Encyclopaedia and Year Book."

"Old age," says John Burroughs, the great naturalist, "is not such a bugaboo after all. He is, in many ways, better to live with than youth, because he leaves you more at your ease; you are in the calmer waters; the fret and fever of life have greatly abated. Old age brings the philosophical mind; he brings a deeper, wider outlook upon life; he brings more tolerance and charity and good will. I did not squander my youth in excesses, and hence I am not bankrupt in my old age."

Dr. George Edgar Vincent, formerly of Chicago University, but now president of the University of Minnesota, an after-dinner speaker of national reputation, is conceded to be the fastest talker in the United States. No stenographer able to keep up with him could be found when he first came to Minneapolis, and "I can take Vincent" are supposed to be the last words in recommendation for a stenographer seeking a position where rapid work is necessary.

Invents a Kiss Resonator.

Joshua is the father of three perfectly kissable daughters. Men called on them sometimes. Joshua felt his parental responsibility, so he invented the resonator.

"It catches and increases sound," Joshua explained. "When there is any kissing going on in the parlor the sound floats through this machine and I hear it all, but much louder. Just common kissing on the cheek or neck sounds like a Baltimore & Ohio train going over Turkey Foot crossing, and long, hugging kisses are like the wind blowing in November. Good-night kissing sounds like cannon shots.

"What I need now is a machine that will tell me what to do about it."

He was born in a little town eight miles from Worcester, Mass., and has a prize that he won in spelling in 1857, when he was 12 years of age. He gave his first minstrel show in a barn loft with a lot of other boys. The admission was 2 cents, and they made nearly $3. He was then 17, and not until 18 years of age did he become a professional.

It was the possession of a good singing voice which then took him to the stage. As a member of the chorus in the Holman English Opera Company in 1863 he distinguished himself sufficiently to win the chief comedy part, and he has been one of the richest of America's funmakers for more than half a century.

When Joseph Jefferson, Mr. Crane, Nat Goodwin, William Marlowe and a long list of wonderful stars were making their great tour of America several years ago, Jefferson had Crane read their proposed play to him, and was surprised to see that Crane was expected to die in the last act.

"I don't believe, Willie, that this will do," said Jefferson in his thin, trembling voice. "When the people see Irving they expect him to die, and when they see Mansfield, by gad, they hope he will die, but I don't believe the American public wants you to die. I don't think they will like it at all."

Still Mr. Crane died on that tour at every performance. He insisted on it, and the public accepted the act in good faith. I think they would accept anything from Mr. Crane, except his retirement.

Too Warm an Invitation.

[Philadelphia Telegraph:] The conversation at a club recently took a histronical turn, when Senator Jacob H. Gallinger of New Hampshire, recalled an appropriate anecdote.

Some time ago, he said, an ambitious young actor started out to set the world on fire with his particular brand of dramatic matches, but after a short time he returned, looking rather dejected.

"What's the matter, old boy?" asked one of his friends, solicitously. "Wasn't the tour a success?"

"Hardly," painfully smiled the young actor, "since I went out in a touring car and came back in a jitney."

"Didn't the crowd give you any encouragement?" persisted the other. "Didn't they ask you to come before the curtain?"

"Ask me," returned the actor, with another cold smile. "The night I played 'Hamlet,' they dared me to come before the curtain."

GOVERNMENT BY MAIL.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

In these days of speed and efficiency, time and distance are being annihilated. "Here she comes; there she goes" is the text of the time and we can both learn and obtain almost anything by mail.

Peleg Winterbottom, the owl-eyed philosopher of Boyle Heights, exclaimed: "Thank God, they can't cut my hair by mail," and then his nephew told him there was a shop on Main street where he could have it cut by male or female—as they had barbers of both sexes.

But they do a lot of things by mail besides sending letters, newspapers and seed catalogues. Presently we will have government by mail—the petticoat government by female we have with us always.

Just think of the notes the administration has been writing to the Kaiser, the King and the Emperor. It illustrates the possibilities of government by mail and wire. If we have a grudge against Carranza, instead of sending a large and aggressive army or a steel-shod battleship we sit at a mahogany desk and dash off a postal card advising him that we are well and hope these few lines will find him the same—doggone him, and if he don't behave we'll make faces at him. It is inexpensive and is reasonably satisfactory as long as nothing happens, but of course it doesn't add much to the prestige of the nation in a concert of the world powers.

But they are saying one can do almost anything by mail. There are schools of correspondence that claim to teach everything from blacksmithing to statesmanship. A girl who learned manicuring that way is now running a school of her own—but they spell it differently. Hers is now a school of co-respondents. At least that's what the judge said who heard the Smith divorce case.

The plowboy now goes to the mail box to learn how to be a canal builder, an orator or a brakeman. One would think some owl-like gink with a massive dome must be behind this vast array of technical knowledge, but if you happen to break into headquarters about all you would find would be a bunch of flossy stenographers and a smear of cheap books.

But they deliver the goods, and these night schools by parcel post have brightened up the thoughtworks of many an ambitious kid. Lessons by letter will not create something out of nothing, but given a youth who is eager to learn and everything helps. The mail box may become the people's college through the flood of information that passes through it. A few postage stamps will bring you full knowledge of how to raise soy beans, do tricks of parlor magic, play the ukulele, blow up a tire, or build a silo. You can learn to swim by mail, but when you go into a large wet ocean don't lose sight of the life guard.

Rural delivery and the parcel post handle almost everything that is movable. The postoffice department is the biggest end of the government business and is frightfully expensive. The division is head overheals in debt but a service once established seems destined to remain and there is no intent to curtail the great field now served. They are sending bees, pullets, bonnets and beer by mail. The farmer sends his eggs, fruit, spring onions and fryers by post and when he gets his money back he takes down a bulky catalogue of a Chicago mail-order-house and buys his Sunday clothes, his hardware and his tobacco. He doesn't have to leave the ranch if he doesn't want to, but as he probably has a good road and a six-cylinder car, he does—but only for pleasure. His business is done by mail.

When his oranges are ripe he writes to the shippers' association and experienced men come and pick and sort and pack and ship his stuff and when the transaction is complete, the mail brings him a check for the proceeds.

What is home without two mail deliveries a day?

They are trying to solve some scheme whereby people may vote by mail. The idea has some features to recommend it and doubtless a trial will some day be attained. But presumably the party in power at the time would retain some immense advantage in the doing.

The government has a heavy charge on its hands in preventing frauds and crimes by mail. The temptation to use the mails in many classes of felonies is irresistible. A complete censorship is impossible and so Uncle Sam's hirelings can only do their best to head off offenders and make horrible examples of those who are caught.

Even a proposal of marriage by mail may become a felony under certain circumstances, but no girl is likely to hold it against you if you haven't the courage to propose any other way.

Make room for government by mail.

Sweethearts.

I'll bet my mother's glad that she
Has got vacation days and me;
That is to say that I have got Vacation days, and when it's hot
I am at home here all day long;
It helps to fill her days with song
When she ain't never left alone;
And she buys me an ice cream cone,
And she makes me the nicest tarts,
And she says us two is sweethearts.

And she lets me squirt with the hose,
And don't care when I muss my clothes;
And even when I slam the door,
And when I muddy up the floor,
She doesn't say a word to me
But seems as pleased as she can be;
And when I stand beside her chair,
She hugs me and she smoothes my hair,
And seems to get a heap of joy
From knowin' that I am her boy.

Another feller that I knowed,
That lived the other side the road,
Caught something bad and went and died;
And when he did my mother cried
And hugged me right up to her tight,
An' made me sleep with her that night
And now she doesn't ever scold,
And likes to have my hands to hold,
And she makes me some dandy tarts;
And I am glad that we're sweethearts.

Dear Memories.

Dear memories more fair to build her shrine,
Than sculptured monument from master hands,
A temple mine, in which each tender line
Is but the flowering of her love. Here stands
In pointed spire her spirit fine and pure,
On arch whose key is held by truth serene,
A lovely edifice. Her faith so sure,
Inspired with trust of Him who rules unseen,
Had laid the corner-stone; and all the grace
Of her dear thought, her rare unselfishness
Had mothered it with sense that seemed divine.
As when God's spirit gently touched the face
Of some dear saint, whom we have come to bless,
With inner light. Such light, dear one, was thine.

On the Border.

I am living on the border of the happy land of dreams,
Where the beautiful that isn't and the beautiful that seems
Blend above the sordid moment painting golden every hour
And beneath the feet that struggle planting summer's velvet flower.

I can hear the ages scoffing at my immaterial joy,
But above their roaring thunder rings the laughter of the boy,
And with all his dreams upon him as in boyhoods far away,
I am turning back to summer through the cold and blustery day.

There's an angel on the border where by banks of dream I stand,
And he has a rose of beauty like a banner in his hand,
So I may not feel the danger of not caring to come back
When the morning whistles echo and I buckle on my pack.
—[Bentztown Bard.

The Dancing Child.

A twinkling ray as like a ray
As anything could be;
A violet in a sunny way,
A quaint fragility.
An ecstasy of movement blown
As songs are blown along
The gales of dream from lands unknown
In faery vales of song.

The swinging bloom
Of lilies white,
The pink bloom of the rose;
A shuttle weaving in the light
A shadow's furbelows.
A bubble at a sunbeam's brim,
A lilac at the gate,
So slender and so fairy-slim
And gossamer-delicate.

And now a little wave she is
That ripples to the shore,
And now a leaf that on the storm
Comes bouncing to the door.
A moonbeam on the window sill
Of Queen Mab's palace white,
A shadow on the sunny hill,
Ineffable as light.

IN FORMER DAYS.

Gas was used to replace candles and lamps at a factory in Manchester in 1805, two years before the illuminant was introduced into London.

The earliest artillery guns were made from wrought iron bars, bound together like the staves of a cask by the shrinking over them of iron hoops.

The Romans, who were the first to make war a real art (if one forgets a certain Alexander,) were in consequence the first to use trenches. Their main line of intrenchment ran across Southern Germany from the east bank of the Rhine to near the present Stuttgart.

In 1760, during the seven years' war, the Russians, under Gen. Todleben, captured the city of Berlin, and levied an indemnity of 4,000,000 thalers almost $3,000,000. Writers of that day say that the Russian soldiers acted very well and under perfect discipline, but the Austrians, then their allies, were "perfect brigands," looting not only private houses, but churches and hospitals.

The Winchester Repeating Arms Company of New Haven, Ct., has put into effect a pension system that applies to about 12,000 persons.

A man who has worked for the company thirty years may be, upon his request, retired at the age of 55. A woman who has worked thirty years may be retired at the age of 50. The company, at its discretion, may retire and place on the pension list any male employee who is 60 years old, and has worked for the company twenty-five years, or any female employee of 55, after like service.

The amount of pension is based upon the employee's average annual pay during five years preceding retirement, but no pension is to be less than $20 a month.

Dr. Louise Taylor Jones of Washington has sailed from New York to organize a baby hospital in plague-infested Servia. Dr. Jones has been active in many social endeavors in the capital, and her recent most notable work has been in charge of the baby camp in Rock Creek Park. She is sacrificing a large practice, it is claimed, to establish the new war-field hospital under Red Cross auspices, and for which the people of the United States have contributed practically all of the funds. The baby hospital is to be named in honor of Mme. Slavko Grouitch, formerly of West Virginia, and now the wife of the Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs for Servia.

At Brewster, N. Y., last week, Miss Isabel Keys, 16 years old, risked her life to save a young man, and she succeeded while hundreds watched her struggles in the water.

The girl has been passing the summer in a camp for girls at Peach Ridge, near Brewster, and bordering on Peach Lake. Three young men in bathing suits arrived on the other shore of Peach Lake in an automobile and went in for a swim. One of these young men swam far out into the lake, giving the girls on the opposite shore the idea that he was trying to reach them. In the middle of the lake he was seized with a cramp, cried out and went down.

Miss Keys, the best swimmer at the camp, jumped into a canoe and paddled out into the lake. When she reached the spot where the young man had gone down she purposely capsized the canoe and dived.

It was so long before she rose to the surface that her friends became alarmed and put out in other canoes. But when she did come up she held the unconscious man, who had sunk. He was limp and apparently lifeless, and the canoe had floated far away. Miss Keys, breathing heavily, held him to the surface until boats reached her, but while she was trying to help him into a boat he slipped from her grasp and sank.

Again she went down for him, seized him from the bottom of the lake and carried him to the surface. There boat hooks were fastened into his bathing suit and he was towed to the girls' camp. Miss Keys, almost exhausted, held to the stern of one of the boats and was towed ashore.

Many public bequests were contained in the will of William H. Swasey of Newburyport, Mass., among the more important being $20,000 to the First Religious Society (Unitarian) of Newburyport; $10,000 to Tuskegee Normal and Industrial School, and $15,000 to the Public Library of Newburyport.

Each year former State Senator James Young of Baltimore gives the seventy-five or more inmates of the Children's Home and Maryland Industrial School for Girls at Brehms Shore, and the occasion is looked forward to with the keenest interest by the children, ranging from 6 to 18 years. This year when they arrived at the farm after an automobile ride, everything was theirs. An elaborate dinner was served, and the afternoon was spent in rambles in the woods, crabbing on the shore, or in any other amusement desired.

The principle that lack of money shall not in itself bar deserving young men and women of La Crosse, Wis., from a college education will be laid down by the alumni of La Crosse High School.

Students showing special aptitude, having a definite aim in life and considered worthy of confidence, may tender their High Schol diplomas as collateral for loans of $800 fora period of four school years, to be repaid after graduation from a university and starting to work.

Supt. Benezet of the city schools, Principal McCormick and Frank P. Hixon, millionaire, are backing the plan.

Repeating the Prescription.

[New York Times:] A well-known lawyer was trying to make clear to a legal student the significance of the term "colored evidence," meaning that evidence which has been tampered with.

"The best illustration I can think of came within my observation not long ago," said the lawyer. "A physician had said to a fair patient:

"'Madame, you are a little run down. You need frequent baths and plenty of fresh air, and I advise you to dress in the coolest, most comfortable clothes; nothing stiff or formal.'

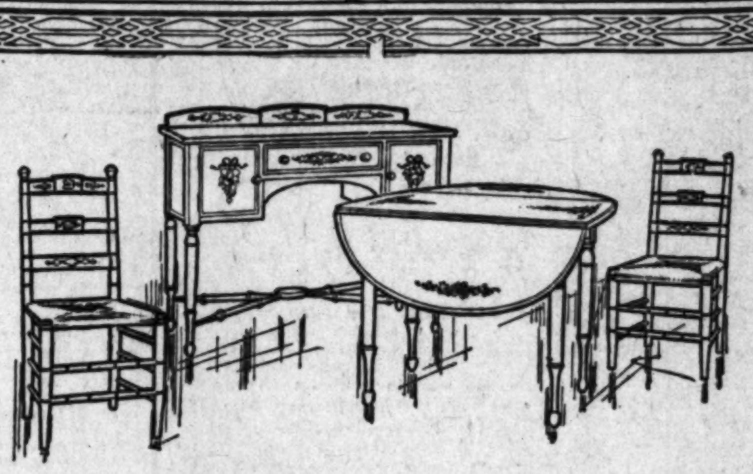
"When the lady got home this is how she rendered to her husband the advice given to her by the doctor:

"'He says I must go to the seashore, do plenty of motoring, and get some new summer gowns.'"

Quick, Painless Way To Remove Hairy Growths

(Helps to Beauty)

Here is a simple, unfailing way to rid the skin of objectionable hairs: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface, apply and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This is quite harmless, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the delatone in an original package.



The Breakfast Room

And the Newest Furnishings for It

THE great convenience of the breakfast room in the modern home has made it a real necessity. Realizing this, we have given much serious thought to its furnishing, and have now on display an array of newest breakfast room sets that will certainly elicit your sincerest admiration.

A very striking set, illustrated above, is finished in black enamel, with bright but small yellow striping and delicate floral ornamentation in multicolor. The design is light and graceful—early American in sentiment with a slight reminder of the work of the English masters. It is hand worked entirely; even to the minute, many-colored flowerets. The chairs have the pleasing, old-fashioned flag or rush seats.

Another set similar to this is finished in deep ivory enamel, with flowers; chairs upholstered in tapestry or to order.

And so on, down through a wide range of other unique sets, white enamel with black decorations, mahogany and ivory combined, plain white with quaint oval-topped tables, and many others.

Our close-margin pricing system brings them in reach of all. Finely enameled chairs as low as $2.75 and up; good sized breakfast tables, $6.00 and up; etc. Any special finish to order.

It would be a genuine pleasure to show you these new sets, whether you care to buy now or not. Come any time and bring with you other lovers of beautiful furniture.

This week one of our windows will show a very unusual breakfast room set made on special order for a fine out-of-town home.

TOGETHER LET US GO

Downtown and Inspect Olive Gray and Other [illegible]
Also Other Fine Things.

Now is the time to buy:

The serge one-piece frock for wear during the first cool days. There are bargains in such garments which would tempt the [illegible] economical purse.

Silk for lining the slumber robe, either of patch work or other [illegible] work. In the August clearance sales silks of good quality and [illegible] weaves or designs may be found for a few cents per yard. These [illegible] be just right for lining purposes.

Practical Suggestion.

After opening your can of Crisco or other cocking fat, attach to the cover one of the little wooden knobs which you can purchase for about a nickel a half dozen. You will find it much more convenient to remove the cover when it is thus treated. In fact, so convenient are cans thus equipped that one is apt to keep them as receptacles, after the fat is used. This is the Good Housekeeper's invention.

So Foreign!

It is like a glimpse into a foreign land—that window of a jewelry house on lower Broadway wherein are to be seen those brilliant pollies, upon brass ring all be-tasselled! The gorgeousness of the (china) plumage on those lovely birds would illumine any room. It actually raises the spirits to see them. Then there are those charming glass globes, upon standards, with flowers in nature's own tinting, painted upon both globe and standard. These are the homes of live gold fishes, which add their glint to the brightness of the Chinese silken tassels and cords encircling the rims of the globes. Altogether the window is most attractive and moreover it at once suggests the possession of one or more of those articles to add a high note of color to some room at home.

Why We Do?

And is it not for the very purpose of catching some new idea for use in the home, that we visit the downtown streets? That we gaze into the windows? That we ask of each other the pulsing question—"What's new?" The home is our treasure-house—the place for which we live as well as in which we live. The best that we have or wish to have is for that place. Something novel and pretty for the home—furniture, rugs, draperies, pictures, bric-a-brac, conveniences for keeping the place tidy and clean, food for the home table, garments for those in the home. When we come to think it over—all is for the home, in one way or another. Even flowers, plants, shrubbery—things for out of doors are to make the home surroundings more attractive. And is it not for all this that men toil? To gain money to make home more homey and the family more happy? So all downtown, whether it be the beauty spots in the stores and windows, or the less interesting places, such as offices and factories—all are to contribute toward the home, that which is at the heart of all, whether it be humble or stately, large or small.

But for Going Away.

Even going away, is that we may return to the home and doubly enjoy its comforts. If you are about to do this, you will find an opportunity to purchase the new trunk—one of that never-never-get-hurt sort, for about half what you expected to pay. There are a few of them and if you rise with the sun or some other lucky orb on Monday morning, you will be able to secure one. THE WEEK.

PARTIES, RECEPTIONS, DINNERS, WEDDINGS AND THE LIKE.

NEVER has old Father Neptune enjoyed a great popularity with the "earther children" than this present season! In fact, 'tis safe to wager that every vestige of loyalty has been required to keep him from bodily transferring his favoritism from his own Nereids to our incomparable kiddies.

And such a cluster of rose-faced, bright human flowers as are now basking in Southern California's sunshine and whiling away their hours right merrily on the white sands of the Pacific, sailing their boats or building huge forts impenetrable but to the mighty force of the high tide, which half-coaxingly blends the work of their little hands with its own playful, cajoling whims! And anyway, it is half the fun to watch the waves battling against their bulwarks until they go a-tumbling.

The shovel and pail brigade, made up of the tiniest little folk, must, in truth, make the mer-babes envious!

Our own Southern California child garden has been augmented by a host of important little visitors, who are finding the days too short in which to discover the wonders abounding at the oceanside.

The great exodus of Los Angeles people to the various beaches has taken an army of the mighty atoms to either Venice, Santa Monica, Ocean Park, Hermosa, Long Beach, Manhattan, Balboa and Newport, Redondo or Playa del Rey. And all down the coast, as far as Coronado.

Beautiful Long Beach seems just now to hold sovereignty in the number of little folk at the beach for the summer. There are so many from far-away States stopping with their parents at the Hotel Virginia. And every attention is being paid them. For instance, there is a twilight story hour, and a room, indoor place to play.

Edward Cooke, Jr., of Oklahoma City—and some tennis player, by the way—gave a party for several of these visitors on Saturday last, in honor of his attaining his 10th year. It was a Pike party, with stops at certain movies to see Mary Pickford or other favored stars; rides on the merry-go-round, and merriment untold that appeals to the light-heared contingent of youngsters. Later, in the private dining-room of the Hotel Virginia, where all are stopping, they were seated at a festive board holding suggestively in its center a beautiful birthday cake surmounted by eleven burning tapers—one on which to grow—pink baby rosebuds being wreathed around the piece de resistance. The same appropriate flowers were strewn over the cloth. Everything was in pink, with billows of pink tulle. Olive Ellis of San Antonio—whose stepfather, Maj. Martin of Texas, has seen illustrious service for his country for thirty-five years, only having been retired since May—who is a little beauty known around the hotel as the Dresden doll, was there, with lovely Jane Williams of Kansas City and the latter's cousin, Allen Aylesworth. Jane's mother, Mrs. Charles H. Williams, has been called one of the prettiest women of Kansas City, and her petite daughter gives promise of developing into that class herself, 'ere long. Morris McIntyre of Kansas City was also one of the guests, as was Jack Hereford, a manly little fellwf of 9 years, who comes from Tuscon. Jack has a baby brother, Teddy, and a sure-nuff big brother Rockwell, the trio enjoying great popularity among the Virginia guests. Eleanore Blake of Oklahoma City, a precious bundle of femininity, who has seen six summers, and Dorothy Jane Markham of Tulsa, Okla., were also present. Dorothy is an unusually attractive girl, tall and willowy, with great long-lashed eyes and curls.

Virginia Seeley of Los Angeles, who spends a lion share of her vacation time with her parents and the Drakes, was bidden but her parents went to the mountains at the last moment for the week-end.

The delighted host, Edward Jr., also celebrated his fourth birthday in California, at Coronado that time. His charming mother, Mrs. E. H. Cooke, fears Edward Jr. is fast acquiring the expensive habit of desiring to celebrate each milestone in this State, else it isn't a real birthday and doesn't count. Mrs. Cooke was assisted by Miss Mary Baker of Oklahoma and Miss Mary Halsell of Kansas City.

It's rather difficult to settle down to commonplace social life after a week of scintillating, brilliant functions planned in honor of the gallant Annapolis Navy Squadron and their peerless officers who were our honored guests from Monday until early Thursday morning.

Shrine Auditorium on Monday night was a scene of animation, gayety, beautiful young girls, music and the joy of living. Our prettiest buds were there, chaperoned by parents and friends, and their programmes were filled almost before they made their way into the auditorium. There were no wallflowers.

And the news of two days' extension to the stay of the boys was immediately received by further plans for their enjoyment.

Wednesday night they attended the ball at Hotel Virginia, and here an ingenious innovation was introduced which immediately spelled informality. The dancers were told to form circles, and did the old "grand-right-and-left," with a sudden call to dance with whomever was nearest. How could they feel strangers after that!

One of the loveliest functions was given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Burton E. Green at her Beverly home, which, by the way, is very new. While the function was small, it was stamped by its prettily arranged features.

Capt. John T. Tompkins, Commander of the U.S.S. Ohio, and a party of his midshipmen, were in attendance to meet the hostess' niece, Miss Mildred Wellborn, and a bevy of smart debutantes and others soon to make their official bow to society. It was a tea dansant with dancing on the third floor of the Green home, No. 1601 Lexington Road.

Tea was served in the garden, Mrs. William Howard Thomas and Mrs. Stanley Smith pouring at a table exquisitely done in Enchantress carnations and gypsophila, with fern fronds. McVea's orchestra played both in the garden and ballroom.

Bidden were: Miss Wellborn, Miss Anita Thomas and her charming young house guest, Miss Harriet Bush of Kalamazoo, Mich., who is to stay in the City of the Angels until the last of October; Miss Emeline Childs Miss Rosemary Sartori, Miss Amy Busch and her guest, Miss Dorothea Stephens, of Moline, Ill., Miss Eleanor Banning, the Misses Mary and Rosario Dockweiler, Miss Louise Forve, Miss Rosemary Rollins, Miss Julia Hayward, Miss Dorothy Jones, Miss Ruth Powell, Miss Rachel Ward, Miss Sylvia Moore, Miss Delight Shaffer, Miss Mary Hughes, Miss Constance Currie and Miss Leila Holterhoff.

Mrs. Julius Kruttschnitt, Jr., and her adorable children are valuable assets to the social life of the Virginia. Mr. Kruttschnitt is soon to join his family. The lucky youngsters have for their grandfather the head of the Southern Pacific system, and one of the big railroad men of the country. Mr. Kruttschnitt, Jr., is connected with the Guggenheim interests, with headquarters at Tucson.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Gilcrist are enjoying the presence of their daughter and grand-child from Covina—the little bonneted face in the group of kiddies—who is as light on her feet as her Pasadena uncle—known for his splendid dancing—and expects fully as much attention as has always been shown her own pretty mamma.

The John W. Soden group of children possess the most remarkable tresses—all four of them. And the beauty to accentuate it! They come from Kansas City, and are almost yearly visitors.

But not only as to children is the noted resort favored by its summer colony of pleasure seekers.

For instance, there is Mrs. Edwin Frances Holmes, who since the day of her arrival at Hotel Virginia, fully a fortnight since, has not appeared in the same toilette more than once, and her jewels are said to be of remarkable value and beauty. Mrs. Holmes lives in Amelia's palace in the Mormon City, Salt Lake, and gives some of the most lavish entertainments on the social calendar. She has been coming to California for years, having spent many winters in Pasadena. Above all, she excels in the Terpsichorean art.

Another stunning visitor is Mrs. Laurette Johnstone Hill of Philadelphia. Mrs. Hill won a Carnegie medal for bravery a few years ago, when she saved over fifty lives in a fire in her eastern home, though she was badly burned in so doing. She is won completely over to California.

These matrons figured prominently at the naval ball given at the hotel Wednesday night. Another attractive matron, Mrs. Ward Bright of St. Louis, and her equally pretty young daughter also came in for much attention.

Manager William P. Nestle is arranging for a masquerade ball Friday, and the weekly Saturday night dances are fixtures in the gay side of life. On Wednesday nights the guests dance on the tennis courts, with only the star-studded sky for a canopy.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Myers are doing some clever exhibition dancing there, their most recent attempt being what they aptly term "The Evolution of the Waltz." The episode goes back many years to the time when the old Dutch waltz was so popular, and they dance this with the wooden shoe effect. Following in the order named and with an intermission of but four bars of music, come the "Balance Waltz," the "Spring Waltz," the "Smooth Waltz," the "Boston," "Hesitation" and "Lame Duck" waltzes, then the "Modern Hesitation" and lastly the "Modern Waltz," which is the last word in waltzing. The orchestra played appropriate melodies to further the effectiveness of the episode, which embraces a period of over 100 years.

Burnett-Hunt Engagement.

Miss Mildred Burnett and John Percival Hunt will be married September 22. Mrs. Frank W. Burnett will tell her friends this interesting piece of news today when she announces the engagement of her popular and charming daughter. Society has suspected that the young people were engaged for some time, but they guarded their secret closely.

The wedding will be a very quiet home affair at the Burnett place at Eighth and Beacon streets, as Mrs. Burnett is still in mourning for her husband.

Mildred Burnett has lived in Southern California all her life and is one of the best known and best loved of our young society maidens. Her fiance is also prominent in the younger set, and all his business interests are in Los Angeles, so that marriage will not deprive us of their company.

Santa Monica Auction Devotees.

A congenial coterie of Santa Monica ladies enjoyed another bridge tea on Tuesday as guests of Mrs. Thomas Horace Dudley. Following cards, tea was served in the cool garden. A lavender and white floral motif was carried out in the decorations. Bidden were Mrs. John C. Niven, Mrs. B. Orlando Bruce, Mrs. John Hickman, Mrs. Tom Bundy, Miss Caroline Winston, Mrs. Walter Leeds, Mrs. Gladys Widdowson, Miss Florence Sutton, Mrs. A. B. Cass, Mrs. Sanson, Mrs. J. W. Hendricks, Miss Mary Browne, Mrs. Louise Williams, Miss Louise G. Burke, Miss Katherine Mellus; Mrs. Martin, formerly Miss McAdoo, daughter of our Secretary of the Treasury; Mrs. Frank Carpenter, Mrs. Moye Stephens, Mrs. Norman Macbeth, Mrs. Nebeker, Mrs. Balguy, Mrs. Blackwell, Miss Gladys Blackwell, Mrs. Jock McConnachie, Mrs. Nell K. Spencer Schwartz, Mrs. William Stoneham, Mrs. G. L. Waring, Mrs. Claude Ogden, Mrs. Edwin Flowers, Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. Roy Bundy, Mrs. Rathburn, Mrs. Sidney Walles, Mrs. Hermann Janss, Mrs. Leo Chandler, Mrs. Harry Gordon Pattee, Mrs. E. P. Morphy, Mrs. Addison Smith, Mrs. Machie, Mrs. Whitaker, Mrs. Claude Ogden, Mrs. J. R. F. Wagner, Miss Arline Wagner, Mrs. George Champney, Mrs. Ellen Kennelly, Mrs. Thomas Feron, Miss Inez McConnachie, Mrs. Gardener, Miss Ena Young, Mrs. McCoy, the Misses Nell and Georgia McCall.

Mrs. Dwight to Leave Soon.

Following a pleasant summer visit in the maternal Mrs. Emeline H. Childs home at No. 3100 West Adams, Mrs. John W. Dwight and son, John W. Jr., are leaving within the next few days for San Francisco, en route to their Washington (D. C.) home. Mrs. Childs is going north with her daughter for a short stay. Later she will stop in Santa Barbara. The reunion of the three Childs girls—Mrs. Frederick W. Reynolds, who came with Lieut.-Col. Reynolds from Honolulu, and Mrs. Frank S. Hicks and Mrs. Dwight—furnished the motif for many of our largest mid-summer society events, for no more popular visitors have been in Los Angeles than these society belles of former days.

Young Matron to Entertain.

Mrs. Turner Weatherholt, a most charming society matron of the younger set, is planning a large luncheon party in the near future, as well as a dancing party—the latter to be a farewell to a large number of friends before Mr. and Mrs. Weatherholt leave for San Francisco and a cruise to Honolulu.

The luncheon will be given at the beach—probably at the Nat Goodwin cafe—and the guests are to enjoy a plunge party later. The personnel will include members of the unique pajama coterie, supplemented by many additional friends.

Visitors From Chicago.

Mrs. Roy Sears Gradle is entertaining two attractive house guests this week—Mrs. Emma Schuman and Miss Amelia Jordan, both of Chicago.

The ladies were friends of the Gradle family east.

Watermelon Feast and Canoes.

In honor of the members of the Sigma Gamma Sorority and their friends, a unique canoeing party and watermelon feast was given recently at Hollenbeck Park by Miss Bert Cramer, participated in by Misses Marian Triester, Alice Goldfarb, Rose L. Samuelson, Eva Levitt, Estella Roseberg, Frances Herzberg, Leaha Hiate, Ella Cramer, Katherine Darsey, Hannah Levy, Sadie Levy and Birdie Cramer, with Messrs. Jack Atkins, Abe Forer, Benjamin Levitt, Jack Goldberg, Will Mayer, George Hess, Jack Hiate, Harry Herzberg, Joseph Hendleman, Stony Golding, Emanuel Goldberg and M. Raffey.

3000-Mile Motor Trip.

Among the recent arrivals from the North are Mr. and Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, who for five weeks have been motoring about San Francisco, Lake Tahoe, into Nevada and back by the Yosemite, a joyful journey of over 3000 miles.

Mrs. Wilson has visited every exposition held in the past fifteen years, not only in America, but in Rome, Vienna, Ghent and London, and she returns enthusiastic over the beauties and worth of our San Francisco fair.

The Wilsons took their friends Mr. and Mrs. David Bean of Salina, Kan., from Los Angeles to San Francisco in their machine, the latter going on to Alaska for a trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will divide the remainder of the summer at their city home and Wilsonia Court, at San Gabriel.

Returns from North.

Mrs. S. Grant Goucher of 901 South Normandie avenue has returned from Seattle, Portland and San Francisco by motor, and is again at her residence after an absence of six weeks.

To Marry This Fall.

Mrs. Rose E. Heerdink of No. 4300 Harvard boulevard formally announces the engagement of her daughter, Gertrude Rosemary, to Arthur Thomas Fowler.

The wedding is to be consummated in the early fall, though the date is not yet determined.

Honoring House Guest.

An enjoyable affair of recent date was the luncheon given by Miss Bernice Dering at her home, No. 1517 Van Ness avenue, complimenting her house guest, Mrs. Harry O. Glasser, who was a former resident of this city, and will be cordially remembered as Miss Edna Earl Faust. The board was like a burst of sunshine radiant with yellow marigolds arranged in a huge brown basket, nestling in a bed of ferns. Yellow chrysanthemum baskets held bonbonds, and the hand-limned name cards were adorned with baskets of yellow blossoms. Covers were laid for the hostess, the honor guest, Mrs. Verne L. Keipp, and son, Vernon, Jr., Keipp, Mrs. Edward Keipp, Mrs. Raydn J. Zeigler, Mrs. Robert Van Houten and Mrs. Lawson Overman, all of Long Beach; Mrs. C. K. Gentry, Mrs. A. C. Pillsbury, Miss Grace Dering and Mrs. Alice J. Dering, the latter assisting the hostess. Pleasant conversation and dainty needlework employed the time following luncheon.

Mrs. Glasser is now the guest of her brother and sister, Mr. Harry and Miss Mabel Faust, at their home on Herkimer street, in Pasadena, where she will be at home to her many friends.

Northern Guest.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Locke, No. 728 Berendo street, are entertaining as their house guest their sister, Mrs. Sophrania Locke, and her son, John Locke, late of Seattle, but formerly of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Locke and son will remain in this city until September, and will be delighted to greet her many friends from this city as well as Pasadena.

To Give Tournament.

The Wilshire Emergency League, which accomplishes excellent work by bringing financial aid, clothing, food and other necessities to needy families, will give the first of its bridge and Five Hundred tournaments next Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Sebastian, No. 2276 Cambridge avenue, between the hours of 2 and 5. Assisting ladies include Mrs. R. E. Steckel, Mrs. M. J. Neighbors, Mrs. A. Barnard, Mrs. J. W. Summerfield, Mrs. P. C. Johnson, Mrs. George Cram and Mrs. H. L. Zukerman.

Five afternoons will be included in this tournament, one for each month, a new tournament starting in January. Officers for the coming year are Mrs. Ira Sidney Chapman, president; Mrs. Barker Van Zandt, Mrs. J. W. Summerfield and Mrs. Charles Sebastian, first, second and third vice-presidents respectively; Mrs. Thomas Foss, secretary; Mrs. John Y. Olden, treasurer; Mrs. Paul Ridley, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. G. W. Saurret, retiring president, chairman of the board.

Leaving for the North.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hart, who have been spending the past six months in this city, left Friday for their home in Seattle. They will stop en route at San Francisco to view the exposition.

To Stay Three Months.

Kewpie Luncheon.

Miss Lulu Convis of No. 2715 East Third street, whose engagement to Albert Launer of Brea was recently announced, was a guest of honor at a daintily appointed luncheon party, given by Mrs. Daisy Carson, of No. 1165 East Thirty-sixth street, last Friday. A large basket of white carnations and rose geraniums graced the center of the table. The chandelier was festooned with asparagus ferns, upon which rested yellow butterflies, while underneath was suspended a yellow gowned kewpie in whose hands were gathered yellow ribbon streamers which were carried to the favors at the places, dainty bags of rice, from which peeped a kewpie holding a heart upon which was lettered, "Keep this with greatest care: To shower upon the happy pair." The bonbon baskets were of reedcraft, a bow of yellow illusion graced the handle, while a golden bell swung underneath. The place cards were yellow roses. The afternoon was spent in "kewpie" games, and closed with the breaking of the golden wishbone between the Sunday-school teacher, Miss Lytle, and Miss Convis. The guests were members of the Boyle Heights M. E. Philathea class. Covers were laid for Mesdames Elizabeth McMillan, Irene Ginther, Cebia Noble, Inez Beers, Isabella Danvers, Misses Lulu Convis, Blanche Sollsbury, Dora Thompson, Edith Jackson, Minnie Jackson, Blanche Lytle and Florence Young and Daisy Carson.

Mrs. Harrington Honored.

Mrs. I. Danvers of No. 1165 East Thirty-sixth street, entertained last Thursday afternoon with a suit case shower in honor of Mrs. Kate Harrington of No. 990 East Vernon avenue, who left for San Francisco Friday morning. The color scheme was pink and white. A rainbow was fashioned throughout the home, at the end of each cord the guest found a "bag of gold," while Mrs. Harrington's ended at a suitcase filled with dainty gifts. Dainty refreshments were served.

SOCIETY.

Utah, and Miss Bess Van Meter and William Van Meter of New York. The party has been enjoying the summer gaieties of Coronado and the San Diego exposition as guests of Mrs. Jones.

Her Visit Ended.

Mrs. George Halverson of Utah, who has been the guest of Mrs. A. V. Crosby and Mrs. Emma Stevens Jones, has returned to her home, stopping en route to visit the San Francisco exposition and the Northwest.

Cards and Dancing.

An interesting social happening of the week was contributed by Mrs. L. F. Miller of the Howell Terrace apartments on Friday night, who entertained at a moonlight promenade, dancing and bridge party. At 9 o'clock the grand promenade and march through the dwelling and out into the beautiful gardens adjoining was led by Mrs. Fred Hooker Jones and Volney S. Beardsley. At the intermissions of the dance, Miss Una Flemming and Miss Ruth Rollins gave classic solo dances. For those preferring cards tables were placed in a convenient nook, and floral baskets were awarded those making high scores. The evening was concluded by the Virginia reel.

Assisting Mrs. Miller were Mmes. Fred Hooker Jones, Volney S. Beardsley, A. C. Cable, H. R. Hooper, C. H. Barton, J. J. Flynn, Willis Palmer, A. W. Francisco, Jefferson W. Gibbs, Russell J. Waters, W. W. Orcutt, Charles S. Scott and Mrs. William Cline.

Concerning Mrs. Winchell.

Mrs. Ward Winchell, No. 2909 Kenwood avenue, has returned from San Francisco, where she was one of the patronesses at the naval ball. She is entertaining Miss Doris Peterson this week and will have as a house guest Miss Hattie Stuckey of Virginia and San Francico early in August, for whom she is planning a number of brilliant social affairs.

Back From San Francisco.

Miss Bessie Fuhrer and Miss Lucy Fuhrer of No. 687 South Rampart have returned home after passing a month in San Francisco and Oakland. Both these young women have a wide circle of friends in the northern city, in which they resided when little girls, and where their decided musical attainments were first manifest.

They played a number of brilliant engagements themselves and then remained for the great Beethoven festival given in the San Francisco civic auditorium, with Alfred Hertz conducting.

To Become Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. McNair on Thursday formally announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary, to Thomas D. Duque, the son of Mrs. Thomas L. Duque of No. 701 South New Hampshire boulevard.

Society is much interested in the plans of the young people, both of whom are extremely popular. While the date for the nuptials is not yet set, it will be some time during the early fall.

To Wed in Early September.

On September 7, at just the hour of sunset, will be solemnized the marriage of Miss Mathilde F. Bartlett and James Henry French, the service to be read in the garden of Mrs. W. S. Bartlett's Fenton Knoll home on West Adams, in the presence of relatives and the closest friends.

Mr. French is the son of Rev. Julius B. French and Mrs. French of Jacksonville, Fla., the reverend gentleman being prominent in the southern presbytery. As a young man Rev. French held the pastorate of the Tustin Presbyterian Church, and the two young people, who are to soon plight their troth, were born within a mile of each other. When Rev. French, who is a cousin of Mrs. Bartlett, moved south the children were separated and grew into young manhood and womanhood ere they met again. Dr. French baptized Miss Bartlett, and is to officiate at the nuptial service. They are already in the city, house guests of the bride's mother, Mrs. W. S. Bartlett.

Three nieces of Mr. W. S. Bartlett, the Misses Marlett, are to come from Evansville, Ind., to attend Miss Bartlett, and Miss Marie Olivia McCoy will be maid of honor.

Mrs. and Miss Bartlett are still in mourning for Mr. Bartlett, who, eleven months ago, passed away, else there would be no end of entertaining incidental to the approaching wedding. As the daughter of Ebell's beloved president, and for her own lovely personality, Miss Bartlett's friends are legion.

The news of the interesting betrothal, which was made public on Tuesday, at once caused the sincerest felicitations to be showered upon Miss Bartlett and her fiance.

Miss Richards to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Richards of No. 626 South St. Andrews place have made formal announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Ramona, to Wilson O. Gibbs.

An intimate group of the fiancee's friends were told the news on Tuesday, at a party given by Miss Esther Love, of No. 457 Harvard boulevard, the hostess having place cards of tiny gold envelopes with the names of the principals inclosed.

The wedding will be an important social event of October.

Graham.

MR. AND MRS. E. L. ZIMMERMAN, Miss Beryle, and Chester Zimmerman, left Thursday morning for the San Bernardino mountains, where they will try camp life the next three weeks at Little Bear Lake. Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Rosson, Misses Ruth and Flores Rosson are also camping at this popular mountain retreat.

Complimentary to her Sunday-school class of juveniles belonging to Shorb-avenue Christian Church, Miss Isabelle Alexander was hostess at a taffy pull Tuesday afternoon when her home and lawn were thrown open to the happy abandon of childhood. A pink and green color scheme prevailed in the decorations, where amaryllis, roses and ferns were artistically combined. Indoor and outdoor games, with milady assisting, suggesting and serving—when time came for refreshments—filled the hours most merrily. The greatest fun, however, was the pulling of sugar candy, which insisted on sticking to fingers, in spite of frequent dipping in cool water. Members included Fern Drake, Doris Carney, Oliver Boyd, Lester Beale, Charles Maingreen, Gordon Mathisen and John Alexander.

A matinee party at the Morosco Theater Saturday afternoon to see "So Long Letty" was composed of Mrs. T. G. Little, Mrs. George Wood, Mrs. E. R. Thurman and Mrs. M. I. Taylor. The aftermath consisted of a visit to the Chocolate Shop.

SOCIETY.

arrangements for the birthday celebration of W. H. Willets recently, at his home, No. 8911 Fir street, when Mrs. Willets entertained twenty-five of their friends, the affair being in the nature of a surprise. The greensward was prettily lighted with Japanese lanterns, and with lawn and trees for a background made a scene especially attractive. Here the guests renewed their youth with such games as Ruthie and Jackie and drop the handkerchief. Pink tones predominated, Maman Cochet roses and ferns being effectively used in adornment of the house and tables, where the guests were served ice cream, cake, candies and nuts. The birthday cake had been constructed by the honoree's 12-year-old daughter and was considered a fair sample of culinary skill, considering the fact that it had to be weighted with fifty-five candles. Among the guests assembled were Mrs. M. A. Magee, Mrs. Myrtle Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Baxter, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Moraine, William Small, Miss Leah Small, Isabelle Alexander, Miss Jeanne Tennant, Fred Rogers, Ray Rowley and Harry Jillette.

Pasadena.

ALTHOUGH the balmy breezes from the beaches have lured most of the society set to their gentle embraces, still there seems to be enough life left in Pasadena for numerous teas, garden parties and other lesser social gatherings. Because Master Cupid refuses to let the warm weather overcome him, several "functions" in the form of weddings are chronicled each week.

Although a very quiet affair, attended only by twenty relatives, the marriage recently of Miss Muriel Peto, a charming Canadian girl who has been visiting here since last fall, and Francis Kennett, brother of Mrs. Walter Dupee and nephew of the C. W. Durands, is of unusual interest to a large number of friends. The ceremony was performed in his private study by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Joseph H. Johnston, assisted by the bride's grandfather, Canon Goode, with whom she lived here. The bride, who is a lovely blonde, wore a chic tailored suit of white cloth. She wore a smart hat of white and French blue, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and orchids. Immediately following the ceremony they motored to Los Angeles, where a wedding dinner was served in the Hotel Alexandria. For the present they are domiciled in a dear little bungalow in the Hotel Maryland court. They will take an extended trip to British Columbia in about two months.

At a simple home wedding last Monday evening, Miss Gladys Holsinger, daughter of Mrs. Annie Holsinger of No. 185 Stevenson avenue, became the bride of Dr. Barney Ellerton Coleman of Los Angeles and Pasadena. The ceremony was performed before a flower-banked altar in front of the mantlepiece, which was made into a screen of pink and white blossoms and ferns. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Albert Hall, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church. The bride wore her going-away suit of blue cloth, with hat to match, and carried an arm bouquet of lilies of the valley, white rosebuds and ferns. After the ceremony Dr. Coleman and his bride left by boat for the north, where they will enjoy their honeymoon.

Misses Emma Miller and Carrie Hendrick of No. 97 West Walnut street gave a charming dinner and garden party at their home recently. Covers were laid for Misses Blanche Perry, Sadie Sering, Katie Sering, Mrs. George Miller, Messrs. Lester Carl Robert, George Miller, Harold Yale, Randolph Lympe, Frank Bossung and Charles Bossung, and the young hostesses.

Upon the eve of her departure for Berkeley, where she will enter the University of California, Miss Margaret Hookway of No. 201 South Los Robles avenue entertained a number of her classmates in High School. Her guests included Misses Gladys Dawson, Ellen Eason, Alice Ryder, Hazel and Isabel Bonnalie, Helen Hookway, Margaret Corwin, Edna Cattell, Edna Bellinger, Ruby Blosser, Bernice Twombley and Gladys Knowlton.

Mrs. G. H. Hydeman of Kansas City, Mo., was the honoree at a charmingly-appointed card party given under the cool shade of old trees in the lovely garden of Mrs. Ralph Tuthill of No. 53 South Meredith avenue. In the racy games of the evening prizes were awarded Mr. and Mrs. Royal Gifford, Mrs. Anson Halquist, Mr. and Mrs. Dolph Bassett and Allen Bogan. The guests were: Mrs. G. H. Rydeman, Messrs. and Mmes. Anson Halquist, Royal Gifford, George Tuthill, Arthur Barr, Borbert Flusser, Dolph Bassett, Charles Carmody, Allan Bogan, Mrs. May Head, Charles Hill, Jack Wall and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tuthill.

Miss Gertrude Caunt, who is to be one of the most interesting of the early autumn brides, was the recipient of a pretty courtesy a few days ago, when Miss Minnie Robertson of Oak Knoll entertained with a bridge party of charming appointments. In the sunroom, where the card tables were laid, golden coreopsis was used for decorations, but in the dining-room the bride's own colors, white and pink, reigned supreme. Ever since announcement of her engagement was made last spring Miss Caunt has been the center of social hospitality, and before the wedding day she bids fair to have been the most feted of any of the brides of the autumn.

At her pretty Altadena home, Mrs. F. G. Martin was hostess at a delightful little luncheon recently in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Towne of Holyoke, Mass., and Miss Olivia West Dulaney of Houston, Tex. Later Mrs. Martin entertained with an elaborate tea party at the Lankershim Hotel in Los Angeles in honor of the same guests.

At a pretty little tea party given recently, Miss Mary Plank announced that September 20 is to be the date of her marriage to Claude Carter. Miss Plank is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Plank of No. 417 Cypress avenue, and when she announced her engagement several weeks ago she took her friends completely by surprise. She will be much entertained before the marriage is celebrated.

South Pasadena.

ON TUESDAY evening Mr. and Mrs. A. F. N. Hambleton of No. 1030 Stratford avenue entertained informally in honor of Mrs. Hambleton's brother and wife, Prof. and Mrs. L. Roberts of Wilkesbarre, Pa.; Mr. Hambleton's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hambleton of Des Moines, Iowa, and their nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. D. Coggeshall of Tulsa, Okla. The guests were friends and acquaintances of the Hambletons during previous years of residence in the State of Iowa. The affair was in the nature of a reunion, and a most happy one it proved. Among those present beside the host, hostess and honorees were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wood, Miss Wood, Miss Rood, Mr. and Mrs. A. White, Mr. and Mrs. A. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Williams, Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Townsend, Mrs. R. G. Lewis, Miss Mary Lewis, Mrs. William G. Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. William L. McConnell, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Chambers, Miss Chambers, Mrs. Estella McMillan, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. King, Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Yacoub, Miss Edith Roberts, Miss Florence Roberts and Miss Edith Banninton of Pasadena, Charles Gruell of Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Swearingen, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Johnson, Miss Alice Johnson, L. Rosenberger, Prof. and Mrs. O. C. Albertson, Mrs. Rebecca Ranson of Whittier, Mr. and Mrs. E. Jessup and Mr. and Mrs. B. V. Garwood of South Pasadena.

George Thomas of Virginia place was host Sunday to a number of neighbors at his house boat near Alamitos Bay. The day was spent pleasantly at the seaside resort. Those composing the happy party were Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Thomas, Miss Maude Thomas, Miss Leola Bennett, Miss Berda Bennett, Mrs. B. D. Bowman, Mrs. I. Isenogle, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Roy F. Carlyon, Donnell Baldwin, Clarence Bennett and George Thomas.

Monday evening at 8 o'clock, in the presence of the immediate members of the two families, Miss Beatrice Duff of No. 1801 Fair Oaks avenue became the bride of Thomas Burnside of Chicago, the Rev. John G. Blue of the Presbyterian Church, Pasadena, officiating. The young couple announced San Francisco as the goal of their wedding trip.

Mrs. Frank Rush of Elm street entertained Friday in honor of the Misses Etta and Ella Lee of the Hawiian Islands. The guests, numbering twelve, were all old friends and former Occidental College classmates of the honorees.

The R. C. Gortners of No. 1963 La France avenue are entertaining a number of relatives and friends who are with them for the month as house guests. These include Mr. William Gortner of Las Vegas, N. M., brother of the host, his wife and daughter, and Mrs. R. M. Johnson of Goshen, Ind., sister of Mr. R. C. Gortner.

Alhambra.

AFLITTING to mountain and valley where the breezes lazily promise affairs of delight for the early fall season which will soon be with us, is being indulged in by many of those who have been taking an active part in the social affairs of the summer, and a delightful informality has marked almost every affair of the month, with the exception of the delightful entertainment given at the Woman's Clubhouse last Thursday evening, when the Royal Neighbors of America gave one of the most finished and elaborate entertainments of the summer. The clubhouse was filled with an enthusiastic throng, who enjoyed the sociability of the occasion and the dancing to delightful music which followed the exceptionally well-rendered programme of music, singing and recitations, which were given by a number of the younger social contingent.

Another party of exceptional interest to a number of the younger social set was the affair arranged by Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smug of South Margarita street in honor of the eighteenth birthday of their daughter, Miss Marie Smug. The house had been profusely decorated for the occasion with pepper boughs and greens, interspersed with sunflowers and coreopsis. About thirty young friends were bidden for supper, which was an elaborate course affair. The menu was served midst exquisite appointments, American Girl place cards marking places for guests, while in the center of the table was a huge jar of American Beauty roses, the same beautiful rose reposing at each place as a corsage flower for the feminine contingent. Concluding supper, the young folks enjoyed games and dancing until a late hour, departing after wishing the charming young motif of the evening's pleasantry many happy returns.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Adams of Milwaukee are in Alhambra, where they are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. Waddell of No. 26 South Fourth street. Mr. and Mrs. Adams are delighted with Southern California and its delightful environs, and will remain for some time in this locality.

Mrs. John Algeo, who, with her daughter, Miss Katheryn, was a recent guest at the exposition in San Francisco, has returned home, [illegible] delightful visit among the [illegible] tractions of the northern [illegible]

The home of Mrs. E. M. [illegible] No. 31 North Almansor street [illegible] the scene of one of the gayest of [illegible] ties on Friday evening. A weinie roast was a pleasure to which the younger social contingent had been looking forward for some time, and the occasion was one of supreme merriment for the gay host in attendance. At the conclusion of the al fresco dinner and marshmallow feast the young folks left the dying embers of the campfire for the house, where the evening was brought to a delightful culmination by the playing of a number of merry games.

Messrs. A. L. Robinson, Bert Mc-Donald, Tom Ferrell, Maurice [illegible] Grensted, H. I. Lingenfelder, Edward Stransky, W. T. Blackledge, H. [illegible] Comfort, M. Mills and Ward [illegible] formed a coterie of congenial spirits who enjoyed a recent week-end fishing at Catalina, returning to Alhambra early in the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Webb, who have been the guests of Mrs. Webb's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Gray, of No. 909 South Wilson avenue, left on Tuesday for their home in Florida. While here Mr. and Mrs. Webb were the object of much informal entertaining on the part of friends, and on their way home will be the guests for several days of Mrs. Ida Fuller in San Francisco.

Miss Lucille Griffing was the charming hostess to the members of the G. R. Club of the First Baptist Church on Thursday evening. The rooms of the Griffing home had been profusely decorated in anticipation of the evening's pleasure and the little guests enjoyed a merry evening of songs, music and games before the announcement of refreshments. Those availing themselves of the delightful hospitality of the young hostess were Misses Weltha and Helen McNeil, Sara Wolford, Dorothy Farmer, Eva Moulder, Mildred Cahrey, Pearl McClain, Ollie Blackburn, Myrtle [illegible], Dorothy McLean and Mrs. B. Blackburn.

Azusa.

CHARMING and informal have been the entertainments of the month breathing of the beauty of the great out of doors and the wonderful natural environments among the gnarled old oaks and peppers and trees that abound in this lovely spot nestling at the mountains' door. The echo of wedding bells is still in the air and the extreme interest to many in Azusa was the marriage in Whittier on Tuesday of Miss Lefay Davy to Prof. L. Packard of Seattle. Miss Davy who is one of Whittier's most popular young women, is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Dingman of this city and has the warmest good wishes of a host of friends who knew her well during her school days which were spent here. Prof. Packard is a member of the faculty of the University of Washington and at the conclusion of their honeymoon the happy young couple will go to Seattle to make their permament home.

A warm welcome has been extended to Mr. C. W. Baker and his daughter, Miss Marie Baker, both of whom have returned from Berkeley, where their summer vacation was spent among the old oaks on the college campus.

Anticipating much pleasure from a trip by automobile to San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Hayden and family and Miss Emma Miller left last Thursday for the northern metropolis. Several weeks will be spent in the pursuit of pleasure among the many attractions of the north, and Mr. Hayden will also attend the National Educational Association which convenes at Berkeley the latter part of the month. The party will return to Azusa about September 1.

An exceedingly attractive luncheon was served at 1 o'clock Wednesday when Mrs. M. M. Weigand and Mrs. Anna Heidner entertained as a gracious compliment to Mrs. Frank Leidell and her son, Kenneth Leidell, of Wellington, Kan., and Mrs. P. L. Heidner of Los Angeles, who were charmed guests in Azusa during the week.

One of the merriest house parties of the month is that of Miss Meredith Knapp, who is entertaining Mrs. Willard Wood of Los Angeles, Miss Theresa Dunn of Monrovia and Miss Alta Buchter of Santa Paula. The guests are Phi Omega sisters of Miss Knapp and are anticipating a pleasant week-end visit at the home of Mrs. Wood in Los Angeles at the expiration of their visit in Azusa.

Mrs. George Ellington and family are leaving early this week for San Francisco, where they plan to visit the exposition and various other points of interest in the northern city.

Leaving for Berkeley early this week were Miss Miriam Bonner, Miss Mary V. Bonner and Miss Helen Taylor. Miss Miriam Bonner will be gone a year, planning to attend the University of California. Miss Virginia [illegible]ner will visit among friends there for a number of weeks and Miss Taylor will be domiciled indefinitely in Oakland, where she will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Charles Smart.

One of the week's most attractive parties was that given by Miss Mabel Pearson, who was the charming hostess to a number of friends at the home of her parents on Thursday evening. Out-of-door games were enthusiastically enjoyed by the gay contingent of young folk and following the evening's gaieties a delicious light collation was served the guests, among whom were: Miss Mary [illegible], Miss Opal McClain, Miss [illegible] Loomis, Miss Edith Bigelow, Miss June Clark, Miss Grace Bigelow, Miss Eunice Wade, Miss Fern Haley and Messrs. Claude Russell, Karl Hammond, Stuart Streshly, Karl Kinderknecht, Bryan Akard, Claude Thaxter, William Bagle, Gill Stuart, Dewey [illegible], Charles [illegible]ens, Ralph Dingman, [illegible] Claflin and Paul Douglas.

Mrs. Laura Short of Rockford, Ill., was recently an honored guest at the home of Miss Meredith Knapp. Mrs. Short is an eastern musician of note and is at the head of the pipe-organ department of the Rockford College.

San Gabriel.

FINDING a wealth of natural beauty, and a gracious hospitality bestowed with a lavish hand, many visitors and eastern guests are finding their way to the many delightful spots in the environs of San Gabriel, where they are enjoying a merry though informal sojourn among the cool shadows and picturesque haunts of the vicinity. Among the most pretentious affairs of the week was the party given by Miss Marie Johnson, who, with her parents, is among the newer residents of San Gabriel. Miss Johnson arranged a unique luncheon party with covers laid for fifteen at a table encircling one of the large oaks in the garden. Coreopsis and corn flowers were effectively used as a decorative motif, and exquisite hand-painted place cards marked the places for the guests of the occasion. At the conclusion of the menu, which was an elaborate course affair, music and songs were indulged in, a number of charming pieces being rendered [illegible] some of the clever guests. [illegible] needlework was the principal [illegible] pation of the golden afternoon and it was hinted that [illegible]

Actress Tells Secret

Miss Blanche Rose, a well-known actress, who darkened her gray hair with a simple preparation which she mixed at home, in a recent interview at Chicago, Ill., made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the required shade. This will make a gray haired person look 20 years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, relieves itching and scalp humors and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair.

But—

4—We Ask You to Consider Two Important Facts.

First—The European war has caused a serious shortage of raw materials, and should the war continue much longer, the merchants will unable to replace the stocks they now have, at any price.

Second—there have already been advances in the prices of rugs, and we have been advised by the manufacturer of another serious rise in the near future. This is certain.

5—Therefore—

We advise any prospective customer to buy NOW, while selections are at their best, and before the prices go sky-high.

SOCIETY continues flitting to the mountains and wooded retreats and the attractive expositions in automobile parties, overland or via steamer. Surely in California lies the promised land. No place quite equals our own sunny Southland, as every opulent outlook of nature seems to be offered us, and within the radius of an hour's motoring.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilson and Miss Louise Stone are camping in the San Bernardino mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard, Misses Gladys and Alene, and Carl Shepard left Tuesday for San Francisco and environs for a fortnight's trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hathern with Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Long of Los Angeles returned recently from a six-weeks' outing in San Francisco and Yosemite.

A motoring party, ending with the "Mission Play" at San Gabriel, was the pleasure planned by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dean Tuesday afternoon for their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Payton.

Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Howie entertained with a week-end house party at their attractive Olinda home. Guests bidden were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Petterson, Mrs. Charles Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hight, Mr. and Mrs. John Ruether.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Wood, Mrs. E. Carpenter, Frank Johnson and Orville Wood motored recently to San Francisco, where two weeks were spent expositioning for the most part. Orville Wood won a gold medal for his superior hemp from his ranch in the Philippine Islands. Mr. Wood left for the islands and his parents and sister returned home Thursday.

Mrs. L. O. Funk, Misses Dorris and Lucile Funk are the guests for the week of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Venable of Catalina avenue, Redondo Beach.

A swimming party was the unique mode of entertainment planned by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dean who, with Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Waite and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Payton, motored to Long Beach Monday and frolicked in the surf. The men are expert swimmers and the women enthusiastic "would-be's." Photography was included in the afternoon's pastimes.

Mrs. Roy Hathern entertained informally Tuesday afternoon with an enjoyable tea and Kensington. Zenias in a riot of bloom adorned the rooms of reception where were bidden Mrs. Harry Schildwachter, Mrs. J. O. McDonald and Mrs. C. V. Harris.

Pink amaryllis and springeri fern were employed decoratively Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. Charles Stohr was hostess to the Fortnightly Embroidery Club at her attractive home, No. 424 West Main street. Dainty bits of fancy work, with crochet predominating, occupied the afternoon and concluded with the serving of peach sherbet and cake. In connection with this popular club of ten women is another known as the Fire-fly Club. It is composed of the club members' boys and girls, who embroidered awhile, played awhile and enjoyed their refreshments on the lawn. Members of the two clubs present were Mrs. Clarence Rozelle, Mrs. J. A. Fields, Mrs. A. Cooney, Mrs. James Bennett, Mrs. Charles Stohr, Mrs. Will Steel, Mrs. J. W. King, Mrs. Arthur King, little Miss Thelma and Melva Fields, Alda Stohr, Marian and William Cooney, Darrel and Celeste King.

Wayne Bowen left Sunday via Seashore Limited for San Francisco in a party of Los Angeles friends, consisting of Mrs. Mary Douglas, Mrs. Clo LaSalle and the Misses Blanch and Emily Buhl. They expect to be gone until the first of September.

Quite the most brilliant of the season's weddings was that of Miss Ruth Nicholas, youngest daughter of Judge and Mrs. J. B. Nicholas, to Carroll Owen Harbell at the home of the bride's parents in Myrrah street, Wednesday evening. The decorations were charmingly simple, festoons of greens and quantities of carnations being used in a most artistic combination. In the drawing-room, a floral bower was arranged, hung with long sprays of feathery asparagus thickly studded with pink carnations. Following the sweet rendition of "Because I Love You" by Mrs. Frank Orien, accompanied by Mrs. Donnell Dawson on the piano, Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was heard as the bridal party descended the stairs, led by the maid of honor, Miss Edna Nicholas, gowned in a handsome creation of white net over blue silk and carrying a bouquet of forget-me-nots; Charles Mulherron as best man, Miss Evelyn Ely and Miss Mabelle Harbell, bridesmaids, clad in yellow crepe de chine and pink silk while they carried Cecile Brunner roses; Frank K. Nichols of Upland and Sumpter Smith as ushers. The party advanced to the bridal bower where the attending couples formed two lines down which the bride and groom proceeded. Here they were met by the bride's father, Judge Nicholas, who performed the ceremony. The bride was charmingly attired in white crepe meteor with lace and pearl ornaments. Her mother's wedding veil was held in place by a bandeau of lilies of the valley and she carried her grandmother's lace handkerchief which had served her mother and aunts upon similar occasions. The shower bouquet was composed of white rose buds, lily-of-the-valley and maiden-hair ferns. Handsome gifts in silver, cut glass, fine china and linens were attractively displayed on the dining table. Refreshments were served and a tall centerpiece of bride's roses graced the bride's table. At the conclusion of a two-weeks' bridal tour, which will include San Diego and the beaches, they will be at home to their friends in Compton, where the groom is assistant cashier of the First National Bank. Guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand C. Nicholas, Miss Mabelle and Frank K. Nicholas of Upland, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Booring and Ronald Booring of Orange, Miss Mary Brown of Lordsburg, Judge and Mrs. E. C. Casa Verdugo.

MRS. J. F. PEDLEFORD and her sister-in-law, Miss Florence Pedelford of No. 915 Fairview avenue, returned on Wednesday evening from a ten days' sojourn at San Diego, where they attended the exposition and visited the many attractions in and about this most charming city. While there they were the guests of Hotel Florence.

On Thursday last a quiet, but interesting, wedding took place, uniting two well-known Casa Verdugans, Mrs. M. Hale of Lorraine street and Mr. William A. Hegar of Brand boulevard. Mr. Hegar is a retired St. Louis business man, and came to Casa Verdugo some four years since, building a beautiful home on Brand boulevard, and afterward the Hegar apartments. He is a genial and polished gentleman, and his bride a lady of charming personality. After an extended eastern trip they will return to their Casa Verdugo home.

A very delightful evening was enjoyed on Tuesday evening, when Miss Maud Soper, daughter of Rev. Julius Soper of the Casa Verdugo M. E. Church, entertained the Epworth League at her home. The feature of the evening was the singing of Japanese songs by Dr. Davidson, a returned missionary from Japan. Games and American music further entertained the guests, and later in the evening most delicious refreshments were served.

On Saturday night Alfred M. Land of No. 305 North Maryland avenue was host at a most enjoyable Dutch supper, covers being laid for eight. After doing ample justice to the Dutch viands, the evening was spent in music and cards. The guests included Messrs. Paul Snider, Carlton Padelford, C. Kilgore, Frank and Arthur Budway, Hugh McClellan and Harry Mills.

Tropico.

DAINTY little Mabel Todd had a birthday anniversary Friday and the event was most charmingly celebrated at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Todd, on Glendale avenue, that afternoon. This dear little girl not only celebrated her eighth anniversary, but also tendered little LeMoyne Pierson, a playmate, a farewell party, for LeMoyne leaves shortly for her future home in Kansas. The decorations throughout the home of Mrs. Todd were in red and white. Fragrant carnations in these colors were arranged everywhere. The tables, at which dainty refreshments were served, were also adorned in the same floral decorations, while red and white tapers added a charm. Many games dear to children were enjoyed throughout the afternoon. The happy lads and lassies whom Mabel welcomed to her home and who, while wishing her many happy returns of the day in their sweet and unaffected manner, also bade farewell to their playmate, LeMoyne Pierson, were Misses Florence Melrose, Mabel Gaarder, Dunise Parker, Gladys Reppart, Dorothy Chapin, Frances Gloria, Mary Ballentyne, Edna Strong, Mildred Moody, Elsie Gardner, Ruth Clark, Lucile Cook, Lois Oliver, Catherine Weihe, Frances Glassburn, Vetma Gillmore, and Masters Stanley Ballentyne, Merton Mosher, Wilbur Houghton, John Hunter and Wesley Sawyer. Preceding the children's party Mrs. Todd entertained with a dinner party complimentary to her young daughter, Miss Mabel. The guests were seated at a table redolent with the perfume of red and white carnations arranged in a low-cut bowl. The guests, who were seated with Mrs. Todd and Miss Mabel, were Mrs. John Hunter and son, John Hunter, Jr., of Colorado Springs; Mrs. Alden Stewart of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Frank Peters, Mrs. Norma Pierson, Mrs. W. A. Hough and Miss Mary Jane Evans-Hough.

Mrs. R. M. Sanders entertained with a delightful afternoon at her home on Acacia street Thursday. Dainty conceptions of art needlework featured the pleasant afternoon. Turner, Mrs. William La Fountaine, Mrs. Joseph Griffin, Mrs. Bert Chandler, Mrs. Herman Goodrich, Mrs. George Friedgen and Mrs. William Hartwig.

Pollock, on West Park avenue, the past two months, left for San Francisco Monday morning, where they will be the guests of Mrs. Simons's sister, Mrs. Emery Gates. These interesting visitors have had a most delightful sojourn in the Southland. After visiting in San Francisco they will return to Philadelphia, visiting en route home.

Miss Flowers and Miss Hubbell are en route to their homes in Colorado, following a most delightful summer enjoyed touring in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Benton Moore of Blanche avenue have returned from a ten days' visit in San Francisco, Mr. Moore being a representative to the great council of Improved Order of Red Men. Mrs. David H. Imler of West Park avenue is entertaining as her house guest her cousin, Mrs. Ella B. Boyer of Terre Haute, Ind.

The happy couple will reside in Los Angeles where the groom has prepared a home for his bride.

Laurel Canyon.

ONE of the very delightful and informal affairs of the week was on Tuesday afternoon, when the Laurel Canyon friends of Miss Ann Nabors, who on Thursday became the bride of M. W. Hulse, motored down to the city and gave her a most hearty "wish-you-well" party. Miss Nabors, with her parents, the J. B. Nabors, lived in the canyon at one time, and the ladies presented her with a beautiful tray of Sheffield silver. Those enjoying the happy occasion were Mmes. C. F. Norton, F. M. Price, D. M. Small, G. D. Tully, A. C. Baker, J. A. Matthews, G. V. Redpath and E. W. Kidder, and the Misses Florence Redpath, Charlotte Tully, Lora Vale Small and Geraldine Tully.

What might have been a very serious fire but for the very excellent fire protection, occurred on Tuesday morning when a small brush fire became unmanageable at the head of South Canyon. However, none of the homes was at any time in daanger, owing to the broad, clean firebreaks that wind their way over the mountain at various points and the many fire extinguishers owned by the land company, and available at all times. The residents of the canyon are much freer from danger by fire than are people living in the congested parts of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Bowles, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bowles and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Davenport and son, Meredith, are enjoying a week in the R. B. Bowles cottage on top of Merrywood Hill.

J. Ephlin, who returned home the last of the week on the Harvard.

The mountaineers' party on Friday night at Bungalow Inn was a delightful affair, Misses Phyllis Ephlin and Lora Vale Small being hostesses.

Santa Ana.

MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE CROOKSHANK, who recently returned from their wedding trip, were pleasantly surprised by members of the social Bible class of the First Congregational Church. About forty-four members of this class were present to honor Mr. Crookshank and his bride. An impromptu programme was given, after which an amusing guessing game whiled away the time. Mrs. P. F. Schrock won the prize for guessing fourteen of the numbers correctly, while C. S. Shaw won the booby. Prof. Nealley in a charming speech presented Mr. and Mrs. Crookshank with a gilded floral basket from the members of the class.

One of the most delightful luncheons given recently was the one in the old rose tearoom at Bullock's, at which Miss Linna Yarnell and her cousin, Miss Genevieve Scheurer of Long Beach, were hostesses. The following guests were complimented: Miss Violet Twist and Miss Dorothy Twist, Miss Ruth Visel and Miss Effie Lutz of Santa Ana; Miss Irene Woelflen of Lewiston, Idaho; Mrs. J. R. THE NEWEST IN AMERICA that accurately forecast the trend of Fall Fashions

FIRST AT THE SWELLDOM

Arrived at Swelldom—

SWELLDOM'S dress salons were filled to overflowing when one thousand new garments arrived during this past week—this huge shipment affords a full scope for immediate and most satisfactory choosing.

—the predominating feature of Swelldom's New Dresses is the fascinating manner in which Silk and Woolen materials are combined

In this bewildering display you will glimpse dresses of satin, taffeta, taffeta and serge combination, in plain colors, stripes, plaids, etc. You will note the long, sweeping lines from shoulder to hem, the rufflings and quillings so often used as adornment. Their charm no one will deny, nor the moderation of their SWELLDOM markings, for these are $18 and up—

Swelldom's New Fall Suits will create unbounded enthusiasm Monday

It is impossible to say that any one style in suits will predominate this season—as a matter of fact, long coats, short coats and medium coats will all be stylish, while they will at the same time be fitted, semi-fitted and loose. The skirts will be a trifle wider, some pleated, others gored. Fur trimming quaintly applied at the collars and cuffs will appeal quite generally. SWELLDOM suits embody style features that mark them exclusive.

SWELLDOM, "The fastest growing store in town"—first with the newest—has planned bigger and greater things for the fall season. SWELLDOM style, SWELLDOM quality and SWELLDOM values will make this store the unquestioned best place to buy.

Albert Spalding

Violin Virtuoso

—A native of Chicago, who began playing the violin at seven years. Studied under Chiti, the Florentine master, Buitrago in New York, and Lefort in Paris. At ten he played before the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. At fourteen he qualified for professorship at Bologna Conservatory with 96 per cent. He made a very successful debut about two years later in Paris, then appeared with Patti.

—Although only twenty-five years of age, he is today conceded by critics to be one of the world's greatest violinists. Albert Spalding makes records exclusively for the

—the one musical instrument that renders with marvelous fidelity—the master-stroke of the artist.

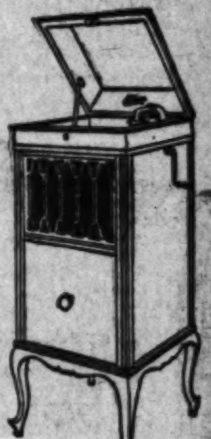
—The pathos, the thrill, the sadness and joy have all yielded to the delicate touch of Albert Spalding, and through the miraculous ingenuity of Thomas A. Edison have wended their way to the very soul of the music lover.

—In fact, to listen to the Edison Diamond Disc, is to enjoy to the loftiest degree all that the artist can possibly render, except, of course, his living presence.

Edison Diamond Disc Records

—are indestructible and are played by a genuine diamond-pointed needle. This feature entirely eliminates the steel needle and the bothersome changing after each selection. Absolutely no needles to change.

Come To Our Quiet Restful 8th Floor Phonograph Parlors



And Enjoy an Impromptu Recital

—Ask to hear, "Rondo Capriccioso"—a "Spalding" rendition that will thrill you. But wait—on the reverse side is "Meditation"—a selection you'll want played over and over again.

—A delightfully entertaining treat, indeed!

How to Lose Your Tan, Freckles or Wrinkles

A day's motoring, an afternoon on the tennis ground or golf links, a sunbath on the beach or exposure on a sea trip, often brings on a deep tan or vivid crimson or, more perplexing still, a vigorous crop of freckles. A very necessary thing then is mercolized wax, which removes tan, redness or freckles quite easily. It literally peels off the affected skin—just a little at a time, so there's no hurt or injury. As the skin comes off in almost invisible flaky particles, no trace of the treatment is shown. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's and use this nightly as you would cold cream, washing it off mornings. In a week or so you will have an entirely new skin, beautifully clear, transparent and of a most delicate whiteness.

Wrinkles, so apt to form at this season, may be easily and quickly removed by bathing the face in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, ½ pint. This is not only a valuable astringent, but has a beneficial tonic effect also.

Today's Beauty Suggestions

Face powder simply covers up an unattractive complexion and leaves no lasting benefits. Those who have tried a simple spurmax face lotion find it much better, as it removes skin discolorations, such as freckles and tan, and makes the skin smooth, white and velvety. This lotion is made by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water, then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerin. This complexion beautifier does not rub off or show like powder, and gives a more refined appearance. It removes both shininess and sallowness, rapidly giving the skin a permanent healthy, youthful appearance.

An especially fine shampoo for this weather can be had at trifling expense by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. Pour slowly on scalp and massage briskly. This creates a soothing, cooling lather that dissolves and removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on a glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem very much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo arranging the hair is a pleasure.

Soap Is Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless,) and is better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Redlands.

WEDDINGS, many of them surprises, and announcements of approaching weddings, some surprises and some not, made the society folk of Redlands hurry to keep up with the procession during the week. Miss Edna Royce, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Royce, and Harrison Harvey of Los Angeles announced several days ago that they would be married on Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents here. But their many friends learned Sunday morning that the popular young people had been quietly married the evening before and had left during the night for their honeymoon trip. They will make their home in Los Angeles, where the groom is the Wells-Fargo night agent at the Santa Fe depot. The bride is a graduate of the local High School.

Clifford Norwood, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Gross Alexander, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, officiated. James White, brother of the groom, was the best man, and Mrs. White acted as matron of honor. Miss Louise White was the ring bearer. After the wedding there was a breakfast and then the young people left for their wedding trip. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. F. R. White, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Crawford of Buffalo, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. James White, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Holt, Miss Chloe Holt and Miss Louise White.

Mrs. John Bowley of West Brookside avenue has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mabel Duerst, to John Dryden Davenport of Chicago. Mr. Davenport, who completes a course in surgery in Chicago next spring, has been spending the summer in this city.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Williams have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mabel Williams, to Leigh W. Nickerson. Miss Williams is a college woman and has had charge of the domestic science work in the Redlands schools for several years. Mr. Nickerson is a graduate of Stanford and is now the field man for the Mutual Orange Company.

A prettily-appointed wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Sprich on Texas street, when their daughter, Miss Gladys Hope, became the bride of Frederick King Harrison of Detroit, Mich. Just before the ceremony the song "I Love You Truly" (Carrie Jacobs-Bond) was sung, followed by the playing of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." Miss Beth Phelps was the bridesmaid and Dale Chilson was the best man. Dorothy Sprich was the ring bearer and Lois Sprich the flower girl. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ralph Smith, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church. The bride wore a beautiful gown of silver lace over ivory satin and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and greenery. The bridesmaid was dressed in white and carried a bouquet of Cecile Brunner roses. The couple will return to Redlands after a visit at San Diego before going to Detroit.

Mrs. J. M. A. Rodrigues, widow of the former head of the school of music of the university, has decided to give up her work in the piano department of the school. She taught piano and Italian.

C.; Mrs. Palmer, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rose, and their two children; Mrs. George Palmer of Marion, Ind.; Miss Jessie Palmer and Mrs. Clara Gross and her daughter of New Jersey.

McCrey and daughter, Emily, of Buffalo, and Mrs. Jessie Liston of Cheyenne, Wyo., for a few days last week. The time was spent in visiting the beaches and sightseeing.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Holbrook left the latter part of last week for the Santa Monica Mountains, where they planned to camp out for a few days.

On Thursday last the missionary society of the Methodist Church held an interesting meeting at the church. Miss C. Handley spoke on the subject of "The Spanish-Speaking People" in the morning, and in the afternoon Mrs. M. Zurbachen spoke very interestingly of her work in Honolulu. There was a large attendance and light refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Peter Hanson, Mrs. J. Jessup and Mrs. G. W. Colton.

Camping out seems to be the vogue by many families just at present, and among those who have tried this pastime of getting back to nature are the R. J. Tealls, the Peter Hansons, Mrs. Harry Curtis and son, Carl, and Mr. and Mrs. N. Hershman, all of whom left at 7:30 Thursday morning for Orange County Park.

Mr. and Mrs. James Halliwell of Merna, Neb., were the guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sage of Centinella street last Thursday and Friday.

She was attended only by two little nieces as flower girls.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Rafferty, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Crable, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Davis, Mrs. Fred Berry, Mrs. H. D. Myers, Mrs. M. Williams, Jack Manley, and Vernon Banks of Los Angeles, and the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Van Cot of New York, who are visiting relatives in Los Angeles, motored out to the home of Mrs. Arthur Multer of Anita place on last Saturday. The party then left for a week-end trip to the mountains and returned on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lynn and daughter and Mrs. Swinehart of Elkhart, Ind., and John Lynn of San Francisco, who have been visiting at the home of their cousin, M. B. McNay, 6909 Miramonte boulevard, left on Thursday for San Francisco, en route for the East.

Miss Anna Van Brunt, teacher of German in the Woolsey High School of Huron, S. D., who is on an extended study trip, visited at the home of O. F. Smith, on Walters street, last Tuesday. Rialto.

THE Berean class of the Sunday-school was delightfully entertained last evening in the parlors of the First Methodist Church on the occasion of their regular monthly meeting, the gracious and efficient hostesses of the event being the class president, Mrs. H. B. Frisbie, and Mrs. Harry Scott. The banquet hall was artistically decorated with greenery happily suggestive of cooling shade, the effect being emphasized by the serving of deliciously refreshing watermelon. A variety of games furnished merry diversion and a reading from the writings of "Josiah Allen's Wife" was contributed by Mrs. Claude Reisinger, being rendered in her usual inimitable style. The fifty members of this lively class always laok forward to these meetings with keen anticipation as they never fail in being of interest.

Mrs. A. J. Hartzell of North Orange street entertained on Saturday evening with a surprise party complimentary to her husband who celebrated the anniversary of his natal day. After the manner of such events all was most informal, each guest feeling free to do as he pleased. The Misses Bernese Hewett and Gladys Rowe contributed to the general enjoyment by rendering delightful musical numbers and a round of merry games furnished added amusement. The serving of light refreshments brought the affair to pleasing conclusion. Those privileged to participate included: Misses Maggie Reddinger, Belle Barnard, Gladys Rowe, Bernice Hewitt, Amanda Tinkler, Harriet Lewis, Ruth Kingman, Messrs. Howard Clayson, Jerome Allen, Will Musgrove, Marion Hoover, A. C. Kingman, W. Logue, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Tate, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reddinger, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Harris of Chino.

It is a pleasant custom of the local Maccabees that once a year during the heated term the Sir Knights and Lady Bees join in an old-fashioned basket picnic. On Friday evening one of the most enjoyable of these annual events was held at Urbita Springs, the trip to this popular resort being made by autos. The plunge and other attractions were liberally patronized and full justice done to the tempting collation spread under the tall trees. The journey home by moonlight completed the pleasures of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Needham proved most happy entertainers at a quiet, though charmingly appointed dinner party given at their home on North Olive street last evening. Pink carnations lent their delicate fragrance and beauty to grace the occasion, being artistically used in table decorations and throughout the attractive interior. Delightful musical numbers and a pleasant social chat passed the time all too quickly away. Plates were laid for Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Van Horn of Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Dickson and daughters Margaret and Katherine of San Bernardino, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Needham and Lionel Needham.

Rev. J. H. Lash of Lake-avenue Congregational Church, Pasadena, and Mr. and Mrs. De Witte Lash of Chicago are expected to arrive at the E. M. Lash home on Foothill boulevard this evening. The plan is for the entire party to take an outing at Pine Crest.

Orange.

ONE of the most delightful of recent events was the watermelon party given at the home of J. T. Moore by the Sunday-school class of the Presbyterian Church, taught by Mr. William F. Scott. The lawn was gay with Japanese lanterns, the melons were numerous and juicy and all the guests, of whom there were about thirty, thoroughly enjoyed the occasion.

Prior to the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Smith for their former home in Iowa they were pleasantly surprised by a number of their old friends. A jolly evening was spent and simple refreshments enjoyed. The company consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Goddickson, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Feldner, Mr. and Mrs. William Feldner, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Smith, Mrs. William Dover, Mrs. Louisa Baulman, Mrs. Fred Seiser, Mrs. R. Cunningham, Miss Blanch Smith, Miss Vera Feldner, Miss Elsie Goddickson, Lenz and Grant Goddickson, Clyde and Clem Feldner, Ward Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Smith, all of whom were old-time Iowa residents.

Their first meeting in twenty-five years occurred this week when Mrs. J. C. Wallace entertained at dinner Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Warner and son, Mr. and Mrs. John Hayton, Mrs. William Stearns and son, Mrs. W. D. Reddell and Mrs. Hawkins in honor of Mrs. B. F. Litts of San Francisco.

Friends from far and near came in to celebrate with Robert Appel on the occasion of his fiftieth birthday. Games and music, followed by delicious refreshments, made the evening a thoroughly enjoyable one.

Watts.

EXCEPTING a few dinner parties and informal evening gatherings the socially inclined have indulged this week in al fresco affairs at the beaches, in the mountains, or just under a wide-spreading tree in their own back yard.

The largest event of importance was the picnic party at Long Beach Thursday when a coterie of friends from Nadeau, Graham and Watts gathered together for a day's outing. Aquatic sports, Pike attractions and a delectable spread on one of the long tables beneath the pavilion were among the pleasures of the day. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Little, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Drake, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Dudley, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Preston, Mrs. A. Dodd, Mrs. Mary Goodwin, Mrs. C. Brown, Mrs. F. Strickland, Mrs. A. King, Mrs. L. A. Sells, Mrs. Otis Kneeland, Mrs. George Nadeau, Mrs. Ellen Justin, Mrs. Edna George, Misses Cornelius and Johanna Preston, Misses Olympia and Lydia George, Miss Jennie Youngblood, Miss Margarite, and Herbert Little, Irwin, Donald and Dielmont Brown, Miss Fern, and Paul Drake, Misses Pearl, Addie, Mildred, Beatrice, and Arthur Strickland, Misses Nellie, Marion and Florence Sells, Frederick Kneeland, and Irwin Nadeau.

With chairs and cushions and rugs scattered about the lawn and veranda of their suburban home, Rev. and Mrs. George Madden of the Methodist Episcopal Church were hosts to the Ladies' Aid Thursday afternoon, when the ladies planned and carried out a diverse programme of good things for the delectation of their hosts. Mrs. Floyd Windbigler was awarded a basket of California fruit for correctly guessing every question in the flower contest. A sight-seeing pilgrimage over their pastor's ranch

The humane feature of caring for alcoholics is stressed, but a protest is also entered against treating them as irresponsible or blameless for their defection. The book is written in direct, readable style; and, as we have pointed out, contains an abundance of such statements as will probably urge the tobacco and drug dealers to swear at the author. The saloon men are used to it.

HEREDITY AND ENVIRONMENT.

HEREDITY AND ENVIRONMENT IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF MEN. By Edwin Grant Conklin. Princeton University Press.

THIS book embodies The Norman W. Harris Lectures for 1914, given at Northwestern University by Prof. Conklin of Princeton University. It deals with every phase of heredity and environment in plants, animals, and human beings, points out the shortcomings of our race, and suggests practical ways of correcting them.

Prof. Conklin shows that the advance of civilization has meant only improvement of environment. But neither environment nor training has changed the hereditary capacities of man. There has been no perceptible improvement in human heredity within historic times, nothing comparable with the changes which have occurred in domesticated animals. Indeed no modern race of men is the equal of certain ancient ones. Galton has pointed out the fact that in the little country of Attica in the century between 530 and 430 B.C., there were produced fourteen illustrious men, one for every 4300 of the free-born adult male population.

Attica was a small, barren country with an area and total population about equal to that of the present State of Rhode Island, but with less than one-fifth as many free persons. Yet "in this small country in the space of two centuries there appeared such a galaxy of illustrious men as has never been found on the whole earth in any two centuries since that time." The author asserts that it was good immigration as well as good heredity that made Athens famous, and quotes Galton's conclusion that the average ability of the Athenian race of that period was, on the lowest possible estimate, "as much greater than that of the English race of the present day as the latter is above that of the African negro."

Despite these disconcerting comparisons between our race and some of the ancients, however, the dominant note of Prof. Conklin's book is optimism. Having awakened to the cause of our lack of progress, he believes that we shall find ways of improving existing conditions. His attitude toward war, or, more correctly, toward the fighting instinct of human beings, is pertinent at this time. He does not believe that this instinct could, or should, be suppressed. But he believes that it may be diverted into other channels, so that actual killing of fellow-men may be avoided. In this connection he suggests that international athletic contests, in which men expend their energies in defeating instead of killing their rivals, may do much to sublimate warlike tendencies in races. The world-wide athletic meets may be the stepping-stones to world-wide peace.

The book is written for intelligent laymen, and the author's style and manner of presentation make it peculiarly interesting.

"THE LOVABLE MEDDLER."

THE LOVABLE MEDDLER. By Leona Dalrymple. Reilly and Brittan Company, Chicago.

AS THE winner of a $10,000 prize some twelve months ago with a first novel, "Diane of the Green Van," Miss Dalrymple overnight bloomed into prominence, and some interest naturally awaits her second book.

Except by those who cherish the percussive thriller, the harum-scarum—largely scare 'em—excitement of Gaustarkian fiction, "The Lovable Meddler" will probably be accepted as the better book in every way. Its construction by no means has a well-joined, symmetrical sequence; the theme incloses more than one absurdity, but much of the character work is good and the story as a whole is rather superior to what is called the "average" novel.

Dr. Roderick Glenmuir, Scotchman, but hardly typical, is a lovable meddler bubbling sentiment and Bobby Burns's poetry, who takes it upon himself to see that Rose Weston, the sweet and patient eldest daughter of a large family of marriageable girls, comes into her own happiness. He meddles toward that end, enlisting numerous assistants and developing some amusing complications.

Rodney Weston, dilettante and father of Rose, is something of a musical comedy fop (though the author treats him seriously, very seriously,) and the absurdity reaches the farce-comedy level when, after being the butt and laughing stock of the city, Rodney is elected Mayor. Also the sentimentalists are deeply gratified by having Mrs. Weston, who has supported her husband for years, winning some fabulous fortune on a freakish maneuver of the stock exchange.

Dr. Roderick is not an easy character to depict, his role is one that may not be readily sustained with dignity; but Miss Dalrymple has succeeded in making it distinctive and natural—yes, lovable. But she has been somewhat less felicitous with the younger generation; for one thing, there is such a large group of young men and women, none of them, other than Rose and Larry, of more than secondary importance, that no one in particular—not even Rose—has the characterization, personality, distinctiveness approximating that of the Lovable Meddler. That this is true is not so much of a defect as an explanation of why and how the doctor dominates the story. But on the other hand, there seems to be a few more characters than the author can handle with the perfect ease and assurance that gives smoothness to plot development.

A WHIMSICAL TRAGEDY.

COME OUT TO PLAY. By M. E. F. Irwin. George H. Doran Company, New York.

AN ELUSIVE quality pervades "Come Out to Play," rather tantalizing in effect it is, but not exasperating. Almost at any point up to a thousand words of the ending Mr. Irwin could, it seems, have given it one twist and made it a whimsical farce, even as he gave it another and made of it a whimsical tragedy.

From babyhood to the sunny side of maturity we follow Truffles, a name the precocious son of Capt. Lemaigne came by while still a toddler through ordering that unknown delicacy in the hope of getting something surprising.

W. Somerset Maugham,

A brilliant young Englishman, whose plays—with Billie Burke and others starring in them—have given him a solid reputation on both sides of the Atlantic, and who has now, with a realistic novel, "Of Human Bondage," shown that he has even greater talent in fiction than in drama.

Interwoven through the story is the motif of Columbine and Pierrot: and Truffles, with his white face and long eyes, when an ebb of family fortune leaves him beached, half in jest and wholly for profit entertains crowds in the role for which nature seemed to have fitted him.

Rescued from the character of entertainer by a friend of his father, Truffles becomes secretary to Lord Mc ey, whose wife for some time extenuates Truffle's neglect of secretarial duties because of his felicity at social functions.

But most of that narrative, while valuable, is incidental to the real development of the story, which begins when Truffles sees a little waitress in yellow in a Soho restaurant. And one of the charming passages is of some length when Monsieur Rigaud, proprietor of the "Yellow Butterfly," tells of his early days in the Montmartre of Paris when young artists with "tomorrow" just ahead of them, and hopes beckoning, came to eat, talk, drink and promise to pay—tomorrow.

Improvident, reckless, a gay fellow, Truffles leads a merry life; but the colors of melancholy are never absent, never prominent, scarcely perceived.

Again and again he meets Pipette; again and again she joins in the gaiety of friends who gather about him; and then—the tragedy.

And this is the art of the book: Though it seems to waver between romance and farce, and has much of the time a Bohemian lightness, yet when the tragedy comes it seems not unnatural, rather logical. And after some meditation, inevitable.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

PIECES OF THE GAME. By Countess de Chambrun. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

IN A note the author seems at some pains to present "an adequate excuse for the seeming frivolity of publishing fiction in a moment of such tragic realism" as the war in Europe, and has "consecrated any profit that may acrue. . . . to the alleviation of a portion of that homeless misery of which we have seen so much."

The book is dedicated to "W. H. T.," obviously the former President, "with feelings of grateful remembrance and affectionate regard toward all those who formed a past administration;" and it deals with diplomatic society at Washington, though we are assured that "the principal characters who figure in the following pages are, like the story itself, purely fictitious."

So much to prick up the ears of curiosity in this new and as far as we know first novel by the sister of Nicholas Longworth, husband of Mr. Roosevelt's daughter.

Naturally so much palaver would not preface comment on a book of striking, or passable value. Nor does a sympathetic consideration of the purpose to which the book's profits are consecrated pre-suppose any laudatory comment on its intrinsic merit.

Several threads of narrative—that is, the action is forwarded from many viewpoints—center in the tragedy of a brilliant young Frenchman and his wife. The story is loosely constructed, chiefly with gossip and social small talk, and but one character seems to have been delineated with anything like "plotting care"—that is the catty, nearly venomous, Ida Clay, who, if she does not get pleasure out of making trouble, is at least unembarrassed.

As a novel it is intolerably flabby; whole chapters could be jerked from it and never missed—in fact, be valuable to the book if discarded.

"REALITY AND ROMANCE."

THE NURSE'S STORY. By Adele Bleneau. Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.

"THE NURSE'S STORY" purports to relate Miss Bleneau's experiences in the war zone. A brief and ambiguous explanation sets forth that it is a story "in which reality meets romance," and the evident intention is to make the author's chronicle appear largely true. An intention which, as far as we are concerned, defeats itself by internal evidence; for being somewhat familiar with many indubitably authentic accounts of actual experiences in the hospitals behind the battle lines, Miss Bleneau does not seem to display the intimacy resulting from personal contact.

As a story, a novel, it has many qualities of interest. The adventures of the beautiful nurse, who, with the wounded English captain she loves, is captured by the Germans, are drawn with graphic strokes. Though the atmosphere of reality is scarcely present, that of plausibility is never absent.

Adele's embarrassment is considerably intensified by the love a German officer professes for her; and her embarrassment becomes desperate when she is commissioned to enter the English camp as a spy and signal the location of hidden batteries or have the English captain put to death.

The romance of the story begins when the nurse meets the captain on the ship bearing them both to the war zone; it develops when he, wounded after a heroic fight, is brought under her care, and culminates when she has successfully played the spy and returns to the German hospital which is recaptured by the English.

The Germans are represented as a brutal lot, with now and then one appearing who is something of a gentleman; and numerous incidents of the war are related as sidelights on the hospital work, on the honor of Tommy Atkins or on the infamy of the Teutons.

IN PALESTINE.

THE SPELL OF THE HOLY LAND. By Archie Bell. The Page Company, Boston.

THE Crusaders made a costly, deadly protest of history's irony in placing the Holy Land of the Christians into the keeping of the Infidel Turks. But though sovereignty is denied the Occident, the eyes of Christendom are ever turned eastward.

Mr. Bell seems to have leisurely and studiously covered the Holy Land from Dan to Beersheba. He has not been inspired to treat it religiously, though a correlation of scenes and biblical events is observed, but has reported on modern conditions, succeeding perhaps better than he planned in contrasting the traditionally ancient with the innovations of the moderns—innovations forced by science upon a reluctant and suspicious people.

Jerusalem, he says, seems to be the rendezvous for all the weird thinkers in the world. They have a religious "hobby" and they come to the Holy City, where they are quite likely to find followers. There are dozens of young men who attempt to look as Jesus Christ has been pictured by the artists, and "you meet them prowling about the streets, absorbed in deep thought and meditation."

Without being impersonal, the author keeps himself somewhat in the background and yet records what he saw, heard, learned. Into all of the byways and strange paths, cities musty with age but many of them bearing some evidence of Germanic influence manifest in an effort at cleanliness, into the Garden of Gethsemane, over the Via Dolorosa, he went observantly and reports in an effortless, direct style that gives ease and satisfaction in the reading.

An interesting and unusual chapter is that which records an interview with Abbas Effendi, the prophet of Bahaism, who has been persecuted, imprisoned, for years, and yet whose followers are in all parts of the earth with some 50,000 located in America. Mr. Bell records that Abbas Effendi preaches "a universal religion which includes about every known creed of the well-known religions. He preaches equal suffrage for men and women. He would have a universal language. . . . He agrees with the Moslems," accepts Jesus Christ, believes that Buddha, Confucius and Zoroaster were inspired prophets. "Oh, this man can discourse learnedly upon the philosophy of Herbert Spencer, Kant and Schopenhauer." In his religion there are no paid ministers; he teaches and expects others to do likewise without money.

"The Spell of the Holy Land" is attractive typographically as are the others of "The Spell Series," has eight plates in full color and more than two-score full-page illustrations reproduced from photographs.

PUBLISHERS AND AUTHORS.

"The Lost Prince" is the title of Frances Hodgson Burnett's new novel which the Century Company will publish shortly. The hero is a prince who does not know he is one, though he has always the noble image of a prince before him, and he makes his way through Europe in the guise of a stalwart little tramp, secretly carrying a sign and a message to stray men in crowded streets, at palace gates, in forests and on mountainsides—he himself ignorant of all but that he must obey and pass on in silence.

Though the legend of which the Lost Prince is the central figure belongs to an actual country, yet his beautiful "Samavia"—like the mythical land of Zenda—may not be found in any atlas.

Rupert Hughes has just received a letter from James Huneker in which that critic declares that in "Empty Pockets," Mr. Hughes is taking up his recent challenge about a novel of New York. "Thank you for your 'Empty Pockets'," he writes, "but my pockets will be empty if I get any more such stories, for I neglected my work altogether yesterday, reading till 12:40 p.m., and went to bed in a rage because from sheer ocular fatigue I was forced to close the book at page 528. It seems to me that you are taking up my challenge about the New York novel. I smell Dostoievski and Hughes in the handling of the East Side episodes. A corker! Rupert. The other novel last year is less episodical, but this one has a tremendous elan, Schwung. It ought to be a 'seller'."

Hugh Walpole is still in Russia, whither he went shortly after the beginning of the war, traveling via Scandinavia. He made a searching study of the attitude of the Russians for a London daily, but has since gone into Red Cross work and is expecting to leave for the front any day. He has been doing a great deal of practical Red Cross work in Moscow hospitals, meantime, yet has had time to write a preface for his new novel, "The Golden Scarecrow," which is to be published in the fall, and which is expected to rival the fame of Mr. Walpole's earlier novels, "Fortitude" and "The Duchess of Wrexe."

There seems to be nothing of the aristocrat about Leona Dalrymple, whose new book, "The Lovable Meddler," has recently been published by the Reilly & Britton Co. Her mother recently said to a caller, "We never know what Leona is going to bring home with her—a beggar boy or a lady in silk and satin. She talks to everybody, and I wish she wouldn't." On one occasion Miss Dalrymple found herself in a street car crowded with Sicilian laborers. "We did get into an awfully interesting conversation," she said, in telling of it. "Somebody, however, saw me and told father I was talking to a gang of anarchists!"

At a big pow-wow recently held in Cutbank Canyon, Montana, Mary Roberts Rinehart, whose new novel is "K", was formally adopted into the Blackfeet tribe of Indians, and given the name of Pitamakan (Running Eagle,) after the famous warrior woman. The ceremony was presided over by Chief Tall Feathers, an old-time warrior, assisted by "Two Guns White Calf," "Eagle Child," "Big Spring," "Black Bull," "Yellow Wolf" and "Stab by Mistake."

Mrs. Rinehart's adoption into the tribe was sealed by valuable gifts, including a number of old tribal possessions. Following the ceremony the Indians performed their tribal dances, including the "Grass Dance," "The Parted Hair Dance" and "The Dance of Friendship." Mrs. Rinehart is en route for Eaton's Ranch, Wyoming.

Booth Tarkington's new novel, "The Turmoil," has centered attention again on the best-seller record which "The Bookman" magazine keeps impartially for all publishers. "The Bookman" said editorially: "'The Turmoil' broke all records in the history of The Bookman lists with 404 out of a possible 450 points. It held first place in thirty-eight out of the forty-five reports." Since that was written "The Turmoil" has apparently broken another record—being first on "The Bookman's" list four successive months.

Kate Douglas Wiggin, whose latest book is "Penelope's Postscripts," is deep in preparation for the annual fair at Hollis, Me., her summer home. Last year she autographed and sold many hundreds of her books to visitors there, for the benefit of the parish church, and this year she hopes to surpass her previous record.

Mrs. Wiggin is given as one of the American women who earn over $50,000 a year, partly, of course, from her books, and partly from the very successful run that "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" has had on the stage.

Johnson in his dictionary defines a Satire as a poem in which wickedness or folly is censured. Charles Cammell in his little book of poems entitled "Casus Belli to Satire: With Other Poems," issued by E. P. Dutton & Co., has censured the wickedness and folly of the war which now afflicts humanity, with the hope that his book may strike some chord of sympathy in the hearts of its readers, and thereby induce them to unite their efforts with those of the party of peace. The verse is in the heroic couplet, being modeled after Pope and Dryden.

COMMENT AND OPINION.

Pounding American Publishers.

Some months ago Ezra Pond made one of his recurrent and obstreperous appearances in "Poetry: A Magazine of Verse" to lambast American publishers for having denied Robert Frost's poetry a hearing. Mr. Frost is an American, writing purely of American themes, but his first two volumes of poetry were published and praised in England.

Apparently Mr. Pound would rather scold than be right. Without taking the trouble to investigate, he seems to have made a wild lunge at the most obvious conclusion and noisily set abroad the damaging, embarrassing report that Mr. Frost had been refused a hearing in America.

Mr. Frost Speaks.

Mr. Frost, who, presumably, knows more about his own affairs than the Zoilean Mr. Pound, has considerately explained how, with no discredit whatever upon American publishers, his books first appeared in London.

In a letter to Henry Holt & Co., publishers in this country of "North of Boston" and "A Boy's Will," Mr. Frost says: "I never offered a book to an American publisher, and I didn't cross the water seeking a Britisher publisher. No one looked on me as an American literary refugee in London. . . . I had made up my mind to get away off somewhere, anyway, where I could write poetry without scandal to my friends."

The Way of Success.

Mr. Frost explains further: "I went to England to be in England. I expected to be lost among strangers there. I carried not an introduction with me. At first the isolation so far from home and help scared me; but it stimulated to work. I wrote.

"It was about Christmas time that I first thought of books. One day as I was looking over old papers dating back, some of them, twenty years, I saw in a flash that I had one book already written and all I had to do was to throw it into shape to make it mean me. . . . I carried my manuscript into London in my pocket, left it with David Nutt, and never had to show it to anyone else."

And then, instead of Mr. Frost's poetry being denied a hearing in America, it happened that Henry Holt, having seen an English copy of "North of Boston," set about procuring the American rights.

Clever of the Author, Too.

Miss Sara Ware Bassett, author of "The Taming of Zenas Henry," says that a confirmed Cape Codder has written to her that he recognizes all of the characters. This, comments Miss Bassett, is clever of him, as none of the characters have ever existed.

Harvey seldom fails to make things hum,) by the editor on "Amercia First," relative to the duties of government and citizens at this time. John Burroughs writes on "Life and Chance." "HOW TO 'MAKE GOOD.'"

In "How to 'Make Good'" (Efficiency Building Bureau, Kansas City,) Alfred T. Hemingway, secretary and general manager of the Forest Lumber Company, has written a stirring "message" on commercial character-building. This may be considered as the practical advice of a business man of wide experience. And what he has to say is really simple, but none the less valuable. In brief his advice is: Find the work you like, determine to succeed, train for advancement, be prepared, keep clean in body, be dependable. A man engaged in work that is distasteful is hopeless as a bumblebee in a corked bottle.

Mr. Hemingway is straightforward and plain; his message is really encouraging; it doesn't represent that a thing is required which is not within the easy reach of any determined man.

SOCIETY.

ent. Mrs. Launer will be remembered as a very popular young teacher of the grammar school. The destination of the wedding journey was not divulged, but the happy couple, it is announced, will be at home to their friends at Brea after September 15.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Morris last Friday evening a farewell surprise party was held for Miss Mary Canfield. She was leaving to join the class of nurses at the Methodist Hospital in Los Angeles, and though she will be greatly missed in the various associations of which she was an active member her many friends wish her success in the larger work for which she is so well fitted. The evening was brightened by games and refreshments and a shower of beautifully-embroidered handkerchiefs made choice souvenirs of the affair.

Mrs. W. A. Goodell, who has been spending the summer with the H. E. Hart family, returned Wednesday to her home in Wisconsin after three months of visiting, sight-seeing, and a general round of pleasure. She was accompanied by her small daughter and Mrs. Cordelia Goodell.

Miss Ethel Reaves of Los Angeles, a friend of Miss Wanda Davis, has been a house guest at the Davis home on Cypress street the last week.

Santa Barbara.

THE opening on September 2 of the Little Theater, built by the subscriptions of Montecito society people, and to be run by and for them, will be the center of social interest in Santa Barbara until the opening night is past. The idea of the Montecito Little Theater was that of Mrs. William Miller Graham, who continues to be the leading spirit in the preparations for opening night. With the aid of her Montecito friends she is arranging a programme by local amateurs which will not be announced until a date close to that set for the opening.

The Little Theater is built on Montecito highland, overlooking the ocean, and close to the big polo field. When built its designers centered their attention on acoustics, and those holding rehearsals there now state that both the voice and the sound of instruments carry clearly and unchanged to every seat in the building.

It is now nearly a year since the Little Theater was completed, and for some time before Mrs. Graham announced the date of the opening society had commenced to dispair of ever enjoying its exclusive little playhouse, nestled in the hills among the Montecito estates. Some time ago it was announced that the theater was to be opened with a production of "Prunella" by local talent, and the society people who were to have taken the leading parts were already understood to be chosen when the plan for this kind of an opening was suddenly abandoned and nothing was said of the Little Theater and its work until the announcement of the opening date, September 2, was made.

Already a number of brilliant theater parties have been arranged for the Little Theater opening. The fact that all local talent will make up the programme and that after the curtain drops the forepart of the theater and the stage will be cleared for dancing, adds greatly to the social possibilities of the affair, and those interested are making the best of it.

Many Santa Barbara and Montecito society events are now centered about Miss Beatrice Miller, daughter of Mrs. Ferdinand Bain of Montecito, and her fiance, Lieut. Gantz. Miss Miller has just returned from San Francisco, where her friends gave numerous teas and showers in her honor. The big event before the wedding here will be the ball at Mira Vista, the beautiful estate of the Henshaws. This will be given August 30 by Mr. and Mrs. William Griffith Henshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chickering and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keeney.

Several theater parties are being given in honor of the bride, to be among them a pretty affair by Mrs Charles Hopkins.

At the Bain home everything is being made ready for the wedding, although it is some time off. An extensive plan of landscape gardening will be completed about the grounds before that date.

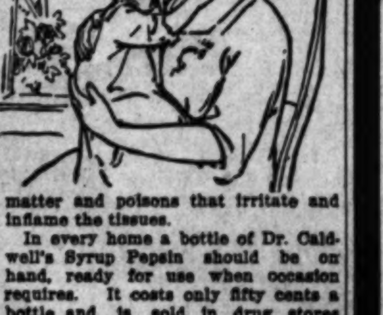
Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bodger were the guests of his brother, Mr. John Bodger, of Los Angeles, on Sunday, last.

A jolly group of young people gathered at the home of Clarence Myers last Friday evening, for a few hours of pleasant enjoyment. Progressive games were played, the first prize of a beautiful fern being captured by Miss Anne Cookman. A delicious collation of ice cream and cake was served to the Misses Anne Cookman, Gladys Bennett, Ada Myers of Moneta, Ruth McKnight and Helen Heichert of Los Angeles, and the Messrs. Alfred Cookman, Bill Cookman, Lowell and Clarence Myers, Ted Stevenson of Moneta, Murray Heichert and J. Wilson Cummings of Los Angeles.

Make it Easier For Baby in Summer

Many of the Hot-Weather Troubles Can Easily Be Avoided



If the mother will see to it that the bowels are kept regular, much of the illness to which children are most susceptible during hot weather can be prevented.

A mild laxative, administered at regular intervals, will prove an excellent preventive of summer complaints that are caused by inactive bowels. The combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is excellent for children, being pleasant to the taste, gentle yet positive in action, and free from opiate or narcotic drug of any description. It acts naturally, without griping or other discomfort, and is altogether dependable.

The cleansing of the bowels will most effectively check an attack of diarrohea by expelling the foreign matter and poisons that irritate and inflame the tissues.

In every home a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should be on hand, ready for use when occasion requires. It costs only fifty cents a bottle and is sold in drug stores everywhere. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 453 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

MRS. MASSON,
322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

WANTED—
I SELL THE EARTH.
R. S. BASSETT.

I have tried for the past three weeks to find a bargain in a tract of land of from 10 to 20 acres for some clients of mine, and have looked over several pieces of property within a radius of 10 to 20 miles of Los Angeles, with the same conditions existing on each property, namely, there was a wash, alkali, rocks, all sand or rough land or some other bad feature that would hurt the sale of the property. Now, if you have a tract of from 10 to 20 acres, unimproved or partially improved within 25 miles of Los Angeles and have to sell, I can sell it for you if your price is in reason. My clients are not gamblers and do not wish to buy from a standpoint of speculation. They have the cash and want their money's worth; also they know what land is worth and do not care at what price your neighbor is holding his property. If you are interested in this kind of a proposition submit your property with full description and location by letter or in person to E. S. HAMILTON, with

Electric Automobiles.

ATTENTION, ELECTRIC CAR BUYERS; WE HAVE spent the past month in getting together the finest stock of used electrics ever placed on sale; we have literally "skimmed" the market, and out of fifty odd cars offered us have selected twenty-one, representing in their respective makes and models, the best in condition; price and service value; these cars are all on our salesroom floor; every one is in perfect condition, and fully guaranteed by us. Each carries the same service after purchase that is given with a new car by its agent. (This means something you don't get when you buy from a private owner.) Your inspection and comparison of this unusual stock is invited; you will find it interesting and instructive. It will convince you that our values are best and prices lowest, as always. We are glad to demonstrate by appointment. No prices over phone. Call any time; we never close.

THE OFFICERS' RISK.

A Larger Percentage has Been Killed in the Present War than in Any of the Other Modern Conflicts.

[Boston Herald:] In none of England's wars has the percentage of officers killed been so high as in the present conflict. While it has been apparent that many of the computations of losses have been based upon unverified probabilities, authentic statistics were recently presented in the House of Commons by the Prime Minister, and in discussing them the leading English medical journal says that the proportion of killed to wounded men has so far been similar to and only slightly in excess of the ratios in the Crimean and South African wars, while in the case of the officers the ratio has been much greater and is a cause of grave anxiety.

In the Crimea the ratio of men killed to those wounded and missing was 22.7 per cent.; in South Africa it was 20 per cent., and in the present war it is 23.5 per cent. A study of the figures for two other wars of the last half-century shows that in the Franco-Prussian War of 1870 the ratio was 17.5 per cent., and in the Russo-Turkish war of 1877 it reached the astonishing percentage of 45.98. The losses of officers killed to the wounded and missing during the last year has reached the ratio of 1 to 2.3, or 43.61 per cent.

The actual figures were stated by Mr. Asquith to be 3327 officers and 47,015 noncommissioned officers and men killed, a larger number than for a like period of time in any previous war. In the Crimea the British lost 2755 killed and 12,094 wounded; for South Africa the corresponding figures are 5256 and 26,286, while in the war of 1870 the Germans lost 17,570 killed and 96,189 wounded, and in the war of 1877 the Russians lost 32,780 killed and 71,268 wounded.

PRESERVING BRITISH SECRETS.

Rarely, If Ever, Does any Premature Information Reach the Public from Downing Street.

[London Tit-Bits:] Scores of secrets are born behind the portals of 10 Downing-st, Whitehall, and they are so well kept that there is little chance of one of them leaking out to the public. Ministers are not only pledged to secrecy, but they are forbidden to take notes of the business transacted at a cabinet meeting.

Occasionally it is found desirable to have a "secret" set up in type. The original manuscript of a "secret" is not handed over in its entirety to a compositor. It is cut up into numerous little pieces, which are distributed among a number of compositors, each of them sets up his little piece.

When all the fragments have been put into type an official holding high rank in the government personally collects the lines of metal and puts them together in their proper place. He then superintends the actual printing of the "secret." No one but himself is allowed to handle the printed copies as they come from the press. Spoilt copies he destroys, and when a sufficient number of copies have been taken off he has the type from which they have been printed melted down in his presence.

Some years back a spy endeavored to secure a position in the government printing department, imagining that if he had a job there he would be able to secure printed copies of the "secrets" which originate at Downing-st. When he discovered how important documents were printed he had no further desire for a post.

Improving a Play.

"I spoke to an eminent producer not long ago," he said, "about a play a young friend of mine sent to him. He remembered it.

"'Ah, yes,' he said. 'Not at all bad. There's an idea in it.'

"Later on it was produced, and after the show I went behind.

"'Well,' said the eminent producer, 'what did you think of it?'

"'Oh, all right,' I said. 'It seems all correct. But what about that idea?'

"He didn't seem to understand.

"'The idea,' I reminded him; 'you said there was an idea in it.'

"He remembered then. 'Ah, yes,' he said. 'Yes. We had to cut that out.'"

Was Excited.

[Louisville Times:] Weeta is a little girl who lives in that part of Louisville at once and comprehensively denominated the West End. Her real name, of course, is Rita; but this is too much for her playmates, and their version of it has been taken by her and their elders until now they have to stop and think who is meant when this appellation is used.

Ordinarily, her communication, if not yea, yea, and nay, nay is as acceptable in the sight of good folk as that of any six-year-old; but last week an incident occurred which startled her out of her accustomed decorum. She had been taken to the country for a visit and accompanied one of the men to the big barn, where, in the course of his labors, he uncovered a huge blacksnake that had hidden under a pile of boards.

After it had been dispatched and the excitement was all over, Weeta, viewing the remains, ejaculated:

"Gosh! What a worm!"

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY AND CHEMISTRY

You are politely requested to submit samples carefully wrapped and tagged, with letter accompanying stating what tests are desired. Make samples of small size. There is no necessity for big chunks. Correspondents offering matter for analyses with card, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, for instance, with no marks of identification on samples, will, hereafter, receive no attention whatever.

Graphite of Value.

LOS ANGELES, July 30. — Q.: Please analyze the enclosed sample for graphite; state percentage, and if of good commercial value. B.

A.: Approximately 8.50 per cent. graphite in the mass of gneissoid. If separated from the gangue it can be readily sold. It washes free from grit.

Green Actinolite.

SAN DIEGO, July 30. — Q.: Am sending under separate cover sample of mineral marked la paz. What is it? Has it a commercial value? There is a whole mountain of this in Lower California. Obliging an old reader of The Times. "LA PAZ."

A.: Glad to hear from you. The sample is named at the sub-heading. It is in bright-green bladed crystals, with vitreous luster. The crystals are in slender prisms and are fragile.

Asbestiform actinolite should be obtained from the mountain referred to. The sample is of value for mineral collections, etc.

In Part Tetrahedrite.

NOGALES (Ariz.) July 31.—Q.: Kindly tell me through your valuable paper what kind of minerals are contained in the two samples sent by separate mail, found south of here and marked "Nogales." I am told that antimony and molybdenite show up in both samples. The red is said to contain gold, silver and copper. Both samples are from top of ground. "NOGALES."

A.: The black specimen carries antimony, iron and manganese, in low percentages. The pink is a jasper (quartz) iron oxides present. Copper trace only. No sample tested for gold or silver. Doubtful ores.

Zinc Trace Only.

SKYLAND HEIGHTS, July 31. — Q.: I enjoy reading your "In the Earth." What kind of mineral is this? I am anxious to find tin or zinc ores. H.

Siderite.

TUCSON (Ariz.) July 31.—Q.: I have no doubt but that you can classify the enclosed sample for me. There is a ledge of it thirty-five miles southwest of Tucson. M.

Phosphoric Acid Trace.

LOS ANGELES, July 31.—Q.: Will you kindly give me an analysis of the yellow ore sent in separate package. I found it on an old dump which was probably worked for silver in the early 70's. The prospect is situated in the River range, about twenty-five miles southeast of Oatman, Mohave county, Ariz. In doing assessment work I find high-grade silver ore carrying some gold in the same vein. The formation is a soft porphyry. There is about ten tons of this character ore carefully piled up. Does it carry platinum? G.

A.: The sample is a yellowish (limonitic) and silicious calcite. Antimony oxide present in low percentage. Lead a trace. Platinum absent. Not tested for gold or silver.

Anthraconite.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—Q.: The enclosed sample was sent to me by a friend living near Ogden, Utah. He had it assayed for zinc, but got no zinc returns. It resembles the zinc ore of Frisco, Utah, but it strikes no fire when struck with a hammer. What is it? A.

A.: The sample is not luminescent blende (zinc sulphide,) which occurs at Frisco, Utah. The Frisco variety was exhibited by the citizens of Utah at the Lewis and Clark exposition several years ago, and owing to the property possessed by the mineral of yielding streaks of fire if scratched in the dark, the Mormons tagged it "hell-fire ore."

The sample submitted by you if struck with steel gives off an odor of rotten eggs, and is known as stinkstone. The sample is a good grade phosphate rock; phosphoric acid present approximately 22 per cent.

Black Copper Ore.

CHLORIDE (Ariz.) Aug. 1.—Q.: I submit two samples of ore. Please state contents. J.

A.: No. 1 carries 55 per cent. magnetite; titanic iron, quartz, chori, lime and trace of copper. No. 2 is a mixture of good leaching ore of black copper and other oxide. Iron and manganese present.

Black Silicate.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—Q.: Herewith sample from a large deposit located in the Malibu Canyon about forty miles from Los Angeles. Owing to the fact that the water flowing over the vein causes a heavy coating, or rock-like casing to form on its surface, it gives me the impression that it carries metal of some sort. C.

A.: The sample is simply a silicate of iron and manganese with aluminum silicate. There is present in the mass a very minute percentage of microscopical pyrite and arsenopyrite, and while you have not submitted a sample of the "coating" it is probable that the substance is halotrichite (iron alum.) Halotrichite is of but slight commercial value.

Rocks.

ALHAMBRA, Aug. 1.—Q.: I send you today under separate cover two samples of ore. The blue ore is No. 1 and the black iron No. 2. Please state in "In the Earth" if gold and silver is present. M.

A.: No. 1 is a greenish epidotic rock; pyrite and arsenical pyrite present. The sienna-brown ore (there is no black sample) is simply porphyritic rock with iron present. No sample tested for silver. The samples represent substances of no commercial value.

Rhyolitic Tuff.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—Q.: I am sending you some ore samples from Los Angeles county. Will you kindly tell me what they consist of? I will thank you, also, to tell me how whiting for cleaning silver is made? T.

A.: The sample is named at the subheading. Material represented by the specimen occurs in large deposits in the county referred to. "It is said to make a good calcimine and to be suitable in the manufacture of rubber and as a filler for light colored linoleums."

Whiting is obtained from white limestone (calcite) and "some whiting prepared artificially is finer grained and a little lighter in weight than the natural whiting. It is used largely in the manufacture of putty, in distemper work, and in small quantities in ready mixed paints."

Chemically, whiting is purified calcium carbonate. The prepared carbonate of calcium (creta propearata, U.S.P.) is simply washed chalk or whiting. This variety of whiting is shaped in small conical lumps, somewhat larger than a thimble. "Wet whiting pushed, portion by portion, through a funnel, and each separately dried, gives the conventional prepared chalk." Much of the whiting of commerce manufactured in the United States is gritty and impure, and it is not often that the silky lustered grade free from grit can be purchased unless obtained from first-class dealers.

Material represented by the sample will not make whiting.

Platinum.

RENO (Nev.) Aug. 2.—Q.: In a container sent you with this I submit ores from a Nevada locality that is reputed to be rich in platinum. Do the samples carry platinum? Has Nevada produced commercial quantities of platinum from any ores? I will be obliged if you give me some information on localities in the United States where the metal is obtained. Any information you give will be highly appreciated. McW.

A.: Platinum is sparingly present in the samples; all of them tested together in one analysis.

Nevada has not produced commercial quantities of platinum from any ores with the exception of those from near Goodsprings.

"The placer miners of California and Oregon saved 570 ounces (troy) of crude platinum in 1914, as compared with 483 ounces in 1913. . . . The greatest increase in production was in Oregon, which showed a gain of 85 ounces. . . . The Boss gold-copper-platinum mine, near Goodsprings, Clark county, Nev., produced 110 ounces of platinum. Besides the platinum obtained from sands and platinum ore, 2906 ounces of this metal was obtained from new material, of both domestic and foreign origin, by smelters and refiners of gold and copper bullion and mattes. The secondary platinum industry handled 40.826 ounces of platinum, which was obtained from refining scrap metals and sweepings of the jewelry and dental trades."

The Survey Bulletin, from which we are now giving information, further states: "Even if the imports of foreign platinum were greatly reduced there are apparently sufficient stocks of this metal in the United States to meet domestic requirements, for the price of platinum, which rose to $50 an ounce just after the war was declared, had by July, 1915, fallen to $37 an ounce, or $8 an ounce less than the average in 1914. Another explanation of this low price may be the increasing use of tungsten, molybdenum, and nickel-chrome alloys in the electrical industry, and the use of plated ware in jewelry and dental work."

Hydromagnesite.

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 3.—Q.: You will please find in separate package samples from a claim located in this county. It outcrops in small bunches on a ranch for half a mile. Will you please tell me what kind of ore it is? Is it of any value? S.

A.: The samples are named at the subheading. They represent mineral of commercial value and carry approximately 40 per cent. magnesia. The specimens are in small acicular crystals with chalklike crusts. Luster subpearly, brittle, hardness 3.5, Sp.G. 2.16. Infusible before the blowpipe; yields moisture in the glass tube, and by heat of the flame becomes pure magnesia. The samples dissolve in acids with effervescence, and represent material of value for its over 30 per cent. content of so-called carbonic acid.

OATMAN (Ariz.) Aug. 20.—Considerable excitement prevails here over the recent strike made on the 400-foot level of the Black Eagle. This discovery promises to be one of the largest in this district, as the ore body has been crosscut for thirty-two feet, and the wall is not in sight yet.

The entire vein samples $20, while fourteen feet is high grade. The significant part of this strike is that it is located fully a mile beyond the former recognized producing territory.

On the Ivanhoe Consolidated rapid headway is being made in driving the crosscut on the 200-foot level, and the management expects to reach the ledge contact within the next few days. The ground is softening up as the cut is advanced, indicating the approach to vein material.

As the shaft on the property of the Oatman Mining and Milling Company is lowered ,the vein which dipped into it at eighty-five feet is widening, and carries a heavier gold content. Pannings of the screenings invariably show a good string of colors.

The shaft on the Big Jim is nearing the 100-foot level. Manager S. M. Warmbath is here arranging the installation of the engines, a hoist and a compressor, and buildings to house them. The shaft has been sunk so far by hand, but with the aid of machinery more rapid progress will be made.

The west drift on the 530-foot level of the Gold Ore shaft of the Gold Road Company has been extended into ore of very good milling grade. The ore is eight feet in width, and neither wall has been disclosed.

A syndicate headed by W. H. Wise of Los Angeles has taken a bond on the properties of the Treasure Key Company and will start comprehensive development at once. The holdings of the company adjoin the Orion mines on the west.

The Esmeralda mine, adjoining the Pittsburgh, owned by the Gold Range Company, is being put in shape for vigorous work. Two feet of $15 rock was recently struck at a depth of twenty feet in the new shaft on the main extension of the Pittsburgh vein system.

The Wet States.

[Wall Street Journal:] Twelve States lying within the Upper Mississippi Valley, the Missouri Valley up to the boundary line and the area known as the Mountain Region will go down in the weather records of 1915 as having gone wet all summer long. For example, Hannibal, Mo., on the Mississippi, has 27 per cent. more moisture than normal; St. Louis has 30 per cent. in excess; Kansas City 39 per cent.; Topeka, 64 per cent., and North Platte, Neb., which a year or so ago was one of the driest spots in the country, had 86 per cent. excess between March 1 and July 20. In the Mountain Region Helena, Mont., has normal rainfall and half as much again. Even the desert regions of Santa Fe ,N. M., have 54 per cent. above the usual 5.4 inches. This general region is the great storage and drainage area of the western half of the United States and has now enough water in its system to last until next spring.

California Mines.

BALAKLALA TO RESUME SOON.

Big Smelter is to Test New Fume Process.

Southern Californians Get Placer Group.

Latest Developments in the Mining Districts.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDDING, Aug. 20.—The Balaklala Copper Company has rebuilt the trestles of its tramway and is getting things in shape for resumption of operations. General Manager Frank M. Leland is scheduled to arrive in a few days to take personal charge of the property.

A new furnace stack will be erected at an approximate cost of $35,000, and the big $1,000,000 smelter will be placed in shape for the first trials of the improved Cottrell electrolytic process, which is expected effectively to adjust fume difficulties. Pending resumption of smelting activities, selected ore probably will be shipped to the custom smelter at Tacoma, Wash.

The management is hopeful of commencing large scale experiments with the new fume-control process early in November. It has been thoroughly tested at several smelters controlled by the American Smelting and Refining Company and the Balaklala installation will be on a commercial scale. Most of the precipitated by-products will be in marketable form.

The Mammoth Copper Company is building a road from the Kennett smelter to the Spread Eagle mine and will soon start heavy shipments from the property. An electrically operated tramline is being constructed to connect the Stowell mine with the main Mammoth ore hauling system.

A large tonnage of excellent ore is exposed in the Stowell and the company is preparing to draw heavily on the reserves.

The Friday-Lowden group is being rapidly placed in shape for a heavy output, and development has been started in the recently acquired Golinsky mine. The Mammoth company is reported preparing to operate its full battery of five furnaces.

The Gem group of placer mines, embracing 400 acres on Trinity River, near South Fork, has been acquired by Southern California capitalists for approximately $40,000. The property has been profitably worked for many years with hydraulic giants, water being delivered through a flume line four miles long.

Large areas of rich virgin territory are available for mining and the new owners are arranging to install additional machinery and augment production. Besides its high gold content, the gravel carries platinum in important quantities.

ENLARGING PLANT.

J. R. McKennie and associates of Los Angeles are increasing the capacity of the mill at the McKeen mines, near Cullahan, to twenty-five tons per day. The old milling method has been discontinued in favor of the wet process, involving fine grinding and cyanide treatment. Three other veins, besides the main shoot, which averages thirty inches wide and which has been developed for a length exceeding 1000 feet have been intersected and arrangements are being made for their exploration.

Rich ore has been frequently encountered and the outlook is favorable for the making of a big producer.

The old Black Bear mine, near the historic camp of Black Bear, has been provided with additional equipment. More men have been put to work and development in the lower levels is progressing vigorously. More machine drills have been placed in action and a good tonnage of ore is broken. This is one of the oldest quartz mines in the State but has been worked intermittently in the past decade.

The Victory Gold Mining Company of Los Angeles is rapidly completing installation of machinery in its new mill, and expects to start production before the close of September. A sawmill, having a capacity of 10,000 feet of lumber daily is under construction at the mine. Underground work is largely confined to prospecting new territory, as sufficient ore has been blocked out to keep the plant running for an indefinite period.

California capitalists have commenced prospecting of the Paulsen and Wilson ranches, near Lewiston, with the intention of operating dredgers. Twenty shafts have been sunk on the Paulsen place to depths of fifteen to twenty feet, exposing gold-bearing gravel throughout the deposit. Testing of the Wilson ground has been started, and an option had been taken on the Poker Bar deposit.

Throughout Shasta, Trinity and Siskiyou counties dredge mining companies are actively prospecting the extensive placer areas, many of which have been worked solely by the hydraulic method. The surface gravel has been sluiced off, but underlying this are vast bodies of deep gravel that can be worked advantageously with dredgers. Most of the leading California companies are testing ground and before long the "boat" threatens to dethrone the giant from its last stronghold in the State.

The Walker Copper Company, composed of Salt Lake people, is preparing to erect a concentrator at its copper mine twenty-five miles from Portola. Roads are under construction from the property to Portola, and a sawmill is to be built immediately.

A tramway over 7000 feet long will be built from the mine to the concentrator. It is understood concentrates will be shipped to Portola by means of motor trucks and thence to custom smelters via rail. The company reports a large tonnage of commercial ore has been opened.

The Greenwater and Death Valley Copper Company has started operations at the Ryan gold mine two miles south of Shingle Springs, near Placerville. The Ryan is a gold property embracing forty acres of patented land. It is noted for shoots of high-grade ore, and the presence of large bodies of milling quartz. The new operators have developed a good water supply.

BUSY AT ALLEGHANY.

Alleghany is again one of the most active of California camps. Rich discoveries in the Tightner, El Dorado and Twenty-One mines have stimulated interest. Many companies that have been operating along restricted lines are preparing for heavier outputs, largely influenced by the discovery of a vein of rich ore below the water level in the Tightner mine.

Colorado people have again taken charge of the Rainbow and are preparing plans for the early building of a modern mill. New York people are prosecuting work at the Twenty-One with good results. Good ore is showing in the Sixteen-to-One, which is being energetically operated with San Francisco and Los Angeles capital.

Operations have commenced at the Mariposa, Oriental, Golden Fraction and a number of other promising properties.

Reopening of the Klondike mine, near Sierra City, is proceeding. Good ore was unearthed last summer in both shafts, but the management has decided to drive a lower tunnel, which is expected to intersect the downward extension of the ore bodies and develop a dependable supply of quartz.

Tonopah.

WEEK'S YIELD IS TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS.

TONOPAH (Nev.) Aug. 15.—Notwithstanding reports of shrinkage, the output remains almost stationary, with a slight advantage for the past week, which showed 10,722 tons, valued at $218,956, compared with 10,407 tons at a value of $213,286 for the preceding week. The bullion shipments also show a normal apperation.

Last week the Tonopah Mining Company shipped $40,000, representing seven days' output; Tonopah Extension shipped $68,500 as a semi-monthly production; the Tonopah Belmont sent out $133,000 as a result of a two weeks' run of its mills in Tonopah, and Millers and the West End Consolidated shipped $47,000. These with minor shipments bring the total up to over $250,000.

The old Tonopah Mining Company continues to improve constantly in spite of the official forecast of the annual report for the past two years that the property had seen its best days. A very important feature of the week was the widening of the stope on the MacNamara vein on the 540-foot level of the Silver Top.

A consolidation of the Tonopah Extension, Victor and Merger mines has been consummated, and now the three estates are being worked as one. The Merger equipment has been removed and the shaft abandoned for the present, with the intention of reserving it for emergency purposes and to improve the ventilation of the property around it. The Victor shaft is destined to become the main working shaft of the Extension, all indications pointing to that fact.

The water is coming in at a rate that can be easily controlled with the pumps running only part time. Retimbering and repairs on the 1540-foot station of the Victor continue, and the caved ground in the crosscut on this level is being taken up.

On the Extension proper full faces of good grade ore are showing on the lowest level at 1350 feet. This probably marks the lowest working point of the mine for the present, as there is sufficient ore blocked out above to keep the present mill handling 350 tons a day going steadily for the next three years.

The bullion shipment from the West End is the greatest handled in the last eight months, and, when the tonnage is considered, it is plainly evident that the mill has been treating an unusually high grade of ore. One of the best developments of the week occurred when footwall crosscut No. 623 encountered the vein.

Leasers on the Midway are getting remarkable results, as demonstrated by shipments aggregating 228 tons during the past week. In the new workings on the south drift of the 1300-foot level the face was advanced 70 feet from the shaft. Some small quartz stringers were cut, but the vein the company expected to encounter at about fifty feet has not yet been reached, and it is apparent that its pitch is steeper than was anticipated.

On Rescue Eula work is being started on the new winze which is being sunk on the third vein cut by the south crosscut on the 800-foot level. The south crosscut on the 950-foot level has been going through some bad ground, but is back again in solid trachyte. A new east drift on this level is making splendid progress having already advanced forty feet without being any change in the formation.

A new fire system has been installed at the Halifax, and from this time there should be very little danger from serious damage by fire. The equipment comprises a two-stage centrifugal connected to a twenty-horse-power motor and delivering to four hydrants supplemented by a 30,000-gallon tank, which furnishes sufficient pressure to reach all parts of the mine and surface improvements.

Easy Matrimony.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat:] Maj. George W. Tiedeman of Savannah, condemning a municipal bill that he deemed too hastily drafted, said to a reporter:

"Why, they drafted this bill the way the old-time Georgia editor used to perform his wedding ceremonies.

"The old-time editor of Georgia was usually the Mayor as well. He was also justice of the peace, conveyancer and real estate agent, deacon of the church, leading lawyer and head of the building and loan.

"As one of these editors was writing a two-column editorial on the tariff, a Georgia couple came in to be married. The editor, without once looking up, without once slackening the steady movement of his pen, said:

" 'Time's money. Want her?'

" 'Yes,' said the youth.

" 'Want him?' the editor continued, nodding toward the girl.

" 'Yes,' she replied.

" 'Man and wife,' pronounced the editor, his pen traveling smoothly and rapidly. 'One dollar. Bring a load of wood for it—one-third pine, balance oak.' "

On the Garden Gate.

[New York American:] A young lady entered the editor's room with an air of great determination. "I have a poem," she began. "Well," exclaimed the editor, with a look that was intended to frighten her away.

"I have written a poem," she went on calmly, "on 'The Dear Old Garden Gate,' and"—

"Oh," interrupted the editor, with icy courtesy "you don't know how relieved I am. A poem written on the garden gate, eh? I was afraid that it was written on paper and that you wanted me to publish it. If I should ever happen to be passing your house I'll stop and read it."

How to Dress

If every woman tried to dress like the models shown in the average fashion magazine, she would look like a Futurist or a Cubist painting.

The attempts of a few are responsible for the queerly-dressed creatures which we occasionally see on prominent thoroughfares.

The intelligent woman who cares about her appearance wants to be fashionably yet tastefully and exclusively gowned.

Fortunately, there is a publication which will aid her—The Woman's Home Companion.

The fashion models in this magazine are not fantastic. They do not look like creatures which belong in a zoo or a museum.

They look like real human beings, real flesh and blood women—women who are really pleasing to the eye.

Every woman would be attractive in appearance if she made her gowns according to the designs and patterns furnished by the Companion.

The American Magazine

The American Magazine is the kind of magazine that nobody ever hides in a drawer. It is edited by responsible people, who have children of their own to bring up—edited by people who know that the best and even the most exciting reading matter in all the world is pure—edited by people of brains and character, who realize that nastiness is only a poor substitute for stupidity.

The American Magazine, with all its humor, its facts, its new ideas, its stories and its wonderful pictures, is one of the rarest and most significant products of present day American life. It is, in fact, THE American Magazine.

VALUABLE SITES TRADED.

South Flower Street Holding Exchanged for Wilshire District Corner.

An important exchange, involving both downtown business property and a valuable Wilshire district residence holding is reported by E. H. Brooks, with the Wright-Callender-Andrews Company, who acted as agent for both parties to the transaction.

The downtown site consists of 60x165 feet at Nos. 745-49 South Flower street, improved with two frame flat buildings. The property adjoins the northwest corner of Eighth and Flower streets and was owned by Otto Neher. In the trade it is declared to have gone in at a valuation of $75,000.

The other property, formerly owned by E. L. Petitfils, is situated at the southeast corner of Kingsley drive and Sixth, and consists of a lot fronting eighty-five feet on the former by 150 feet on the latter street and improved with a twelve-room house of plastered exterior finish and elegant interior appointment. Mr. Petitfil's place was turned over at a given valuation of $40,000, the difference in the considerations for the two holdings being adjusted by cash and mortgages.

IN SOUTHLAND PARK.

Strong, Dickinson & McGrath report bungalow sales in Southland Park for the Western Building and Investment Company as follows: To Ira Sackett of Albuquerque, N. M., six-room bungalow, No. 1720 West Fifty-first place, $4000, and to N. P. Strong, No. 1743 West Fifty-first place, six-room bungalow, $4000. A $2800 Country Club Park lot on Westchester place, between Ninth and Tenth streets, has been sold through the same agents to Lucian K. Small, who will build a chalet-type residence in the near future. The sales named were made through Barnes & Dimmick, managers of the house department of the company.

NEW BUSINESS BLOCK.

A business block to cost $7000 is the latest Ramona Acres development reported by the Janss Investment Company. The new building is to be erected by A. L. Dechene on Garfield avenue and will provide several spacious storerooms, the corner to be occupied by a drug store. The company reports the following sales at Ramona Acres and Wilmar Acres: C. Hutchinson, improved plot, $1150; F. Baxter, acre, $1250; E. Patterson, plot, $1350; L. A. Belton, plot, $950; Charles Ervey, lot and five-room bungalow, $2000, and C. Campbell, half-acre and four-room bungalow, $1500.

ARIZONAN BUYS FARM.

The Janss Investment Company reports having sold to Samuel Sloan, a railroad man of Ashfork, Ariz., ten acres of Corona Farms land for $3250. The property will, it is announced, be improved with a bungalow and set to fruit trees during the coming winter, Mr. Sloan planning to make his home on the place. In addition, the company reports the sale of thirty acres in the same tract to D. Clawson of Los Angeles for $6500. Mr. Clawson, it is stated, will plant the land to alfalfa and maintain a hog ranch.

LIKES THIS CITY.

W. King Collins of Nasha, N. H., who came out to see the exposition and remained in Los Angeles to look over the city, has decided to make his home in this city and has signalized this intention by purchasing a $7500 residence on Algoma street. Mr. Collins is the son of the late Gen. Charles Sumner Collins, formerly one of the best-known men in New Hampshire.

"Business Stability."

Old-time Firm Leases Store Above Third Street.

Reaction Against Southward Movement Growing.

So much has been said in recent years about "the southward trend of business" in downtown Los Angeles that unusual interest attaches to the return by one of the concerns that was moved to go south during the past decade to its original habitat, the northern business district. This firm, the Jantzen-Railsback Company, has just leased the entire ground floor and basement of the new and modern Hosfield Building immediately adjoining the City Hall on the south, and will next month remove from its present location at Nos. 720-22 South Hill street to the more northerly location, which, it is interesting to note, is half a block north of the concern's original place of business at the northwest corner of Third and Broadway. At the last-named site the predecessor of the present firm, the Vollmer-Jantzen Company, was established twenty years ago.

In its new quarters the company will have a ground-floor space of 60x150 feet, under which is a full basement having sufficient light and height to be serviceable for retail use as well as for storage. The lease was handled by A. G. Hemming, with Bryan & Bradford representing both parties to the transaction, and covers a term of years. The owners of the building, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hosfield of Monrovia, will spend about $5000 in alterations and equipment to suit the tenant.

During the score of years that have elapsed since the organization of its business, the firm which is now known as the Jantzen-Railsback Company has made three moves, each being southward. From Third and Broadway the company went to quarters on Broadway just south of Fifth. This was followed by a jump to Seventh and Hill, and a few years ago, by a move to the present location on Hill between Seventh and Eighth. In its newest store the concern will greatly expand its business in every way.

OTHER EVIDENCES.

The return of the big chinaware store to its old-time neighborhood is only one of the significant evidences of a decided reaction against the reckless southward movement which began several years ago and which, if it had been carried to the extreme various promoters and speculators would have had it go, would have resulted in the uprooting of the established business district and in general havoc to downtown realty values. In fact, there are shrewd observers who declare that the creation of a traffic outlet through Bunker Hill on First street or by means of an open cut, such as is proposed from First to Second street, would immediately result in an exodus of business houses from points far to the south northward to the older downtown area.

One of the more recent manifestations of a complete satisfaction with conditions in the older business district was the decision of Albert Cohn, pioneer Los Angeles grocer, to locate his main business house at Third and Broadway instead of at some point far to the south. Mr. Cohn's present fine headquarters store was established after every inducement had been offered him to jump to new and untried locations below Ninth. Announcement will be made within a short time of the establishment of a large dry goods house in the same vicinity. The refusal of many existing old-time concerns to heed the flattering inducements made them to leave that portion of the business district north of Fourth street also makes it appear that abnormal business movements of all kinds have come to an end. The biggest anchor of all is the new $1,000,000 home of the Broadway department store at Fourth and Broadway.

North of Fourth street has taken place most of the activity of the present year in downtown real estate. The recent sale of the $250,000 Hotel Northern at Second and Clay streets was only one of a number of deals that have taken place in the same vicinity in the past few months. These include the transfer of three pieces of Hill-street frontage in the block between Third and Fourth streets and the sale of a four-story building and the ground under it on Broadway just north of Second.

New schools at opposite corners of Los Angeles.

The South Park school (above) was planned by Walker & Vawter and will be started within the next few days. The Chatsworth school was one of the acquisitions that came with the annexation of the San Fernando Valley and is now being erected under the architectural supervision of Oliver P. Dennis.

City of Distances.

INSPECTOR HAS LIFE-SIZE JOB.

NO SMALL TASK TO VISIT THE NEW SCHOOLS.

Buildings Under Way at Points Nearly Fifty Miles Apart Give Board of Education Plenty to Do. South Park Structure is to be a Model One.

Although Los Angeles, even with the annexed district of the San Fernando Valley, must still take a second place after New York City in point of area, it is doubtless a fact that this city can lay claim to having the greatest extreme dimensions of any city in the United States. This, of course, is owing to the peculiar shape and conformation of the city boundaries, due to the annexation of outlying territories such as the valley irrigation district and the Shoe String trip to the harbor.

The fact that Los Angeles is a city of enormous distances is being brought home these days to the local Board of Education on account of the great number of new schools being erected in all parts of the city. The present-day building inspectors in the board's construction department have no easy task. In the morning it may be a new school at San Pedro that the inspector will wish to look over—in the afternoon he may want to see how one of the new San Fernando Valley schools, nearly fifty miles away from the harbor building, is coming along.

Two of the most modern and attractive of the new grade schools that are being erected to meet the educational needs of the larger city are pictured on this page of The Times. As a crow flies, their sites are nearly thirty miles apart; as one travels, the distance is considerably greater. The South Park School site is at the extreme southeast corner of the city proper, its grounds fronting on two boundary streets, Manchester avenue and South Park avenue. The Chatsworth school is at the extreme northwestern corner of the recently-annexed San Fernando Valley territory. The Chatsworth school is now being completed under the architectural supervision of Oliver P. Dennis, having been started just before the district came into the city. The building is replacing an antiquated frame structure that had served the old-time valley community for a generation. It is of hollow tile construction and contains eight classrooms, an auditorium and administrative offices.

The progressiveness of the Chatsworth people was revealed at the very start of the project when they insisted upon having a building that in construction and equipment should equal any other in the Southland. The distrist has made enormous strides in the past few years and is one of the most promising of all the regions that came into the city with the recent annexation proceedings. In addition to the Chatsworth school itself, two other schools planned by the same architect are now under way in the annexed district of the valley. One, the Marian grade school, is now up a single story, while the other, the stately new Owensmouth Union High School, is now rising above its foundations.

AT THE OTHER CORNER.

At the other corner of the city work will be begun on the South Park grammar school just as soon as the contract can be let. Plans for the structure were completed a week ago by the architects, Albert R. Walker and John T. Vawter, and bids have been secured, the F. O. Engstrum Company of this city being low. To this concern, in all probability, the contract will be formally awarded this week.

The plans of the architects call for a building of eight classrooms, an auditorium, kindergarten, sloydroom and domestic science department. At the present time, however, only the central portion of the building and one wing will be erected, leaving the second wing for future construction.

The structure will have brick walls and partitions and will be faced with selected brick. The design will be unique, a feature being the entrance stairways leading from the street level to the main story, beneath which will be a high basement story with its own separate entrances. The arrangement and equipment will be thoroughly modern.

Another of the new city schools on which work is about to start is the Amelia street grammar school for which plans have just been completed. The building will have a height of two stories above a full basement and will contain eight classrooms. G. W. Gilbreth & Co. have the contract.

The contract for the construction of an addition to the new Seventh avenue grammar school was formally awarded during the past week to J. F. Atkinson. The newer portion of the structure will contain six classrooms and an auditorium. Krempel & Erkes are the architects. Several other new schools and additions to older buildings are to be started within the next month.

WHOLESALE HARDWARE HOUSE, LONG ESTABLISHED, desirous of increasing its working capital in order to do more business, wishes to get in touch with some one who wants to invest, with or without services, between $10,000 and $15,000. Opportunity for growth and reasonable returns are practically assured. A man who would want to be active would have to show his value to the business or he would not be considered. A salesman preferred, or a young man, possibly backed by his parents, who would start in the shipping room and learn the business. The company is widely and very favorably known to the trade. Present year's business so far shows a profit despite conditions and sales show considerable gain. Investor could either have common stock issued to him on an agreed upon basis or could take all or part in cumulative 8 per cent. preferred stock, on which dividends would be guaranteed by the assets of the company. Additional capital is sought in order that a larger volume of business can be handled which can be done without any more overhead expense. In replying kindly give an idea as to your requirements. This is not a proposition that will demand a quick decision as we would want to look up the party interested and have him look into our business thoroughly from every possible angle. Expert Medical Testimony.

"Huh!" said the patient. "Of course I am sane! Last time I saw Gen. Grant he gave me a ball of red yarn, and he said, 'Bill, if you can't make a steam boiler out of that yarn no man can!'"

OLIVE GROWERS BAND TOGETHER

For Mutual Protection and for Better Returns.

Third of Big State Acreage Already Part of It.

The olive industry in California gives promise of being placed on a profitable basis for the grower if the plans of the California Ripe Olive Association meet with the success they deserve. In the past, due to a lack of co-operation among the growers, the industry has been a demoralized one with each individual grower trying to market his own product in competition with his neighbor. As a result the grower was completely at the mercy of the packer and he who could market his crop for sufficient to pay his expenses was regarded as lucky, to say nothing of interest on capital invested. Therefore when the season of 1915 came around the leading growers were faced with not only a carry-over of 50 per cent. of the 1914 crop, but also a condition in the East where ripe olives were being offered at less than cost to the packers. The outgrowth of this chaotic state of affairs has been the organization of the larger growers into an association whose aims are to not only include every grower in the State, but also to take whatever steps are necessary to place the industry on a firm business foundation.

There are now 28,000 acres devoted to the growth of olives in California. A little over half of this acreage consists of full-bearing trees and when climatic and soil conditions are taken into consideration there is no reason why this State should not become one of the greatest olive districts in the entire world. Almost every agricultural industry in California has proven a failure until the growers have banded themselves together into an association to pick, pack, sell and ship their product themselves. What the raisin growers, walnut growers, almond growers and citrus fruit growers have accomplished the olive growers can also do.

The California Ripe Olive Association has for its purpose the encouraging of the growth of a proper size and variety of olive and the standardizing of the pack. The broadening and stimulating of the undeveloped market of the East will also be one of their chief considerations and the same offers a field of unlimited possibilities. As for the manufacture of olive oil, which now commands such a diversity of uses, the contemplation of the idea embraces such enormous opportunities as to prevent computation.

Over one-third of the total growers of the State have already joined the association and the remainder are rapidly entering the fold. The State has been divided into three main districts and the executive officers are: Southern California, John J. Avis, president, and A. B. Miller, vice-president; Central California, L. F. Breuner, vice-president, and F. B. McKevitt treasurer; Northern California, W. P. Hammon, vice-president, and W. N. Woodson, vice-president.

KINGMAN (Ariz.) Aug. 20.—An interesting proposition regarding establishing a zinc smelter at or near Kingman has been made to the Chamber of Commerce of that city by Louis R. Porter. The chamber is asked to advance $5000 toward the cost of such a plant. No action is to be taken until John Boyle, who controls several important zinc mines, returns from a visit to Los Angeles.

At present most of the zinc ore produced in this region is shipped to Bartlesville, Okla., or Needles, Cal. The biggest shipper is the Golconda, in Union Basin. The Golconda is now sending out each day to Bartlesville 100 tons of ore that averages 40 per cent. zinc. The average return on 100 tons is $9600. At this rate the monthly receipts from ore sales reach $228,000, which exceeds the combined earnings of the Tom Reed and Gold Road.

A report is in circulation that a great body of 50 per cent. ore was recently opened in the Golconda.

Bismuth is the most recent discovery in Mohave county. M. H. Murphy and W. E. Dunlap have found in the Aquarius mountains a two-foot vein of iron-stained micaceous material that runs high in the metal, and the clayey matter surrounding the vein shows large quantities of bismuth placer.

Float rock carrying bismuth has often been found in that vicinity, but all attempts to locate the vein have failed. Dunlap and Murphy have found in the same region float running high in gadolinite and they intend to make a thorough search for the vein.

John F. Davis and associates, of San Francisco, are arranging to transfer their bond on the Midnight mine to parties who will start development on a big scale and increase the capacity of the mill to 100 tons a day.

A great deal of ore carrying gold, copper, silver and zinc has been opened as far down as the 200-foot level. Owing to water, no recent work has been done below that point. The problem of treating the ore and saving practically all the zinc has been solved.

The west drift from the 530-foot level of the Gold Ore mine, at Gold Road, has entered a great body of ore that horns high values in gold. The drift is five feet wide and all in ore; how much wider the ore body is cannot be determined until crosscuts are run. A drift to the east has not penetrated the ore-bearing ground. It is expected that the Gold Ore will be shipping in a few weeks.

Electricity to Sterilize Milk.

[Pittsburgh Gazette-Times:] Milk sterilized by electricity keeps sweet for eight days, according to experiments conducted in the public stations of Liverpool. All harmful bacteria are killed by the injection of a rapidly alternating current at about 4000 volts. The milk is purified, but its composition is not changed at all. Liverpool finds its general health records improving with rapid strides since the new system went into force.

Indignant Denial.

"Ah, yes, Gothic, is it not?" She murmured, with ecstatic admiration.

GIRLS PAWNS IN NEW BUNCO GAME

DETECTIVES DISCLOSE NOVEL WAY OF GETTING MONEY.

Declare Man Now Waiting Trial for Vagrancy has Victimized Merchants by Story of Impending Hurry-up Wedding and a Quick Borrow.

A novel and apparently original system of bunco was disclosed yesterday by Detectives Raymond and Mailheau, who declare that in the arrest of Harold D. Warnock, alias J. E. Emery, they have captured a confidence man who has used the daughters of several of this city's most prominent men as pawns in his alleged operations to obtain money under false pretenses.

Warnock, or Emery, was arrested the 18th inst., on suspicion, and brought before Police Judge Richardson charged with vagrancy. He pleaded not guilty and demanded a trial by jury. The hearing was set for September 30, and he was remanded to jail in default of $500 bail.

The detectives, satisfied they had landed a much-wanted confidence man, investigated the stories told by Warnock. They declared yesterday the prisoner distorted facts when brought before the police magistrate. Furthermore, Detective Raymond stated Warnock is wanted in this city and Seattle on old charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

According to the investigation of the detectives, Warnock worked alone in his peculations. He would secure acquaintance with refined girls through several social channels where he is still thought to be a well-to-do young business man.

Having made such an acquaintance, it is declared, he would next identify himself at some drug store or small business house, by using the proprietor's telephone frequently. When his identity in these places of business became established, he would appear there with one of the young women. Excusing himself from his companion, he would take the proprietor aside, and using the girl as the subject of the sad story, would relate how he had to marry the young woman at once, the detectives declare.

To carry out the intended ceremony, it was necessary that he have some money. The girl companion, as an innocent object of the conversation, would serve as the magnet to the proprietor's pocketbook, and although the young woman did not know what Warnock was talking about, it is said the money would usually be forthcoming to help her out.

The detectives stated yesterday that Warnock has collected large sums in this manner. He was arrested near a drug store at Court and Main streets where, it was said, he had tried his game on the proprietor. The young woman who was with him at the time is the daughter of a prominent real estate man of this city. As she is innocent of all knowledge of the alleged bunco game, the police did not detain her.

When Warnock again appears in court, Detectives Raymond and Mailheau declare he will face a more serious charge than vagrancy. They stated yesterday the prisoner had offered to plead guilty to the charge first lodged against him if he is permitted to leave town.

BUYS IMPROVED RANCH.

The Maple Leaf Ranch, five miles west of San Jacinto, was purchased last week by Edward O'Toole of Los Angeles, for a reported consideration of $32,000. There are 160 acres of tillable land on the place, about forty acres of this being in alfalfa. A pumping plant, good farm buildings and other improvements go with the land, besides work stock and 200 head of hogs. The new owner will take possession immediately. C. E. Carpenter, the former owner, removes to Santa Paula.

THE GOOD OLD TIMES.

[Leslie's:] At one time in Rome, political offices were auctioned off in public to the highest bidder. In ancient Greece, theft was not considered so much of a disgrace as being caught at it.

Our prisons are not ideal, but we have made progress in dealing with crime. There were formerly fourteen offenses in Delaware punishable by hanging. In the early history of Connecticut, lying, "that foulle and gross sin," was punishable with five stripes at the whipping post and confinement in stocks; no man was allowed to use tobacco within ten miles of others; people were imprisoned in awful dungeons for debt. In Rome men were sold into slavery to pay debts; creditors could tear the body of the debtor to pieces, each receiving a piece according to the size of his credit.

The demagogue rails against present conditions; he would have us believe the bottom has dropped out of humanity; he juggles with truth to stir up discontent. Today is the best day creation has ever seen. For 2000 years the Sermon on the Mount, like leaven, has been permeating the hearts of men. At last only that which is good can endure. The fires of time burn out the dross.

There is "one far off divine event, towards which all creation moves." It is perfection—but it is not here.

Rheumatism in the Movies.

[Woman's Home Companion:] An old darkey appeared in the doctor's office one morning, plainly very low in his mind.

The doctor, recognizing his old patient, greeted him in his most inspiriting manner.

dustries are slack, its business outside of that affected directly by the presence of the exposition crowds, dull. Building is at a low enough ebb in Los Angeles, but at that this city is constructing many more buildings than San Francisco. Los Angeles has its unemployment situation, but its streets do not teem with the unemployed as do San Francisco's. With all the demand for hotel, flat and apartment-house accommodations occasioned by the hosts of exposition visitors, it is doubtful whether Los Angeles has at this moment as much vacant rental space as is to be found in the northern city.

This is not cited with the view to putting San Francisco in a bad light, nor is it mentioned because of any satisfaction that Los Angeles has found a companion in misery, so to speak. San Francisco is the pluckiest city in the world, and what it has accomplished in making its world-beating exposition a complete success at so unfavorable a time as the present is only paralleled by what the same city has achieved in rebuilding itself from the ground up since its earthquake and fire. Comparison with San Francisco at this particular time, however, is well calculated to show just how conditions here are alongside those in other places and it is for that reason that the reference is made. Los Angeles has no reason whatever to consider itself imposed upon by fate merely because things here are not as they were for so many years. There is not a city in the United States but would gladly trade the conditions of the present year for those of other periods. Los Angeles is in the same boat with all of them and is less affected by the tossing waves of business and financial distress than almost any of the others.

Los Angeles and Southern California are blessed beyond any other part of the country in their absolute immunity from the storms and other destructive upheavals of nature that visit so many parts of the United States. The people of this section read with horror of the hurricanes, the tornadoes, the drowning rains and the floods of the East, Middle West and South, but unless they have experienced some such thing before coming here have no real understanding of what they mean. Into the grand sum total of our possible misfortunes calamities such as these have not entered and cannot enter. The commoner distress of prostrating heat and bitter cold such as other sections know are also not to be listed among our woes. The smallest amount of study will reveal just how much the people of this part of the country have to be thankful for even in times that need mending as badly as do those of the present.

The Outlook.

When conditions do pick up Los Angeles will be in line for more than its share of prosperity by comparison with other cities and this is a fact that it would be well not to lose sight of. In addition to the restoration to that phenomenal normal state of affairs to which we are accustomed of all the business and industry that is now so slack, Los Angeles will in a sense have a new asset and source of prosperity and progress as soon as the war is over. As a great port of entry, 500 miles nearer the Panama Canal than San Francisco, Los Angeles, with its new harbor facilities and its splendid transcontinental railway connections, is going to make a strong bid with the Northern California city for the world's shipping, once the fleets of the belligerent nations are released for peaceful commercial pursuits. Los Angeles, it is true, has had its ocean commerce in the past, but its harbor, prior to the improvements completed within the past year or more, was hardly to be reckoned as a competitor against the great natural ports of the Pacific Coast.

It has seemed to most persons the cruelest of fate's ironies that the war should have tied up most of the commerce of the world almost at the very moment of the triumphant completion of the first large serviceable unit of our expensive harbor and yet in the long run it may turn out that Los Angeles has gained by the apparent misfortune. After peace has been declared the great shipping interests of the world will have to start out all over again to build up their markets and their carrying business. In picking out their Pacific Coast terminal points they will almost certainly be guided less by the reputation of the ports as by practical advantages to be determined by investigation. A year ago it might have been different, San Francisco retaining its own lion's share of the commerce of the Pacific through the very fact of possessing it to start with.

STRAWS SHOWING HOW WIND BLOWS.

SIGNS OF PROGRESS IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA'S BROAD DOMAIN.

The California Dairy Properties is the name taken by an organization just formed for the development of a large tract of land in the heart of the dairy district of Tulare county. The property consists of some 3893 acres, one-third of which is today under cultivation, improved with buildings and stocked with dairy cows and horses. The company in charge of the project proposes to make of the entire holding a model dairy and live stock farm. For the purpose of acquiring, developing and operating the property the concern expects to create a trust estate with the Title Insurance and Trust Company as trustee and to market securities under a unique plan of its own.

The Bastanchury Ranch Company of Fullerton is placing on the market at the present time a tract of 206 acres lying along the northern line of Fullerton on both sides of the State highway. The land is on a mesa and overlooking La Habra Valley. It is supplied with water from a 250,000-gallon steel tank. The holding has been subdivided into fourteen parcels suitable for country estates. The company expects to beautify the holding by creating a small park with a lake in one of the canyons on the land.

Residents of the Somerset district report increasing development activity in that region since the recent completion of a highway through the Somerset tract. A cannery, garage and school are among the new improvements of the district, and it is announced that a bank will be built in the near future.

The little city of Elsinore on Lake Elsinore, Southern California's only important inland lake, is celebrating the completion of a new boating and bathing resort at that place. The resort is in charge of D. J. Daze, who controls the boating privileges of the Los Angeles parks. Mr. Daze recently purchased six lots on the shore of Lake Elsinore from H. T. Coffin, N. D. Pyle and Charles S. Mann and has just completed an attractive and up-to-date boathouse and bath-house. In the same vicinity the Laguna Vista Club, a boating and social club composed of Riverside, Los Angeles, San Bernardino and Elsinore residents, has just completed a $5000 clubhouse.

Among recent important improvements at Bellflower is a canning plant that is utilizing practically all of the fruit and vegetables grown in that vicinity. Road improvements and a new school are also helping the community to advance.

A petition to be allowed to incorporate was filed by the voters of Seal Beach with the Orange county authorities last week. The action will probably be followed by an election next month.

Conditions Resulting from Sinking of Boats and Demoralization of Exchange Have Reduced to Nearly Vanishing Point Chance of Doing Outside Business for a Time.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Selling pressure was heavy on wheat today owing in the main to difficulties that were hampering export trade. The close was nervous, 1⅜ to 2⅜@2½ net lower with September at 1.02⅝ and December at 1.00¼@1.00⅜. Corn finished ¼@⅜ to ⅞@1 down, oats off ⅜ to ⅝ and provisions varying from 10 decline to a rise of 5. Conditions resulting from the sinking of boats and the demoralization of exchange appeared to have reduced to nearly the vanishing point all immediate chance of any export business in wheat. Rains in Illinois and the Ohio Valley gave the wheat market a momentary show of strength at the outset, but otherwise developments proved almost unanimously adverse to the bulls. Increased rural offerings had a depressing effect on corn. Unseasonable weather appeared to have lost influence as a prop for the market. Oats could not withstand the declines in corn and wheat. Threshing delays were altogether lost sight of during the last half of the session. Packers' buying put a little firmness into lard and ribs. Pork, however, lacked support and showed a noticeable tendency to sag.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS LOOM LARGE ON HORIZON.

Concern Regarding this Country's Relations with Germany is Heightened When it Becomes Known Big Liner was not Under Naval Protection when it was Attacked.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—International affairs loomed large on the financial horizon today. Stocks were liquidated with feverish haste in consequence of the developments in the Arabic episode. Concern regarding this country's relations with Germany was heightened when it became known that the British government had made official denial that the Arabic was under naval protection when attacked. Advices from Washington to the effect that our Ambassador at Berlin probably would be directed to make representations to the German Foreign Office afforded further cause for apprehension. Open prices, while generally lower, mainly affected the war shares but the selling movement soon comprised such leaders as United States Steel, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific and Reading. Transactions in Steel were even larger than in the early days of the war and at the height of the decline a [illegible] of ¾ was recorded between [illegible]. Steel fell to 70¼, a loss of 3½. Union Pacific at 127⅛ broke 3 and Canadian, Southern Pacific and Reading yielded virtually 2 points each at [illegible], 86⅝ and 143¼ respectively. Bethlehem Steel, although most inactive of the prominent war stocks, suffered a loss of 11 points at 274, with [illegible] decline in the preferred at [illegible]. General Motors fell 9½ to 200, [illegible] Air Brake 6½ at 126½ and [illegible] Steel Car 5¼ at 56. Other issues of the same class, as well as [illegible] and minor equipments fell [illegible] to 5 points. Minimum prices [illegible] in the final dealings, the recoveries from that level being [illegible] fractional. Total sales approximated [illegible] shares, of which Steel [illegible] almost 25 per cent. Metal [illegible] were extensively traded in, Anaconda [illegible] 4¼ to 67 and Tennessee [illegible] a point to 48. LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

Local Railway Bonds in Demand. Home Telephone Preferred Shows Weakness—Union Oil Also Off.

The last session of the week on the local stock exchange was dull and uninteresting. Union Oil and Home Telephone preferred were weaker and demand for the latter security was small. A downward movement in Los Angeles Investment is expected and the stock was an indifferent trader Saturday. Big Jim Gold Mining stock was firm and the public is still purchasing the stock in considerable quantity. In the past week Los Angeles Railway Corporation 5s have advanced rapidly and a firm bid of 83½ yesterday was some eight points lower than asking price. Both issues of Home Telephone bonds are also up and from all indications the seasoned securities should become more active in the near future.

COMMERCIAL.

An agricultural industry which at present is but in its infancy is the growing of Burbank spineless cactus. The value of the leaves or slabs of the plant as a cattle food has been known for a long time, but not until recently has a use been found for the pears. At the model farm of Patrick Spillane in the San Fernando Valley fifteen varieties of pears are grown, running in shade from a deep crimson to a pale yellow, and experiments are now being made to include all the colors of the rainbow in this product. These pears are called Tuna fruit by the Mexicans, and one particularly handsome specimen is the Melrose, which is of a deep maroon color bordering on the royal purple.

The cactus plants are placed in the ground fourteen feet apart as a precaution because when the plant has attained its full growth it would be impossible to cull the pears. It takes two years for the slabs to bear fruit and from twenty-five to fifty pears can be obtained from each slab. One crop of pears is obtained each year, the harvest commencing about August 15 and lasting well into December. One acre will produce from 150 to 200 tons of stock feed and by actual experiment it has been found that the slabs or leaves are the most fattening food that can be fed hogs. These slabs contain considerable water in their composition and when fed to cattle regularly enables the stock to do without water altogether.

While up to this time all attention was given to the forage plants nothing was thought of utilizing the fruit. After the third year from ten to sixty tons of pears can be secured from each acre. The raw pear has an exceptionally sweet taste and can be made into delicious jellies and jams. Used in the preparation of salads and desserts, on account of the wide range of colors, the hostess can match table and room decorations to perfection. Syrups can be prepared out of the juice of the cactus pear and even an appetizing honey has been made by straining the juice and using it in connection with other substances. The coloring matter from cactus fruit being purely vegetable, can be used in all forms of confectionery coloring and every form of food preparation such as drinks and ices of all kinds, where analine dyes cannot enter because of their poisonous nature.

Spineless cactus pears can now be purchased for the first time in commercial quantities and the headquarters for this variety of fruit in Los Angeles is at the wholesale produce house of Rivers Brothers. Price quoted for the fruit is $1.50 a lug box and it is expected that the supply which is on hand will be quickly exhausted.

There was no call on the local produce exchange yesterday and as a result quotations remained the same as on Friday. Receipts were heavy and were distributed as follows: 182 cases of eggs, 37,700 pounds of butter, 950 drums of cheese, 1890 sacks of potatoes, 20 sacks of onions, 141 sacks of sweet potatoes, 2758 boxes of apples, 2400 lugs of grapes, 1397 lugs of pears, 6884 boxes of peaches and 400 cases of eastern eggs.

NEWPORT (R. I.) Aug. 21.—Tennis history repeated itself today in the victory of R. Norris Williams II of Philadelphia over Maurice E. GIL ANDERSON IN STUTZ LEADS COOPER TO THE TAPE AT ELGIN.

ELGIN, Aug. 21.—With a crowd estimated at 40,000 wildly cheering in an outburst of pent-up enthusiasm, Gil Anderson, driving a white Stutz Special, the same pilot who won the Elgin National Road Race in 1913, flashed like a streak of lightning across the tape at the Elgin course this afternoon, handily winning the sixth annual event and adding new laurels to his crown of racing glory.

His elapsed time for the 301 miles was 3:54:25, or an average of 77.256 miles an hour for the distance. The old record was 4:01:19, made yesterday by Earl Cooper.

Earl Cooper, his team mate, was a bare three miles behind the winner, his time being 3:57:29, an average of 76.25 miles per hour. Third in line at the finish was Eddie O'Donnell, at the helm of a Duesenberg, his time being 3:59:05, an average of 75.76 miles an hour.

Barney Oldfield, with a wreck of a Pittsburgh torch grimly grasped in his teeth, loped into the final a good fifth, but just outside the money.

For his triumph of today Anderson comes into possession of the Elgin national trophy for a year and $2000 in cash. Cooper received $650 and O'Donnell $350.

In the thirty-sixth lap De Palma "stepped on it" with both feet and fairly burned holes in the air and track, negotiating the eight miles in 6:15:05, outdoing his previous performance of 6:17 in the thirty-fifth lap and breaking his record of 6:20 for a single lap made in 1914.

At 100 miles it was a three-cornered fight between Anderson, Cooper and O'Donnell with the other two contenders trailing behind, fighting hard, but not dangerous to the trio of speed demons heading the procession.

From seventy-five miles on it was merely a parade, Anderson in his Stutz, Cooper in a second Stutz, and O'Donnell in his Duesenberg, one, two, three, and the remainder playing "follow the leaders," frequently changing position slightly, but never in the race.

Lap after lap was reeled off in this fashion and the race offered little of interest until the last few laps, when the crowd woke up and again took notice, madly cheering as Anderson came thundering into the stretch on the thirty-sixth and last lap, closely followed by Cooper, O'Donnell and De Palma.

Before the start the withdrawals of Alley and Patrick were announced, leaving twelve starters. The contestants were sent away at 11 o'clock, thirty seconds apart, in the following order:

By making the fastest lap of the meet, 6m. 24s., Anderson, at 100 miles, attained a lead of two seconds over Cooper. At this stage the leaders ranked: Anderson, 1:18:25; Cooper, 1:18:27; De Palma, 1:19:58; O'Donnell, 1:20:38; Oldfield, 1:23:37; Chandler, 1:28:36; Henning, 1:29:43; Henderson, 1:33:26.

On the eleventh lap, by prearrangement, Brown relieved Jones as a driver. It was stated that Jones would resume later and drive the last 100 miles of the race.

Robillard was disqualified on the tenth lap because of the dangerous condition of one of his wheels.

Standing at 150 miles—Anderson, 1:56:49; Cooper, 1:57:32; O'Donnell, 2:00:08; De Palma, 2:00:23.

None of the leaders had stopped at the pits up to this time, but at 176 miles Anderson used thirty-three seconds taking on gasoline and oil.

The leaders did not change positions in the next fifty-one miles.

At 201 miles the leaders were—Anderson, 2:35:56; Cooper, 2:37:38; O'Donnell, 2:39:58; De Palma, 2:40:56.

Standing of the leaders at 251 miles—Anderson, 3:14:51; Cooper, 3:17:49; O'Donnell, 3:18:51; De Palma, 3:21:11.

The leaders finished as follows—Anderson, 3:54:25; Cooper, 3:57:29; O'Donnell, 3:59:01; De Palma, 3:59:16.

BERRY BARS "MUD" BALL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—Henry Berry, principal owner of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, said today he would try to "bar the mud ball right off the reel" from the Coast League.

He said the fact the Angels won from the Seals yesterday with the aid of the mud ball in the hands of Ryan had no bearing on the case.

"Cavet tried the freak stuff, but failed to get away with it," Mr. Berry said. "I think we can win the pennant without adopting any of the fancy frills and I will start right out on the warpath."

TIGERS BEAT OAKLAND ALL THE AFTERNOON.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

THE discriminating public was handed two beautiful hunks of the great national pastime for no more charge than is ordinarily made for a single hunk.

As Oakland was bumped at both ends of the bargain attraction, the fans went home well satisfied with their investment. The Oaklets are no longer regarded here as enemies, but objects of sympathy. There is talk of getting up a benefit for them.

The Tigers were feeling strong all the afternoon. They tore off the first game, 6 to 2. They then responded to an encore, and won the afterpiece, 5 to 1.

Both sides seemed to be in a hurry to get through, and the two games consumed less than three hours of the public's valuable time. One guy, who had been attending Federal League games, kicked on this, and declared that he had not received his full two-bits worth. He claimed to have attended one double-header that lasted four hours and a half for ten cents.

Take Your Reo To the Mountains

Reo Cars are built for this work.

Four universal joints—instead of two.

Hinged torsion rods—instead of rigid.

Ground bearing spring seats on rear axle—instead of rigid.

Flexibility between motor and transmission.

These are a few of the superior points on Reo cars, NOT found on other medium priced cars.

These features reduce strains, therefore reduce wear and therefore reduce repair bills.

You can go anywhere in your Reo, confident that no road, however rough, can damage your car.

PRESIDENT FRED L. BAKER NOW ON TRIP DE LUXE OF THIS STATE.

Over a route which is destined to become one of the tours de luxe of the State of California, President Fred L. Baker of the Automobile Club of Southern California is today touring, having left Los Angeles for a period of approximately three weeks.

It is a significant fact that the president of the Auto Club will follow the route which has been opened largely through the efforts of that organization.

This route leads through the Owens Valley, over which hundreds of automobile parties are coming into Southern California by the simple expedient of following the signs recently erected by the club over the Lincoln highway from Ely, Nev., to Los Angeles. Mr. Baker's party will follow this road to the eastern inception of the newly-opened Tioga route.

Over the Tioga road they will pass into the Yosemite Valley, giving opportunity for a sightseeing tour which will include all of the wonder spots. Leaving Yosemite, the tour de luxe will continue to Stockton and thence to Sacramento.

From Sacramento the route leads directly to San Francisco and the exposition. Returning to Los Angeles over the Coast route, motorists who choose may stop at Santa Cruz, reaching that place by way of Salinas and Watsonville. After a stop at Santa Cruz it is only a short run to Monterey and Carmel, one of the show places of the Pacific Coast.

Continuing down the coast road (El Camino Real,) the long chain of missions will be passed. These, having been built by the early Franciscans, are rapidly falling to ruin, and one is completely gone, but for the most part they awaken memories of early California history.

This same tour will be mapped for visiting motorists at the Auto Club headquarters or at any of the branch offices.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS WITH SELF-STARTER MAKE LIFE EASY FOR THE DRIVER.

A new addition to the Reo commercial vehicle line reached Earle C. Anthony, Inc., last week in the shape of a sturdy-looking three-quarter-ton delivery wagon. Electric lighting and starting systems as part of the standard equipment were rather unusual features of the new truck. The electric starting system is said to work a distinct gasoline economy in delivery truck work, as it reduces the tendency for the driver to leave the motor idling while deliveries are being made.

The motor of the new truck is of characteristic Reo design, with a bore of four and one-eighth inches and a stroke of four and one-half inches. Oiling is a combination of splash and force feed, and a Johnson carburetor is used. Both cranking and ignition are taken care of by Remy equipment.

The wheel base of the new truck is 120 inches, and the inside length of the body measures eight feet. Equipment includes a ventilating windshield, 100-ampere-hour storage battery, ammeter, horn, etc.

THREE PARTIES MAKING TRIP.

RALPH HAMLIN AND FAMILY ON A MOTOR OUTING TOUR THROUGH STATE.

Three carloads of Franklin automobile enthusiasts have left the city to spend a month in a vacation tour of the State. Those in the party are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bayer, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lamb and Mr. Lamb's brother and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Hamlin and daughter, Miss Marjorie.

The San Francisco exposition is one objective point of the tourists, but the most time will be devoted to seeking out good fishing streams and whipping the waters. All the men are fishing enthusiasts, and they said before departing they will go any place anybody tells them there is a probability of securing a string.

Tahoe, Mono Lake and the Owens Valley streams will be given considerable attention. Reports received by Mr. Hamlin before leaving were to the effect fishing in Tahoe is not very good, but that some of the smaller streams contain trout in numbers.

BRUSKE TO DETROIT.

The withdrawal of the Maxwell Motor Sales Corporation from racing has made possible the transfer of Contest Manager Paul Hale Bruske to a factory position in which he will have charge of the newspaper work of the company, with headquarters in Detroit. Mr. Bruske handled the Maxwell racing team from January 1 to the date of its disbanding, during which period its drivers led all American cars in winnings. Prior to his Maxwell connection Mr. Bruske did similar work on the staff of the Studebaker Corporation.

COOPER PROMOTED.

L. K. Cooper of Chicago, who, during the summer, won the championship of all Maxwell salesmen and a $500 prize, has been rewarded by promotion from district salesman to be supervisor of sales in the Maxwell zone No. 4, a strip of territory in the Middle West stretching from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Engineering Masterpiece.

GREAT RIDGE ROUTE IS SOON TO BE PASSABLE.

Direct Route from Los Angeles to Bakersfield Cuts Twenty-four Miles off Shortest Former Road Between Two Cities — Great Road Building Achievement will Develop Tejon District.

BY LEON T. SHETTLER,

Manager Earle C. Anthony, Inc.

ONE of the greatest engineering achievements ever brought to a conclusion in Southern California will reach practical fulfillment during the coming week when the last shovelful of earth is moved in the grading of the new ridge route from Los Angeles to Bakersfield, built by the State Highway Commission. It will mark the solution of a problem hitherto unanswered by highway builders or railroad builders, for it is a really direct road to Bakersfield, a road that cuts twenty-four miles from the shortest previous route to the valley town.

From Bakersfield Courthouse to Los Angeles Courthouse 124 miles will be the new reading on the motorist's speedometer, against 148 by the old Tejon route, or 160 by Tehachepi.

Six hours to Bakersfield has been something for the speed-fiend to boast of in the past, while with the ridge route open, Bakersfield can be made by motor in four hours, and still leave the speed limit almost intact.

Of immense practical benefit in linking closer Los Angeles and the inland empire of the San Joaquin, the new road has scenic features as well that will make it a wonderful addition to the motorist's list of pleasure trips near Los Angeles. High on a ridge that separates the vast watersheds of Castaic and Piru creeks, the new road climbs for thirty miles through some of the most wild and rugged mountain country to be found in Southern California. From the pines of the 4200-foot summit of the Liebre divide, the road drops again to the floor of the extreme western end of the Antelope Valley, and joins the old Tejon road again just a mile south of Bailey's ranch. At this point, it is just ninety-five miles to Los Angeles via Neenach, Fairmont and Bouquet Canyon, but it is only seventy-one by the new road.

INSPECTION TRIP.

The first car not connected with the work of building the road to make the trip over the new highway was a Reo six, from Earle C. Anthony, Inc., which last week carried the writer, the automobile editor of The Times, and others on a trip of inspection over the road. The old route was followed on the going trip, which was by way of Bouquet Canyon and Neenach, but a mile south of Bailey's ranch the Reo was headed south over the new roads that climbs the low ridge which bounds the Antelope Valley on the west.

On an easy grade which never exceeds 6 per cent., the Reo quickly reached the summit of the ridge, where a wonderful view to the east over the Antelope Valley is stretched below the motorist.

From the summit the new road follows for thirty miles a single mountain ridge that extends clear to the mouth of Castaic Canyon. The highway is a truly wonderful piece of enginering, and has involved the heaviest construction work of any of the roads contemplated under the State bond issue. The standard State road width of twenty-one feet has been strictly adhered to, and in one fifteen-mile section, built by Lee Moore, no less than 635,000 cubic yards of earth were moved. The thirty-mile mountain section has cost $450,000 for the grading alone. In one place a cut 105 feet in depth has been driven through the backbone of the ridge in order to save distance.

This huge cut was found to be the only uncompleted section of the road by the Reo party. Enough earth still remained to be removed to keep the big steam shovel busy for the remainder of this week.

ROAD OPEN SOON.

The road will not be thrown open for travel, however, for about forty-five days. Owing to the great number of fills that must be allowed to thoroughly settle, it will not be possible to place the final surface of concrete for perhaps two years. To preserve the surface until the concrete can be applied, the Highway Commission plans to oil the road and as a consequence it will probably be the middle of October before travel over the Ridge Route can commence.

The completion of the Ridge Route will tend to give great impetus to the development of the country in the neighborhood of Tejon Pass. Owing to the distance from a railroad and the difficulty of transportation during the time of the winter rains, the Tejon country, in spite of its beauty and fertility, has been slow to develop. With the splendid State road directly through the pass, the use of motor trucks will bring the Tejon country's products within easy reach of Los Angeles or Bakersfield.

Some idea of the directness of the new road may be gained from the fact that it almost parallels the line of the Kern River power company's lines and the Midway gas line. Both

MOTORISTS ARE NICKED, REPORT.

San Bernardino county speed cops are reaping a rich harvest at present on the Foothill boulevard west of Rialto, according to the report of many local motorists who have been arrested recently on this stretch of road.

According to the story of the sadder and wiser ones, the speed cops on this particular section do not travel by motorcycle, but in a fast automobile. The motorist who sees a fast car approaching from behind is apt to try a little speed himself, for the miles of smooth concrete straightaway at this point are the greatest temptation in the world to fracture the speed limit. If he passes the thirty-mile mark, he is overtaken and haled back to a special court in Rialto and tried and fined in record time. From the number of $10 and $15 fines which motorists are reporting from this section, San Bernardino county is reaping considerable financial benefit from this particular portion of State highway.

MOTOR TRUCKS SAVE THE MINES.

MULE WAGONS' POOR TRANSPORTS IN NEVADA AND POWER TEAMS WIN.

The third Saurer truck has been purchased from the Mack Motor Truck Company by G. A. McLean within the year. Like its predecessors, the new truck, which has a capacity of six and one-half tons, and is equipped with a dump body, will be used for the transportation of ore between the mines near Jean, Nev., and the railroad, fifty miles away.

Previous to the advent of the motor truck at Jean, the mine holdings were not regarded as particularly valuable, as the only means for getting the ore out to the railroad and then to the smelters, was by mule wagons.

Finally, Mr. McLean, who has the contract for the hauling, was directed to the Sauer truck. He came to Los Angeles, the distributing point for Nevada, and after learning from Manager J. A. Stoner what the Saurer had been doing in Arizona's mining country, he made his first purchase. So much satisfaction was obtained that the second truck was bought about six months ago, and now the third has been added. The Saurers are looked upon at Jean as the saviors of the mines.

Proving Efficiency.

SEVERE TESTS STAGED SHOW MOTOR'S POWER.

A RECORD of climbing the steep incline of Boston's Corey hill in high gear is held by a 1916 Studebaker "Six." Just to show that it was not merely a one-time or lucky feat, the car was made to repeat the test, performing with the same ease as marked the first ascent. This was but one of a series of difficult performances shown by the car in one afternoon without its having undergone any preparatory adjustment.

The demand on the part of automobile buyers for increased power, coming with more extended use of automobiles for touring purposes, has been met by Studebaker in the new models. Not only in hill climbing, but in negotiating rough and rain-soaked roads, have the new Studebakers realized the ideals of the designer.

Other performances sharing honors with that at Boston took place on Lookout and Signal mountains near Chattanooga, Tenn., on the mountain roads out of Portland, Or., and in Edward Scampton's "sealed-hood" drive from the Detroit factories to Baltimore.

Edward Scampton, in his "sealed-hood" drive, encountered rain along the entire route. At times, he states, the car sank to the hubs in mire, and then only was the gear shifted from high to second. On a hill known as Mountain Goat Run, just out of Lisbon, O., second speed was again used, but later on for five miles up over a mountain out of Uniontown, Pa., the car climbed on high. This hill is regularly used for climbing tests, and Scampton declares the Studebaker mounted it steadily and rapidly, as he expresses it, "without a whimper or falter." During the run Scampton placed in the car four quarts of water, a gallon of gasoline for every twelve miles covered, and on reaching Baltimore three quarts of oil refilled the reservoir.

HUNTINGTON PARK, Aug. 21.—The Ford Garage and Service Station at Nadeau avenue and the Long Beach line has just added 5600 square feet of floor space for $5000 worth of accessories and parts for Ford owners, which has recently been put in stock. Beginning September 1 he will begin on his contract to place 406 of these cars in his territory, which lies south of Slauson avenue to Long Beach and east of Vermont avenue to Downey.

A STATEMENT

from THE WHITE COMPANY to MOTOR CAR BUYERS

IN VIEW of the confusing market which confronts motor car purchasers, many are looking to this company for an expression of its attitude toward the innovations in mechanical design and new price levels now being announced. We therefore take this occasion to state our beliefs and purposes, which are based on fourteen successful years of experience.

We believe the four-cylinder motor is to be the standard and ultimate type. We therefore consider it wiser to continue perfecting this type of motor, which we have already spent years in developing than to step abruptly into a field of design that is new to the entire automobile industry, and thus impose an experiment upon our customers.

With reference to price, the White policy will be as it always has been—to build cars to the White standard rather than to a standard that would make a cheap price possible. Materials and labor cost more now than ever before—consequently, lower prices must and do indicate compromised quality.

We hold it as a first principle of our duty to purchasers of White Cars to make a product that will give maximum service with the least amount of attention and of expense for operation and maintenance; a product of such quality and approved construction that it will command high value at any time the owner may wish to dispose of it; in all, to build motor cars which the owners can truly regard as investments.

White policy will always be governed by consideration for the ultimate service-value of White Cars. We will not take part in the spectacular methods, adopted solely for sales stimulation, which prevail in the motor car market at the present time.

In short, the stability of policy which has always meant security to White owners will continue. We neither consider it good business nor do we find it necessary to repudiate the design nor to depreciate, unnaturally, the value of cars which have been purchased from us, by making frequent radical changes in design and price.

AT HIGH SPEED.

Great changes are being made at the factory of the Velie Motor Vehicle Company, to facilitate increased production required by the advent of new Velie "Biltwel Six." The six-story buildings heretofore used for storage purposes will now hold the final assembly departments and shipping rooms. With this new arrangement rough material is received at the west end of the main plant and finds its way through the machine shop, first assembly and test, hence to the final assembly, where the bodies await installation, after which the completed cars are shipped without delay or further handling. All Velie factories in Moline are working over time, a refutation of the cry of business depression. The truck factory is handling two large European orders for heavy duty trucks, while the body factory and main plant are exerting every effort to supply the demand for "Biltwel Sixes."

Trans-America Cole "8".

From New York City.

TWO MEN AND WOMAN CROSS IN ROADSTER.

WITH the speedometer showing a total of 3738 miles traveled in twenty-five days, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Conley and John Conley of New York City arrived in Los Angeles last Tuesday in a Cole eight roadster. Mr. and Mrs. Conley are supervisors of education on the New York City School Board and they are making a double trans-continental motor tour.

They called upon E. R. Harris, manager of the Cole Motor Company of this city, upon their arrival in Los Angeles. Their trip was one continuous battle with mud through the Middle West, but they had no mishaps on the long drive.

In telling of their trip, Mrs. Conley said: "We were later in starting from New York City than we had anticipated, owing to the great demand for Cole cars and our inability to get immediate deliveries. Mr. Conley had no previous experience with the Cole eight and yet he was able to get it over the roads without difficulty.

"At the last minute Mr. Conley decided to invite his brother to accompany us and we three made the tour out very comfortably in the roadster.

"Our route was from New York to Philadelphia, Gettysburg to Hagerstown, Md., then to Wheeling, W. Va., to Indianapolis, where we visited the Cole factory, and then on to St. Louis.

"In the vicinity of Wheeling, W. Va., we struck our first flooded country and once in Ohio the road took us through water that covered the running board for a distance of twenty miles.

"From St. Louis through Mexico, Missouri, Glasgow, Kansas City and Topeka we found the roads in frightful condition, full of chuck holes and deep mud. This mud makes motoring extremely difficult and sometimes impossible.

"At Glasgow, Mo., we met six touring parties who were turning back and giving up their western trip, as the road conditions were too much for them, but we were headed west and were confident that our Cole eight would pull us through. The work our car had previously done in the flooded Ohio districts assured us that it could conquer almost anything.

From Topeka, Kan., we took the gold belt route to Colorado Springs, thence via Pueblo, Trinidad, Albuquerque, Las Vegas, Needles and Barstow to San Bernardino.

"We took the Sicorro route from Las Vegas to the Grand Canyon. This road is via Magdalena and Springville. After visiting the Grand Canyon and viewing the wonderful scenery, we continued on our way.

"Your roads in this State are far superior to any we have previously traveled over and from here we intend to visit the expositions and other points of interest.

"After leaving San Francisco, we will return to New York over the Lincoln highway, reaching New York about September 15. Our car is fully equipped with camping equipment, supplies and baggage, weighing 4400 pounds. It has taken us wherever we desired without the slightest difficulty.

Satisfaction.

RAISED GUARANTEE IS BASED ON PERFORMANCE.

THE SAVAGE selling plan—direct to consumer through factory branches and factory distributors who are employees of the company—greatly reduces selling costs, losses from bad debts, and so forth, and is responsible for the first attraction the tire has for the motorist. It is its quality, however, the mileage each tire yields, that fastens the Savage firmly in the car owners' mind as a high-grade product and at the same time a money-saver.

The big mileage averaged by Savages is due to the careful selection of materials, perfect balance in the proportions of the tire, and utmost thoroughness and honesty in manufacture.

Not content with actually using the finest grade of long staple Sea Island cotton, the manufacturers submit every piece to three tests for tensile strength before us, and to additional tests after the material has been frictionized (impregnated with pure Para rubber,) so as to be absolutely sure that the fabric has not been damaged by the calenders of the frictioning machine.

After frictioning a skim coat is given the fabric, so that the layers will adhere perfectly, thus eliminating the friction which might be caused by the layers rubbing on each other. The skim coat also gives greater resiliency and materially lessens blowouts. Some makers omit the skim coat, but the Savage factory takes no chances.

SERVICE ABROAD.

In spite of adverse conditions due to the present war in Europe, the Willard Storage Battery Company has negotiated with an English firm, who will afford battery service throughout both the British Isles and the continent. The new Willard representatives will be known as the British Willard Battery Company, Ltd.

EASTERNERS AT SMITH BROTHERS.

During the past week a great many Premier owners called at the local agency. As no register is kept, Smith Bros. secured the names of but a small part of the transcontinental motorists.

Among those arriving last week in Premiers were: F. F. Prentis, Boston, Mass.; A. W. Williamson, Chicago, Ill.; Elmer E. Cord and wife, Chicago, Ill.; B. W. Richert and wife, New York City; Dr. Sheffell and party of Canton, O., and Mrs. Smith and party of women from Germantown, O.

FLORIDA PARTY.

Robert Sims of Jacksonville, Fla., accompanied by four members of his family and a driver, reached Los Angeles Thursday in a Stearns Knight. They came West over the National Old Trails route and will return the same way after touring extensively in California.

STAMINA

It's the strongest impression you get on seeing a Cole Eight—and closer investigation shows why it is able to overcome the greatest road difficulties easily—quickly—comfortably.

Recently a Cole Eight, in the hands of a private owner, added another record to the enviable list of Cole performances. From Denver to Glenwood Springs, Colo., a distance of 320 miles over the heart of the Rocky Mountains, in 11 hours, 50 minutes, or an average of 27 miles per hour.

Grades as steep as 22½ per cent. and passes ranging in altitude from 7500 to 10,000 feet were negotiated easily without overheating the engine or causing any of the other inconveniences with which motorists in that section usually are forced to contend. The Cole Eight, carrying four people, made the trip 3 hours and 10 minutes faster than train time with an average gasoline consumption of more than 15 miles to the gallon.

Cole performances are not wonderful to Cole owners—for they appreciate them as the direct result of Cole Construction.

MANY EASTERN AUTOISTS ARRIVE

MORE Chandler owners have arrived in Los Angeles from eastern points in the last month than in the entire season of 1914, according to Sales Manager Don Smith of the Chandler company, distributors in Southern California for Chandler cars.

The greatly increased number of Chandler owners throughout the country has much to do with this, but the two expositions are bringing many owners here who would not otherwise have come.

Recent arrivals include Judge Koener of St. Louis, one of the best-known barristers in the Middle West. Judge Koener drove his car the entire distance. Four passengers were included in the party, and 800 pounds of luggage was carried. The National Old Trails route was followed, the party coming west by way of Kansas City, Trinidad, Santa Fe, Albuquerque, Springerville, St. Johns, Holbrook and Flagstaff, with a detour to the Grand Canyon.

Judge Koener and his party visited the San Diego exposition and then left for the north. They will stop in the Yosemite for a week at Camp Curry. From the Yesomite they will continue to San Francisco, thence to Lake Tahoe, and home by the Lincoln highway.

Dr. W. L. Kinney of St. Joseph, Mo., arrived in Los Angeles last week. He drove his car west over the Lincoln highway. There were six passengers and more than 300 pounds of luggage, and in spite of the heavy load no trouble at all was experienced, and Dr. Kinney arrived here with St. Joseph air still in the United States tires. He was highly pleased with the performance of the tires. He drove more than 2500 miles without causing appreciable wear, the cenetr line of "nobbies" being still in excellent shape.

John A. Bourne of Salt Lake City was another Chandler owner to arrive here last week. He drove to San Francisco and thence to Los Angeles. He is now in San Diego and will return to his home next week via the southern route.

CHANGES POLICY.

The great increase in Velie sales and production brought about by the advent of the new Velie "six" has caused the company to change its policy as far as distribution of cars through John Deere branches is concerned—primarily, that there may be no conflict or interference with the vast implement organizations established these many years. Hereafter the distribution of the Velie cars in Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, Oklahoma City, Denver and other cities where John Deere branches were formerly used, will be handled by automobile distributors. Each will carry a large stock of cars and parts and will be fully prepared to give the support and service to automobile dealers expected of the Velie company.

IT CAN'T BE DONE.

"To single out any court, building or attraction at the great San Francisco Exposition as the most beautiful or popular," remarked Dalton Emerson, eastern motorist and fair visitor, "would be to invite immediate argument in the northern city." The Palace of Fine Arts, according to Emerson, the Machinery Palace and every one of the imposing edifices from the Presidio to the foot of the Zone receives its share of patronage from an endless chain of visitors, but in point of enthusiastic attendance the Palace of Transportation is unexcelled. The Emerson brothers, Dalton and Norton, arrived from Trenton, N. J., in their Chalmers "40" after having spent six weeks on the road and ten days at the fair.

Boston league baseball teams have won eighteen championships.

Other oil companies in the field and merchants in the town have orders in the agents' hands for motor trucks. The six, eight and ten-animal teams are fast being superseded by the motor truck, leaving the pioneer days fast fading into the past.

B. F. Taylor, district supervisor of the Winton Motor Car Company, was in this field and town last week on an inspection tour, and also demonstrating the new-size Winton 1916 model.

W. B. Rushmer of Salt Lake City, Utah, was among the arrivals in this city by motor car last week. The Rushmer party drove to the California expositions in a Buick.

THE SCIENCE OF LUBRICATION.

FEW motorists know what lubrication really means, or can tell just what happens when the oil strikes the hot cylinder walls and how it is affected. An article by Lieut. G. S. Bryan, U.S.N., published in the Journal of the American Society of Naval Engineers, throws considerable light on the subject. He says, in part:

"The lubricating value of an oil is due to the fact that when the surfaces of the cylinder and piston are separated by a film of oil the friction of these two metal surfaces is eliminated and the friction that remains is only that occasioned by the sliding action of the molecules of oil past each other. In other words, it is the same as if two layers of oil are sliding past each other, and the friction that occurs takes place inside the oil film and not on the surface between the film and the metal. In other words, we have a dual film—oil working against oil.

"Under the conditions of high, rubbing speed and small piston-ring pressure that are generally found in motor cylinders, light oils, such as are used in turbines, would probably give the most efficient results if it were not for the high temperatures encountered in the cylinders.

"Before discussing the effect of these high temperatures it will be well to determine just what they are. Recent experiments abroad have shown that the maximum temperature attained in an internal-combustion engine is about 2700 deg. Fahr. This is the maximum and is obtained only at the top of the explosion stroke.

"A recording thermometer used in the above investigation showed that the maximum temperature was about 2700 deg. Fahr., the minimum about 250 deg. Fahr., and the average during a complete cycle about 950 deg. Fahr. These temperatures are those of gases in the cylinders and are not those of the cylinder walls. There is a greater difference between the temperatures of these two. As long as the water is not boiling we know that the temperature of the wall is little, if any, higher than 267 deg. Fahr.

"It naturally follows that the inner and outer surfaces of the oil film will be exposed to quite different conditions. The inner surface is exposed to the high temperature of combustion and without doubt is very greatly damaged thereby. The outer surface is exposed only to the comparatively low temperature of the cylinder walls, and with a film of any appreciable thickness would be protected from the heat due to low conductivity of this film.

"We can consider the film as consisting of two layers, the function of one of these being to furnish the lubrication and of the other being to withstand the destructive action of heat and to protect this lubricating layer. It is well known that an exceedingly thin layer will furnish lubrication, and it is probable that the greater part of the thickness of the film is used up in giving the requisite protective action from the heat. At any rate, the part that we must look to for lubrication is that part having the lowest temperature, which is the very thin layer next to the cylinder walls.

"Lubricating oil does not burn very easily or very fast, however, and time given for it to burn in a motor cylinder is very short. Under the intense heat, however, the inner surface of the oil film will be vigorously affected.

"Some oils form a thick, viscous, gummy deposit, which retains the carbon formed on its surface and prevents it from being blown out through the exhaust. This gummy deposit gradually gets thicker and harder, eventually forming the hard carbon deposit so well known in cylinders.

"Oils made from asphalt-base crudes have shown themselves to be much better adapted to motor cylinders, as far as their carbon-forming proclivities are concerned, than are the paraffine-base Pennsylvania oils. The carbon formed from the latter is, as a rule, extremely hard and clings to the metal surface, while that from the former is soft and can easily be wiped off any surface that it is deposited on. This would be expected from a consideration of the nature of the hydrocarbons composing the oil, and it has also been demonstrated in practice.

"The explanation lies in the fact that the paraffine-base oils are generally composed of the paraffine series of hydrocarbons, while the asphalt-base oils are composed mainly of the ethylene and napthene series. One of the characteristics of the latter two series as compared with the paraffine series is their tendency to distill without decomposition. Consequently, no gum will be formed on the cylinder walls, and the carbon liberated will be mostly discharged with the exhaust gases."

AVIATRICE NOW FRENCH DEALER.

Helene Dutrieu, famous French aviatrice, has been appointed Chalmers distributor for all of France.

Mlle. Dutrieu, Chavalie de la Legion de l'Honneur, came to this country to secure Chalmers representation. Prior to her sailing for New York she was stationed at the government hangar at Paris, doing aeroplane scout duty. During the battle of the Marne she drove a Red Cross ambulance between the battle front and Paris. Later she was in charge of the annex of the Val de Grace, a military hospital in Paris.

Mlle. Dutrieu visited the Chalmers factory with G. J. Klyuskens, her interpreter and financial agent. In her interview with Sales Manager Paul Smith the little Frenchwoman expressed herself anxious to return to Paris as soon as possible, taking with her a fleet of Chalmers cars.

"They need me over there, you know," she said naively. "Women in France do everything. The men are all at the front."

When asked if she had witnessed much of the actual warfare, Mlle. Dutrieu said modestly, "Well, you see, I drove a motor ambulance for the Red Cross during the terrible fighting along the Marne. But after five months of that work I had to give it up; I was not strong enough to stand the strain night and day. During the battle of the Marne I watched the fighting ten to twenty kilometers away. Back and forth between Paris I drove, always carrying a full load of wounded soldiers."

ALTHOUGH there would appear to be no evil omen in the figures, 1915, it would be hard to convince a lot of first basemen that there is not a jinx lurking therein.

This has been a decidely off year for the first sackers, and more than one strong man has been heard muttering to himself, "nineteen hundred and thirteen was nothing like this."

Where are all our gorgeous first basemen of 1914? Either gone, or going. That is, with one exception, meaning J. Clout Ness. Where others have stumbled and slumped, J. Clout has risen up in his might and knocked the stuffing out of the pill.

NOT REPEATERS.

But few of them proved to be repeaters. Early in the spring, such as [illegible] stayed, began to curl up and fade like morning-glories in a hot wind.

Both Derrick and Tennant played wonderful ball last season. The Portland man's work was so sensational that the majors put in a bid for his services, but McCredie refused to see them. Tennant was a tower of strength to Sacramento, both in hitting and fielding.

Tommy started briskly this year, and then began to slide. The old [illegible] finally was benched in favor of Brief. First, Tennant was given his ten days notice of release, but this was recalled, at least temporarily. Less than three months ago there were rumors to the effect that Tennant's job was not secure. Fans were loath to believe this, but as point after point dropped from his batting percentage, it became evident that there was some basis for the rumor. Last season he hit .276, and was consistent all the way. When for the first time in his career as a Coast Leaguer he was demoted to the bench, Tennant had slumped to .249 in his stick work.

A SHADOW.

The Derrick of today seems little more than a shadow of the Derrick of a year ago. He is not displaying the old dash and aggressiveness in the field, while he has failed more than [illegible] points in his batting—.245 as against .298 in 1914. His trouble appears to be mental rather than physical. Whether it is due to disappointment through his failure not to get a chance in the majors, dissatisfaction with his present surroundings or something else, nobody seems to know. McCredie himself is sorely puzzled over Derrick's reversal, and his apparent lack of interest in his work.

Bill Abstein, who topped all the other first basemen last season with a mark of .308, collapsed like a toy balloon this year. Bill finally quit with an average of .192, and it can be truthfully stated that he was not hitting his own weight.

Cartwright of the Seals, regarded as the classiest man in the league at the initial angle last season, didn't even start this year. Howard retired from baseball to become a gentleman farmer and dig post holes on his Paso Robles ranch, while the lure of the [illegible] proved too strong for Babe Borton. Speed McDonnell, who performed emergency stunts at first base for the Tigers last year, busted his wing with the Angels this spring and finally drew his release.

SPLENDID.

But splendid athletes have been secured to take the places of those who have slumped or departed, with the result that the general run of first basemen seems to average as high, if not higher than, in 1914. This happy condition, however, was not realized until the jinx had worn itself out.

Gleichmann, who succeeded Borton at first for Vernon, sprung a charley horse the first week of the season on the soggy Salt Lake grounds. That kept him on the bench for several weeks, and finally when he got back in the game he was far from right. Only recently has he regained the batting form which last year made him the talk of the International League.

The collapse of Abstein was followed by a period of travail for the Angels. Koerner was bought, but hardly started when he cracked his elbow. Dillon came out and played a mighty fine game for an old man, but he couldn't stand the strain. Then the Angels reached out and grabbed Beef [illegible] just like a child plucking a [illegible] from a Christmas tree. Grand [illegible] old Beef.

[illegible] performer that Tennant was, [illegible] the league of his effectiveness, [illegible] Brief should prove to be a worthy successor. Brief is a fine [illegible] and by nature a heavier hitter than his auburn-haired predecessor.

Despite all the failures and heartaches, and the obstacles thrown athwart our path by the jinx, the addition of such eminent athletes as Heilmann, Gleichmann, Koerner and Brief, together with the improvement in J. Clout's batting, gives the league an assortment of first basemen superior, if anything, to the last season's gay galaxy.

LOOK 'EM OVER.

In fact, it is one of the most dazzling arrays in the history of the league. Every club is above the average in strength at that position, with the possible exception of Portland, and few believe that Derrick has gone back permanently.

Gleichmann, Heilmann, Koerner, Ness, Gardner, Brief and Derrick—no, the league has never boasted a force quite as formidable as this.

Observe the figures: Brief, .400; Ness, .367; Heilman, .365; Gardner, .334; Koerner, .300; Gleichmann, .254, and Derrick, .245. Gleichmann and Derrick when normal hit around .300, and both are due for a strong finish, while Koerner would be far above the .300 mark except for a bad start with Oakland, when he was handicapped by not being in the game regularly.

AUTOISTS MUST USE CAUTION.

AUTOMOBILE drivers must stop their cars, look and listen, before crossing railroad tracks at grade if they are to receive damages from railroad companies in case of accident. This has been definitely decided in the most important case of this kind ever handled before the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court of the State of California has for the second time handed down a decision against O. G. Griffin for damages against the Salt Lake Railroad for the death of his two minor children and injury to himself and wife in an accident on the Salt Lake Railroad near Colton. The Supreme Court for the second time reverses the award of $12,500 damages given by the jury.

This decision, which was written by Justice Melvin, and concurred in by Justices Hinshaw, Lorigan and Shaw, says, in part:

"A person approaching a railroad track, which is itself a warning of danger, must take advantage of every opportunity to look and listen. It is the duty of the driver on a highway approaching a railroad crossing to use ordinary care in selecting a time and place to look and listen for coming trains. He should stop for the purpose of making such observation when necessary. It is his duty to use all of his faculties, and it is not enough if he merely listens, believing that the people in charge of an approaching engine will ring a bell or sound a whistle.

"If he (Griffin) had stopped at a point where his head would have been sixteen feet from the track there would have been five feet between the front of his car and the zone of danger from a locomotive, and he could have obtained from that point an unobstructed view of the rails for a distance of approximately 1200 feet. Instead of stopping to look when he reached this first available place for seeing, Mr. Griffin chose to bring his automobile to a standstill at a point about thirty-five feet east of the track, where it would be impossible to see a train approaching from the south. At this point he stopped to listen and to look for smoke.

"He was running at a very low rate of speed and it would have been easy for him to stop a short distance beyond the fence corner at a place of complete safety and one well suited to observation. Failing to do this amounts to contributory negligence on his part."

MOTORCYCLE SERVICE.

A new motorcycle service system has also been installed by the Ahlberg company. This motorcycle is used for city deliveries only and has cut down the time and expense of delivering bearings 50 per cent.

MAXWELL RACE TEAM
MARY

Maxwell "Mary" and speed crew.

Miss Anita King,

The Paramount-Lasky girl who is to drive a KisselKar from the local Lasky studio to the offices of the company in New York City, without the aid of mechanic or companion.

Plenty of Pluck.

ANITA KING TO DRIVE ACROSS CONTINENT ALONE.

NOW COMES the woman who dares to drive an automobile across the continent alone—a feat never before attempted. Miss Anita King, leading woman for the Lasky studios and known wherever pictures are shown as the Paramount Girl, begins such a hazardous trip on Wednesday. She is bound for the Famous Players studio in New York, where she must report in three weeks. There are several six-reel features that are awaiting her coming.

There will be nobody with her at any time on the trip. She will have no mechanician, no chauffeur, no maid. Her only companions will be a rifle and six-shooter. If success crowns her efforts, she will have done one of the few feats that have not been done before. And such are few.

Miss King will begin the daring trip by trying to drive to San Francisco in seventeen hours. That will be a new woman's record. Her attempting for such a record shows her courage. It takes nerve and strength to sit at the wheel of a car for seventeen hours without a break. It takes strength to stand so long a stretch with the eyes glued on the road ahead.

After reaching San Francisco, she will rest until September 1. Then she will begin her trip across the continent, going through Sacramento, Lake Tahoe, across the desert in Nevada to Salt Lake City, through Cheyenne and Omaha. No attempt for a speed record across the continent will be made. Miss King will leave the Lincoln Highway often, as she intends to visit nearly every city where a Paramount Moving Picture Theater is in operation. She will drive a regular 42-six stock KisselKar with Firestone tires and no special equipment.

Everybody who knows Miss King expresses confidence in her ability to make the trip. When she looks one square in the eye and says with a quiet smile, "Yes I'm going to drive across the continent alone," that settles it. You know she will. Besides Miss King is an expert at the wheel of a car. She owned one for seven years and has practically lived in it. Again she knows the country over which she is to travel.

When told that the desert was dangerous and treacherous, she answered, "I lived on it for five years. I've met its heat and sand storms and beaten them before."

Nor has she any fear for the mountains with their steep grades, rough roads and tortuous turns. That is because she understands her car, has a firm hand, a clear eye and grit.

'Once I drove in a race at Phoenix," she smiled. "Something went wrong and I drove through the fence and across a plowed field. I don't know where I went after that, because when I woke up I was in a hospital. So you see I don't care much where I go or how rough the going."

The loneliness of the trip nor being out in the wilderness alone on a dark night, has no terror for her. She says that she always liked to be out under the stars alone and that besides she has a rifle and six-shooter and knows how to handle them.

Anita King knows how to take care of herself even if she is a woman and beautiful. When she says she will drive across the continent alone it is as good as done.

FIGURES CAN'T LIE

APRIL	1914
MAY	1914
	1915

THE Chandler is most popularly preferred of all the light sixes. And why? There must be some good reason. There must be several good reasons. There are. Very decidedly good reasons.

The Chandler isn't preferred simply because it was the first high-grade six that sold for less than $2000. It isn't preferred simply because it brought the six-cylinder car within reach of the average purse and pointed out the way for many other manufacturers to produce more or less similar cars.

The Chandler has met with its big popular demand because it gives more for every dollar of its price than any other car in the field.

At $1295 the Chandler gives you the finest, smoothest-running six-cylinder motor you could wish for. It is the exclusive Chandler motor—not a common ready-made stock motor. This motor—the secret of Chandler supremacy—has been left unchanged since the beginning of Chandler history—since the days when this car sold for $1795. No tinkering with it, no making of new models to cheapen its cost!

Search the whole market if you choose, and try to find the Chandler motor's equal.

The Chandler is preferred because, all the way through, it is built so well. Because it is so graceful in design, so sturdy in its construction, so roomy, so splendidly finished.

The Chandler is preferred because it is equipped with the most up-to-date and the most dependable equipment.

The Chandler is preferred because thousands of Chandlers have given and are giving perfect service on the road; because the public knows the element of chance is eliminated in purchasing a Chandler.

You will prefer the Chandler above other light sixes when you know the car. Come in and find out about it. Find out for yourself. Make the car prove its superiority. It can do it.

of these were brought on an air-line course to Los Angeles, regardless of grades, and it is a remarkable tribute to the skill of the State highway engineers that the new road traverses this mountainous country on a grade which nowhere exceeds 6 per cent., and yet is very little longer than the power and gas lines through the same territory.

NATURAL GAS.

Incidentally the presence of the Midway Gas Company's line worked a distinct economy on the building of the road. It was necessary to haul fuel for the steam shovels on the work from the railroad, forty miles away. During the winter this became an almost impossible task when the Antelope Valley roads were bogs of adobe mud. At the suggestion of Highway Commissioner N. D. Darlington, the use of natural gas from the Midway line was tried out as fuel for the shovels, and after some experimenting was found to work perfectly. It is stated that this is the first time natural gas was ever successfully used as fuel for steam-shovel work.

Members of the State Highway Commission regard the Ridge Route as the greatest single achievement in the building of the entire California State highway system.

"For the most part our work of highway building has been merely to improve existing roads," said N. D. Darlington of the State Highway Commission. "In the Ridge Route, however, we had an opportunity to so vastly improve and shorten one of the main trunk line roads between two important points that I regard it as the most striking single piece of work that we have been able to accomplish. Twenty-four miles is a long distance to cut from the road between here and Bakersfield. It will make easily possible automobile trips from Los Angeles to Bakersfield and return in a single day. It will make it possible for trucks to go from Los Angeles to the great Kern county oil fields in a single day. It has involved the expenditure of a great deal of money, it is true, but I honestly believe that no motorist will travel the Ridge Route in the future without being convinced that the new road is worth many times over its cost to the State."

PENDELL EAST.

H. G. Pendell, distributor for the Commerce and Atterbury motor truck lines, is in the East and it is rumored that he will return with the agency for a new line. During Pendell's absence, Ed Swanson is in charge of the local agency.

LABOR FINISHED.

The Spartan sign car with its crew of two, who are just completing the erection of signs over 3389 miles of transcontinental road, is due to arrive in Los Angeles today. This car is a Ford, and was sent out from the factory of Sparks-Withington Company, at Jackson, Mich., July 7, in charge of Harry and Clifford Sparks, the sons of the senior member of the firm. It is specially rigged to carry stakes and signs as well as containing camping outfit for its crew. After leaving Jackson they tapped the Lincoln Highway at South Bend, Ind., and have worked westward from day to day to the Pacific Coast. At every dangerous curve or place on the entire highway they have placed signs reading: "Safety First—Sound Sparton." These signs are circular in form, 20 inches in diameter, made of porcelain enamel, and are mounted on posts 5 feet above the ground, and driven 2 feet deep. The red, white and blue marker, "L," of the Lincoln Highway Association is placed just below the big circle, and is 6x12 in. These signs are clear and distinct and may be seen from a distance sufficient to insure perfect safety.

Iowa has taken a new departure from the practice of issuing license plates each year, and has contracted for 250,000 tags, which will be put into use January 1, 1916, and be good for three years instead of one.

Still in Service.

VETERAN ROAD CAR ON LONG ECONOMY TRIP.

FROM the Skyland country of Colorado to the expositions of the Pacific Coast at a total cost of $40 for subsistence and automobile expenses, as compared with railroad fares, Pullman and meals costing $372 is a splendid showing in favor of the motor car. That is the experience of J. W. Cary and family of four, who were accompanied on the trip by Dr. J. V. Solandt, all of Steamboat Springs, Colo., who drove into Los Angeles yesterday in their 1914 Hudson Six-40.

Reporting on their trip to Harold L. Arnold, Hudson motor car distributor for Southern California, Mr. Cary was so enthusiastic regarding the success of the westward journey that he intends to make an even longer trip on the return to Colorado.

Coming to the Coast the Cary Hudson party took the unusual route through Northern Colorado by way of Meeker and across the Green River country of Utah through Vernal to Salt Lake City. This road is rarely traveled by automobile and is one of the most strenuous routes through the high country of the Rocky Mountains in Northwestern Colorado. They used the Lincoln Highway from Salt Lake City to San Francisco, then to Los Angeles and will send their Hudson car on the homeward journey by way of the National Old Trails, visiting Grand Canyon, Petrified Forest and other scenic features of that road, crossing eight mountain ranges in Northern Arizona, and over the Transcontinental Divide at 8214 feet in the westerly portion of New Mexico.

Between New Mexico and Colorado they will again send their Hudson car over the high summit of Raton Pass and after a visit to the Royal Gorge and the Garden of the Gods will make the final homeward lap by way of Berthoud Pass, crossing the summit at an elevation of over two miles above sea level.

On the round trip the Cary party will enjoy nearly 5000 miles of "seeing America," including the finest of scenic features of the Pacific Coast, Lake Tahoe, Yosemite Valley, Gen-Grant and Sequoia National parks and the world-renowned scenic features of Arizona and New Mexico.

Before leaving home Mr. Cary had already driven his Hudson car, which he purchased early in 1914, a distance of over 10,000 miles and had so successfully accomplished many difficult drives in the mountains of Colorado that he had every confidence in making the long journey to the Pacific Coast in the same machine.

SERVICE CAR IS GIVEN DISCHARGE.

The Maxwell race team which leads all similar organizations in winnings this season, has finished the work of overhauling its cars and has formally disbanded, the final detail being a last farewell to "Mary," the Maxwell touring car which had been, throughout the campaign, the team's sole road vehicle.

"Mary" had been shipped back to Detroit from Omaha, the team's last scheduled start, and had occupied a corner of the shop, during the three weeks the members of the team were putting the race cars in shape for storage.

It was the first real rest "Mary" had enjoyed for seven months. At ten race meetings and over the circuit that started in California and ended in Omaha, "Mary" had plied daily between the hotels and the tracks, over roads almost always heavy and rough. Officials, prominent drivers and newspaper men had been recipients of her hospitality. Oftener than not, in addition to the big load of men festooned to every possible spot, "Mary" towed a trailer full of tools, spare wheels and other racing paraphernalia.

Capt. R. A. Ford,

The capable officer who is to command "A" Squadron, Motor Corps Reserve, which is to be located in Los Angeles.

TEXAS OFFICER LAUDS COMMAND.

Col. E. W. Edwards of the Texas Mavericks, considered by many one of the most efficient reserve regiments in the United States, says of the Motor Corps Reserve:

"While stopping in Los Angeles for the past few days I have met quite a few members of your volunteer motor corps and, having exercised considerable interest in military affairs for several years, I would say that this unique organization forcibly impresses me as being different from other volunteers in many ways. Especially is this true when we understand to what degree warfare has been changed within the past fifteen months.

"The methods used in the war now in progress in Europe absolutely destroys all of the old principles laid down by our great military experts, such as certain prescribed commands in time of battle, flanking movements set forth as having been successful in the past, and thousands of pages of special instructions covering as many circumstances. The massiveness of present-day warfare can hardly be appreciated by any man, not excepting those who are now engaged therein. Where battle lines and fronts in wars gone by were measured by miles, they are now established by the hundreds of miles.

"In our Civil War, where a man could be dispatched by foot or horse, it now takes something much faster; hence this motor corps will be found, if occasion arises where our armies shall be put to a test, to be of inestimable value to the nation.

"These courageous and patriotic men, members of all such organizations, should at all times be encouraged by our citizenship and every inducement be offered them for the continuation of such concrete bodies."

FORTUNE PLACED IN NEW MACHINE.

CAR PUT ON MARKET ONLY SHORT TIME AGO HAS REMARKABLE RUN.

The result of a remarkable selling campaign was demonstrated in the record of the Arnold organization, as shown by the books August 1, in the distribution of 586 Dodge Bros. cars since the first car of that make was received on the Pacific Coast, January 9. Harold L. Arnold has just learned that the Pacific Coast territory, including Oregon and Washington, has already absorbed over 1000 Dodge Bros.' motor cars, and that the only difficulty in the northern portion of the State has been like that in Mr. Arnold's territory, of getting sufficient cars to supply the demand.

The popularity of the Dodge Bros. car has become so great that every dealer is overloaded with orders for cars, which he finds it difficult to secure; this in spite of the fact that the Dodge Bros.' factory has already reached a daily production of over 200 cars. Much of this popularity is due to the fact that they were especially built to stand up under the roughest usage.

In anticipation of the growing demand, Mr. Arnold has increased his order 40 per cent. over the allotment originally planned for Los Angeles distribution for the 1916 season.

Toronto sportsmen are contributing funds to buy machine guns for use in the European war. It is hoped to raise $5000.

The

HAYNES

America's Greatest "Light Six"

You can climb hills on high, with turns so sharp that the car must be slowed down, without touching the gear shift lever.

At all speeds, and under all conditions, you get in the Haynes a smooth flow of power. You really control the car with the foot throttle.

Not only is the Haynes motor a high speed motor, but it develops that wonderful pulling power, that ability to hang on at the lower speed—and that is flexibility.

And don't overlook Haynes appearance, upkeep, economy, durability. In finish and workmanship the Haynes "Light Six" does not suffer by comparison with cars of the highest price consideration.

Its upkeep is notably economical. Has averaged 18 to 22 miles per gallon of gasoline, 7500 miles to a set of tires, 400 miles to a quart of oil.

And remember, that it is made by a company that is furnishing repair parts for cars built as long ago as 1899.

New Light Six $1385 F. O. B. Kokomo.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—Two errors by Agnew, combined with a series of bunched hits in the fourth inning gave Boston a victory over St. Louis in the first game of the series, 4 to 1. Two singles, a sacrifice and Shotton's steal home in the first inning saved St. Louis from a shutout. Jacobson, recently acquired from Detroit, played his first game with the locals today.

PHILLIES WALLOP THE CUBS, 7-5, 3-2.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21—A crowd which filled the park to its capacity saw Philadelphia defeat Chicago in both games today, the scores being 7 to 5 and 3 to 2. Humphries and Standridge who pitched for Chicago in the first game, and Alexander were hit hard and the poor support given the visiting twirlers gave the home team the victory. In the closing contest Demaree was repeatedly in trouble, but he was saved by his support. Adams did not permit a batsman to reach first base until the fifth inning, after whcih Philadelphia won by mixing hits with errors. The Score:

WORLD'S CHAMPION PACING GELDING FIRST.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MONTREAL, Aug. 21.—Frank Bogash, Jr., the world's champion pacing gelding, won the free-for-all event, the chief feature of the Grand Circuit meet at Dorval Park today. The winner, driven by Murphy, took three straight heats, his best time being 2:03 in the third. Earl, Jr., finished second.

Three of the four events were won in straight heats.

Tigers Take Two.

two games, the regulation park rations were served to the ladies and gents. Everything considered, it was a large and gala crowd, which for the most part did not hesitate to spend money.

Oakland hit the pill freely in both contests, but failed to weld its blows together in a way to produce many runs. In the second combat, for instance, they tore off eleven hits to six for Vernon, and yet the Tigers beat the everlasting wadding out of them. As the Oaklets could make only one run off eleven hits, in order for them to have beaten the Tigers in the second game it would have been necessary for them to have made sixty-six hits. There are very few clubs who could do that on short notice.

AMONG THOSE, ETC.

The afternoon was featured by the appearance of J. Clout Ness and Von Kluck Klawitter, each displaying a deep sea sunburn. J. Clout, wearing the healthy glow of a boiled lobster, acted as a pinch-hitter in both games, but with no success. He seemed to be hide-bound. Von Kluck, his massive shoulders bathed in olive oil, and his splendid pitching arm covered with blisters, worked the second game. Rowdy believes in serving his pitchers well done. Von Kluck moved cautiously as one who feared that his hide might pop open at any time.

Rabbitt Mundorff got into both games as a pinch-hitter, and in that way earned two more meals. This means that he ate last night all right and will be sure of breakfast this morning.

Alexander Remneas pitched his customary inning, finishing up the first combat. He kept warmed up all during the second, but there was no chance for him to get him, and he left the park in a despondent condition.

FIRST GAME.

Bill Burns, who quit celebrating his birthdays several years ago, and therefore does not know how old he is, announced that he expected to pitch both games. Later, Bill was forced to change his mind. In the seventh, the Tigers bunched two doubles and a triple on Burns, and this caused him to revise his plans. After the triple landed, he decided not to pitch even one full game, let alone two. The spirit was willing, but the arm couldn't stand the strain.

Joe Wilhoit was instrumental in upsetting Bill's well-laid plans. Joe hit safely every time up, getting two doubles and an equal number of singles, scored three runs and drove in another. These things tended to thwart Burns, and send him back to the bench earlier than he expected. Bill Piercy was Vernon's color bearer. Although his young and tender shoots were straightened out nine times, the visitors grabbed only one earned run.

NO LUCK.

When Burns got through the first inning without being scored on, somebody became suspicious and let out an anguished cry of "mud ball!" However, there was no evidence on which to convict Bill, there being no mud this side of Cerritos Slough.

The mud ball is easily detected. When it is thrown dry the mud is permitted to harden on one side of it like a piece of pie crust. The batter tries to hit the ball and knock the crust off, but the trouble is that he can't connect, and the mud remains until the umpire discovers it and wipes it off.

Thus, the duties of our umpires are becoming more complex, while their equipment will soon be about equal in weight to that of an infantryman on the march. Originally, an umpire went into battle wearing nothing but clothes, and carrying no tools or weapons. Then came the belly protector and war bonnet, or mask. Then the indicator or adding machine, which is held in the hand. Later were added shin guards worn under the pant leg where they are safe from the vulgar gaze of the public.

STILL MORE.

As the game became more sanitary, they were armed with whisk brooms to dust off the field furniture. Their equipment now calls for a magnifying glass to detect emery spots, and a wad of cotton batting with which to wipe mud from the sphere. Soon we may expect to see the umpires marching onto the field before a game, each with a tool chest strapped to his back. The game is becoming more scientific every day.

The Tigers broke through for their first marker in the seventh. Wilhoit jarred Burns with a double, and counted on Purtell's single. Bill hauled down the throw home and nailed Billy at second. Gleichmann grounded out, and Berger was out in a sensational play with McArdle and Gardner at the two extremes.

IN THE LEAD.

Oakland took the lead in the fourth, and held it for five or six minutes. Johnston walked with one gone. Rowdy flied to center, and Jimmy went to third on Gardner's hit. Rube was nailed trying to take second on Kane's throw to third, but found himself safe when Berger dropped the pill. Tobin scored both guys with a gigantic triple to the right of Kane. McArdle popped to Berger. Johnston, Elliott and Gardner bunched hits on Piercy in the sixth, but it was all meaningless. Johnston was pegged out stealing second, and Rowdy received his at the plate in an attempted double steal.

Vernon got back in front in the sixth with two runs, safeties by Wilhoit, Gleichmann and Spencer, a sacrifice by Berger and Johnston's throw to the plate which took a bad hop, doing the fine business.

SECOND GAME.

The supper shift was characterized by splendid fielding on the part of nearly everybody concerned, and especially by Doane, Berger, Marcan and Rader. Berger's work was hardly human.

Walter Kuhn, the red-headed catcher, started out to catch the second game, but a foul tip below the belt put him down for the count in the first inning. This made it pretty tough on Rawdy, who was forced to ketch both games. Kuhn was rendered unconscious and strong men carried him to the bench. The stand was then paged for a skilled physician, who went down on the bench and told Kuhn that he had been hit. It is always well for a guy to know what is the matter with him. This seemed to satisfy the catcher, and he left the park. He expects to be back today. If not, he will be seen in action when Oakland plays here next time. Buy your tickets early.

Although Klawitter held the Tigers to six hits, they bunched these in a way to get results. Two of them, singles, by Rader and Doane, were bunched with a sacrifice by Wilhoit in the first inning, for one run. Von Kluck then pitched perfect ball until the fifth, when there was a terrible upheaval. Berger tripled with one out, Mitze walked, Rhino surprised the natives by doubling, and Rader singled. Result: Three runs. The next two guys popped out. Doane tripled in the eighth and scored on a fly by Bayless.

It was a dull inning when the Oaklets did not get two hits, but they nearly always bogged down on the bases. Singles by Johnston and Rowdy and Gardner's fly in the sixth saved them from a shutout, and they are welcome to all the satisfaction they can get out of that.

BRYNLIMAH NOSES OUT RASH AT THE WIRE.

Winner is Well up Early in the Race and Comes Outside on Way Home, Lasting Gamely Under Strong Handling — Rash Moves After Horses Pass the Half-mile.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—Brynlimah, with Bullman up, won today the Exposition one-mile handicap in the first day's races held at the Panama-Pacific exposition by the Golden Gate Thoroughbred Breeders' Association. The meet will continue for twenty-five days. It was the first racing in California since 1911.

Brynlimah won the feature event of the day in a drive in 1:40, nosing out Rash with Gross up. John Graham, Palma up, was third, and Be and Lovins also ran. There was $1000 added to the purse.

Brynlimah was well up early in the race and came outside on the way home, lasting gamely under strong handling.

Rash moved up after the horses passed the half-mile.

John Graham easily outstayed Be, which made the early pace. Lovins ran well for three-quarters.

Licenses have been issued by the State of Washington to more than 22,000 motor cars.

CORONA AND PHOENIX ONLY SPEED CENTERS.

Long List of Dream Speedways, but Nothing Definite as Yet—Los Angeles Motordrome Horrible Example of Pioneer Project of Kind in Southern California. Promoters Were Heavy Losers.

BY AL G. WADDELL.

CALIFORNIA is assured of but one motor speed meet this fall and winter. There is to be a 300-mile road race on the Grand boulevard at Corona, which now holds the world's road race record.

OTHERS.

Arizona is to have a 150-mile track race at Phoenix within a week or so of the Corona classic and the combined purses of the two great events should attract the greatest drivers in the country to the West.

With her stock all subscribed, three entries assured, including Eddie Pullen, winner of the last Corona race, and Glover Ruckstell, Corona has no date set. The great race was to have been run off on November 20; but the Phoenix track race had already been announced for that date and it became necessary for the Corona committee to select another date.

NOT THANKSGIVING.

It was decided at the last mass meeting, before the Corona committee was finally appointed, that the race would not be held on Thanksgiving Day. There was a great deal of opposition to a race on that day shown by the Corona citizens and many of the most influential business men of the Circle City went on record as being against the holiday date.

The Corona purse is to be something like $15,000. The Phoenix race will carry a purse of $5000. It is the intention of the management to cooperate with Corona in bringing the greatest drivers in the country out for the races. For this reason George Purdy Bullard, A.A.A. representative at Phoenix, requested that Corona change her date.

TO BE SET.

For the sake of the drivers and team managers who are now making their plans for the late fall and winter, it is necessary that Corona decide definitely on a date for her classic and apply for a sanction through L. W. Wicks, the newly-appointed representative of the contest board in Southern California. Mr. Wicks is going out to Corona tomorrow to take the matter up with the Corona directors and it is probable that the date to be asked for will be made known tomorrow after the conference.

With the three Mercer cars already assured for the race, word comes from the East to the effect that Corona may expect the greatest entry list that ever was slated for a race on the Pacific Coast. With the springing up of speedways all over the East, road racing is practically dead. The Elgin races had the smallest entry lists ever known and throughout the East, the road racing sport is quite somewhat passe.

REALLY FAST.

Corona has the fastest road race course in the world and while it is a public highway and comes under the head of road race courses, it is virtually a speedway. This fact alone gives reason for the prediction on the part of motor racing experts that the Corona road race will be an annual affair in Southern California for many years to come.

There are many rumors of a speedway in Los Angeles. Dream speedways have had a run in Los Angeles for more than a year, but nothing is assured as yet. One promoter is quoted as saying that Corona would never have a race as he had tied up the Thanksgiving date and would hold it for the speedway race.

FOOLISH.

If Mr. Richard Kennerdell, chairman of the contest board of the American Automobile Association, refuses to grant a sanction to Corona on account of some promoter who has a dream speedway he will stake himself to a lot of respect in Southern California, not.

There are just about half a dozen mythical speedways in Southern California at this time.

Our fellow citizen Mr. Barney Oldfield opened up with a speedway dream last winter that ran just two days. Then came others.

Pomona was to have a speedway. They spent enough money for aviation exhibitions during the ground breaking ceremonies to promote a Corona race, and that ended the Pomona speedway.

There was another dream centered around the city of San Bernardino. That speedway dreamer woke up before he had decided on the color of his bricks.

JUST NOISE.

There was a land booming scheme worked up with a speedway and country club in the scenery. That was just about the best looking speedway on paper in the world, but someone tore the paper or used it to light a cigar.

Another promoter went to work to raise the money in an honest way among his friends and build a speedway for the edification of Los Angeles speed fans. The plans progressed until it was a matter of but a few hundred thousand dollars and then something struck a rock.

There was another one launched. It was a stock selling proposition; but that was about all.

The latest dream is a masterpiece. A speedway around Lake Elsinore. That would be a great thing for the fishes in that lake. The noise of the motors would wake them up in time to take cold baths before breakfast.

ALL DREAMS.

They are all dreams and we have no speedway. There are a lot of dry lakes out on the desert where there is every chance for speed and to see someof the speed men take a chance fully three people out of Los Angeles will go up about once a year.

About the best answer to the speedway question in Los Angeles is an unsightly pile of lumber down near Venice. That pile of lumber was once the world's greatest speedway. The Los Angeles motordrome. It cost one man $35,000. The others had destroyed their cancelled checks and we could not figure it up; but they all lost enough, we can bet on that.

One of the most prominent business men in this city, a banker, sportsman, motorist and financial expert, said that of all the places in the world for a speedway, Los Angeles was about the worst. His reasons were, population too small to make it pay, too many other attractions and the fact that racers are as common here as model T. Fords.

NEW INSTITUTION OPENS WITH BANG.

BIG SCHEDULE FOR FIRST SHOOT OF VERNON CLUB; OTHERS TO FOLLOW.

The first shoot of the Vernon Gun Club is to be staged this afternoon. It is to be for beginners only and a large number of enthusiasts are already signed up.

The idea of the whole thing was to get a shooting club within a short distance of Los Angeles. Several prominent men started the ball rolling by leasing a fourteen-acre tract near Huntington Park. A great deal of interest was immediately shown in the undertaking and it was decided to make the membership absolutely free.

A clubhouse has been erected and the equipment of the club promises to be the best on the Coast.

Twenty-five prizes have been offered for the opening day's shoot and a large loving cup will go to the one bringing down the highest score.

SPORT ALLURING WILL HOLD SWAY.

The sport alluring is to be dished up in its choicest style at Venice today. The Los Angeles Gun Club will pull off the Du Pont annual beginners' shoot. This affair is being staged all over the country today and several hundred gun clubs are interested.

The programme for the local shoot will consist of twenty-five targets and is open to men and women who have never shot at clay targets previous to the beginners' day shoot.

The woman making the highest score will be presented with a suitably engraved spoon and the winning gentleman is to receive a medal watch fob.

Besides the beginners' affair there will be the regular trophy contest. The old hands at the game are entered in this shoot and some excellent scores are sure to be tacked up.

MOTOR CORPS RESERVE IDEA SPREADING ABROAD.

Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, New York and San Francisco Practically Certain to Organize Within Few Weeks—Capt. Ford is Elected Commander of Local Squadron, Which is the First in the Country.

BY WILLIAM M. HENRY.

THOUGHOUT the United States, the Motor Corps Reserve, organized in Los Angeles a few months ago, is spreading like a fever. It is practically assured that within a few weeks there will be reserve motor corps fully organized in Indianapolis, Chicago, New York and Detroit.

LOCAL IDEA.

Los Angeles claims the distinction of having conceived the idea of the Motor Corps Reserve. The Los Angeles command is to be known as "A" Squadron and is to be under the command of Capt. R. A. Ford, one of the most able reserve officers in the United States.

Capt. Ford has seen actual service in the cavalry, as a lieutenant, held a major's commission in the infantry arm of the service and is one of the few artillery officers not in actual service with the regular army.

FOR EFFICIENCY.

The prominent automobile men of Los Angeles who are on the advisory board of the Motor Corps Reserve or active members of the organization, selected Capt. Ford as their commanding officer only after long deliberation. With a knowledge of all three arms of the military service, it was believed that he would make a more efficient commander than even the greatest motor car expert among the dealers.

Walter M. Brown, the Southern California Stutz dealer, has been working on the military motor problem for several months and was instrumental in persuading Capt. Ford to take command of the organization.

Harris Hanshue of the Apperson, Frank Howard of the Buick, Gilman Flint of the Moline Knight, Lynn C. Buxton of the Moon and Lexington, Al G. Faulkner of the Fiat and Jeffery, Reeve Gartzman of the National and Oakland, O. B. Henderson of the KisselKar branch, L. V. Starr of the Overland and many others have taken an active part in the organization of the corps.

There are to be several truck experts in the command, the greatest drivers in the West and mechanical exprts not to be found elsewhere in the country.

A SECOND CORPS.

Capt. H. D. Ryus, one of the organizers of the corps, is now making his headquarters in San Francisco, where he is planning to organize a second corps.

Col. E. W. Edwards of the Texas Mavericks, who was a visitor in Los Angeles a week ago, thought so highly of the organization that he returned to his home in Dallas, Tex., with the idea of suggesting such an organization to the citizens of that city interested in motoring.

F. E. Moskovics, chairman of the Indiana section, Society of Automobile Engineers, spent several days in Los Angeles on business for his firm, Nordyke and Marmon Co., and went over the plans of the Motor Corps Reserve with Capt. Ford, Walter M. Brown, Harris Hanshue and others and with the date secured, he is to go before the next meeting of the S.A.E. and recommend the formation of motor reserve are Lieut. J. L. Wier, formercenters of the East.

A colonel in Kansas City has been interested in the organization and Billy Wall, president of the Indiana Rifle Club, has been interested and is working on the project in Indianapolis.

"We will have a great advantage in Indianapolis," said Mr. Moskovics, "Fort Benjamin Harrison is right handy and I know that we will have no difficulty in arranging for a great many experiments and maneuvers with the officers and men of the regular army. All must admit that in time of war the motor corps of the United States will be handled by the automobile experts and not the men now in the army. Therefore it is essential that we prepare for such a time."

Among the men who have offered their services to the Motor Cars Reserve are Lieut. J. L. Wier, formerly of the 18th U. S. Infantry, now at Sherman Institute, Riverside. Lieut. Wier has volunteered his services as an instructor in infantry tactics as assistant to Capt. Ford.

Lieut. Wier graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1911 and spent three years in service on the Mexican border. When asked what the United States would do in time of war with the Motor Corps, he said, "I hardly think they will turn cars and trucks over to the West Pointers. They know little or nothing about motor cars and automobile engineering. It is the motor experts of the country who will have to handle that important branch of the service and it is certainly commendable on the part of th Los Angeles citizens who have formed the reserve force and are preparing themselves for actual service in time of need.

SHEEPSHEAD BAY EVENT WILL BE ASTOR CUP.

Speedway Nearing Completion and Much Speed is Promised—Cars Which are to Haul Pullen and Ruckstell in Inaugural Classic to Appear in Corona Road Race.

"We are itching to get on the track and try out the cars which are the speediest looking jobs that ever wore the Mercer nameplate," said a letter received yesterday by Bentel and Mackey from Eddie Pullen in telling of the near completion of the Sheepshead Bay speedway. With G. E. Ruckstell, Pullen has been at the Mercer factory in Trenton, N. J., since the double Mercer victory at Tacoma.

That the Mercers are ready for the preliminary work for the 350-mile inaugural race October 2 is indicated by Pullen who tells of some very high speed which has been attained by the racers over ordinary roads. Pullen sent the additional information that in addition to the big money prize, Vincent Astor had donated a perpetual trophy to go to the winners of the annual events which now will become known as the Vincent Astor Cup Race.

There is another cup still to be contested for over the Shepeshead course, according to Pullen. This will be the American cup which will carry with it the Yankee speedway championship.

Pullen last week drove a Mercer touring car from Trenton to the Sheepshead course. He said that the wooden surfacing on the heavy steel frame had been completed with the exception of a couple of short gaps.

The grandstand is of the double-deck type and 1000 feet long. It is of steel construction.

Pullen and Ruckstell are very much interested in the coming Corona race. Pullen is holder of the world's record on the course, having covered the 300 miles last year at an average of 87.89 miles an hour. Because of his performance last year he will be a favorite on the course this year. Ruckstell, too, is regarded highely.

That there will be plenty of Mercer speed for Corona was shown last week when George R. Bentel made the trip to Corona via Riverside for the mass meeting at the city hall, taking with him a Mercer of the six-passenger type that had not been driven 100 miles. Despite its stiffness owing to newness, Bentel with five passengers aboard put the speedometer to 78 miles an hour and still had something left between the throttle and floor board. So far as is known, this is the fastest time ever made by a stock car on the Pacific Coast.

One of the most amazing features of the fast drive was that at the tremendous speed the Mercer stuck to the road like it had been placed in a groove. Even on the "corduroy" stretches where the surfacing has rolled up into ridges there was no tendency of the car to jump about on the road.

MOTOR RAMBLE TOUR DE LUXE.

E. J. Longyear and party of Minneapolis reached Los Angeles Thursday after a transcontinental tour, in what is claimed to be the most complete touring outfit to reach California this season.

Mr. Longyear is the owner of extensive mining properties in Michigan and Mexico. When he started out to "See America," he decided to see it right and not from the platform of an observation car.

In the Longyear motor equipment there are two Pierce-Arrow touring cars and a motor truck. There have been many completely equipped cars cross the continent this summer, but the Pierce-Arrow equipment is believed to be the most complete ever seen in Los Angeles.

The truck carries a large ice chest modern stove, cooking and serving utensils.

The cars are equipped with special electric lighting systems. A motion picture camera is a part of the equipment and in addition to three chauffeurs, three French maids are in the party waiting upon the ladies of the motor fleet.

Mr. Longyear is accompanied by his wife, two sons and two women guests. They are taking their time, and on the tour from the East, made a number of side trips off the Lincoln highway.

Only twice since they left their eastern home city have they stopped over night at a hotel. One-night stops were made at Denver and Salt Lake City. With their equipment de luxe, it is possible for them to enjoy a meal in the heart of the desert or in the mountains that will eclipse the service of the finest cafes.

There are now 1900 motor cars in Oklahoma City, Okla. The horses number 1343 and are valued at $66,350. The mules number 75, with a value of $4435. The total of horses and mules at 1418 and the value of bath but $70,785. The motor car has not made rapid gain in the county outside the city. The cars in the county, exclusive of Oklahoma City, number less than 100. The bad roads are largely responsible for this condition. Yet the total value of horses in the county, including Oklahoma City, is less than the value of the motors.

McLouglin Defeated.

Longwood three weeks ago in a four-set match, the honors of the season between the leading tennis stars of the country are now even. Both are entered in the national championship tournament, which begins at New York on August 30.

The point score follows:

First set:
Williams ....3 0 4 2 5 0 4 0 4 10 2 1—35—5
McLoughlin .....5 4 1 4 3 4 1 4 2 8 4 4—44—7

Third set:

Fourth set:

McLoughlin ....3 0 4 1 4 0 4 3 0—19—3

Clarence J. Griffin and William M. Johnston, the Pacific Coast doubles champions, carried off the honors in the doubles. In the final matches, which brought the tournament to a close, the westerners defeated R. Norris Williams II and Watson M. Washburn, the eastern champions, after four spirited sets at 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

The rallies were splendidly fought, but the eastern pair failed to put the punch into their shots which the Californians displayed.

An arrangement is being perfected by the Hoosier Motor Club of Indianapolis, whereby members are to receive a discount on their motor-car insurance which will more than pay for the annual membership fee in the motor organizations.

Dover, Del., is imposing a tax at the rate of $2 on each $100 in value on motor cars for the benefit of the public school fund. Protest is being made in some places in the State against double taxation. Owners feel that in paying a State license fee they should not be further taxed.

ALL-WEATHER TREAD

An Extra Tread
Makes the Goodyear All-Weather a Double-Thick Anti-Skid

Cost $1,000,000

This is for men who think "Tires are tires" and who fail to get the best for that reason.

Most anti-skids, if you cut them, would show only a regular tread made rough.

The Goodyear All-Weather shows an extra tread, about as thick as the regular, vulcanized on top.

That one difference, on our output of All-Weathers, costs us $1,000,000 this year.

It's Worth Getting

Thus the Goodyear All-Weather is a double-thick tread. And the extra thickness is rubber toughened by a secret process.

This insures grips which are deep and tough. They last for thousands of miles and keep sharp. When they do wear off there's the regular tread beneath.

Is that not better than thin, soft treads with shallow, round-edged grips?

Get These Extras

There are other extras in Goodyear
Five of them are exclusive Goodyear
Others lie in extra size, extra rubber or strength over the usual tire.

These extras, on this year's output,
$1,635,000. That's outside the All-W tread. This year's additions, in extra and rubber alone, will cost us $500,000.

We are giving these extras to make Good

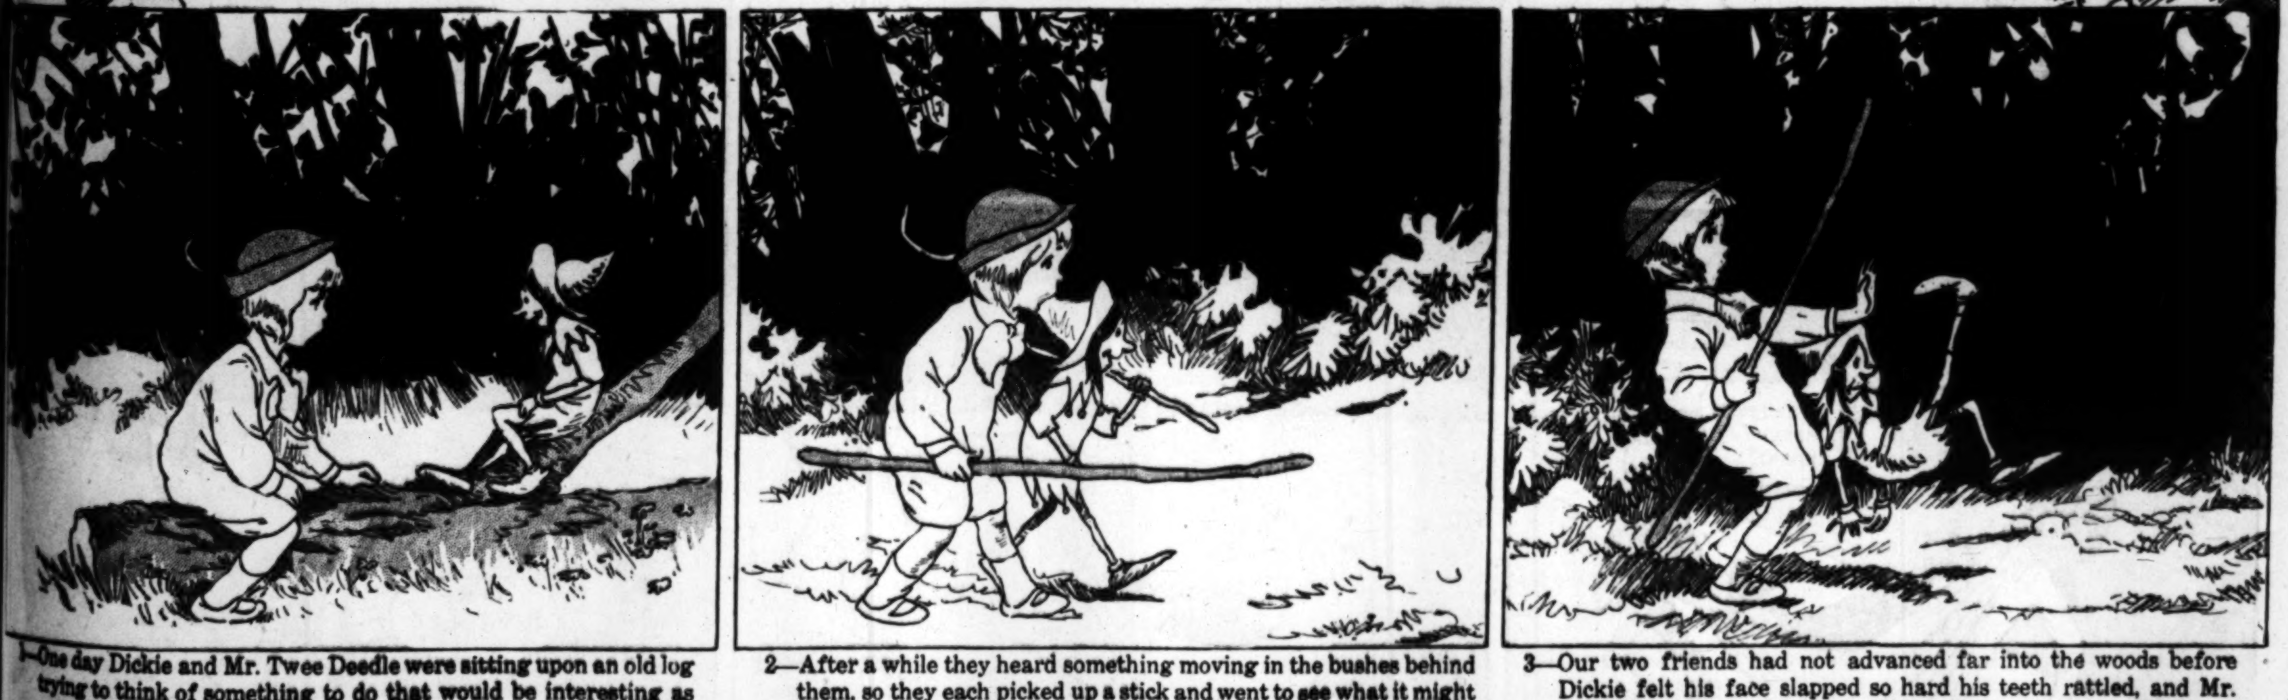
MR. TWEE DEEDLE.



1—One day Dickie and Mr. Twee Deedle were sitting upon an old log trying to think of something to do that would be interesting as well as helping some one. "I cannot think of anything that we might do just now," said Mr. Twee Deedle.

2—After a while they heard something moving in the bushes behind them, so they each picked up a stick and went to see what it might be. "We may not have occasion to use the sticks," explained Mr. Twee Deedle, "but it may be as well that we take them."

3—Our two friends had not advanced far into the woods before Dickie felt his face slapped so hard his teeth rattled, and Mr. Twee Deedle was jerked up in the air by one of his legs and thrown violently to the ground again.

4—Our friends could see nothing, but they began striking right and left with their sticks, and every once in a while they knew that they had hit the invisible creature, whatever it might be.

5—Finally Dickie raised his stick high in the air and brought it down where he supposed the creature's head must be, and the stick broke in two when it came in contact with something solid. "It's funny that the stick can hit a solid thing that is invisible!" cried Dickie as he struck again.

6—They were surprised when they heard a "Plump!" on the ground and saw the wicked old witch of the tree appear, rubbing her head. "It just goes to show," said Mr. Twee Deedle, "that some people think, because they are not seen doing wicked deeds or sneaking acts, they will not be found out."

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

CHILDREN AND TRUTH TELLING.

SOME one told me a story the other day. This is it:

A small boy of 5 had been promised that the next time his father and mother went for a drive he should be taken along. He heard the order given for the horse and carriage and never doubting that he was to accompany them he made himself ready and appeared on the front steps as the buggy was brought to the door. His parents came out, climbed into the carriage, waved a cheerful farewell to the child and drove off. They had entirely forgotten their promise to him.

The little fellow stood and watched them out of sight, swelling with disappointment and indignation. As the vehicle disappeared his suppressed feelings found utterance.

"There they go!" he choked out. "The two worst liars in this whole town!"

"Wasn't it funny?" said the friend who related the anecdote.

"I suppose it was, in a way," I said slowly. "But there is a good deal about it that is tragic."

For it is always a tragedy when a child's faith is shaken, whether in God or man—and the parents stand pretty close to God in the childish estimation. That they should forget a promise of any sort is an important matter to him.

The incident reminded me of a wise saying of my mother's, who was herself a wonderful disciplinarian. "It is not so much the severity as the certainty of a punishment that impresses a child," she declared. My addition to this would be that it is not so much the importance as the certainty of any promise which carries weight with children. When you break your word to one of them, either through forgetfulness or because you have thought better—or worse—of your pledge, you have changed his entire attitude toward you and the universe at large. If you can shatter your word, why should his be sacred? If you can trifle with the truth and depart from strict rectitude, what is there to prevent his following the same course?

We are in the habit of saying that children are not so innocent and simple as they seem. They keep up a great deal of thinking of which we have no cognisance. This is true, and they often sit in judgment on us when we least suspect it and go through processes of reasoning of which we would not believe them capable. At the same time their experience is so limited that they argue from the few facts at their command and make their deductions accordingly.

For example, the small boy of whom the story was told could not imagine that his parents could consider a promise to take him for a drive of so little moment that they could possibly forget it. To his mind they either did not want him along or had some plan which made his presence undesirable and so ignored their assurance that he should go with them for the next drive. To his perceptions they had been guilty of breaking a pledge and had therefore lied. He had been taught that the two were identical and so taught by those who now showed him that the conduct he had been told was criminal could be practiced by the two whom he had considered his highest ethical authority and standard.

I have told the one tale to illustrate this; I could give half a dozen along the same line. We can all recall hearing mothers say calmly, "I have changed my mind" as a sufficient explanation for not carrying out some promised plan.

"But you told me I could go out," said a little girl in my hearing the other day to the mother who had told her to put away her hat and coat, that she was to stay in for the afternoon.

"I don't care to have you go today," was all the excuse vouchsafed by the mother and after the child had left the room, pouting and fretting and whining dolefully, "But you promised," the parent said lightly:

"It looks so much like rain that I didn't dare let Elise go. She takes cold easily."

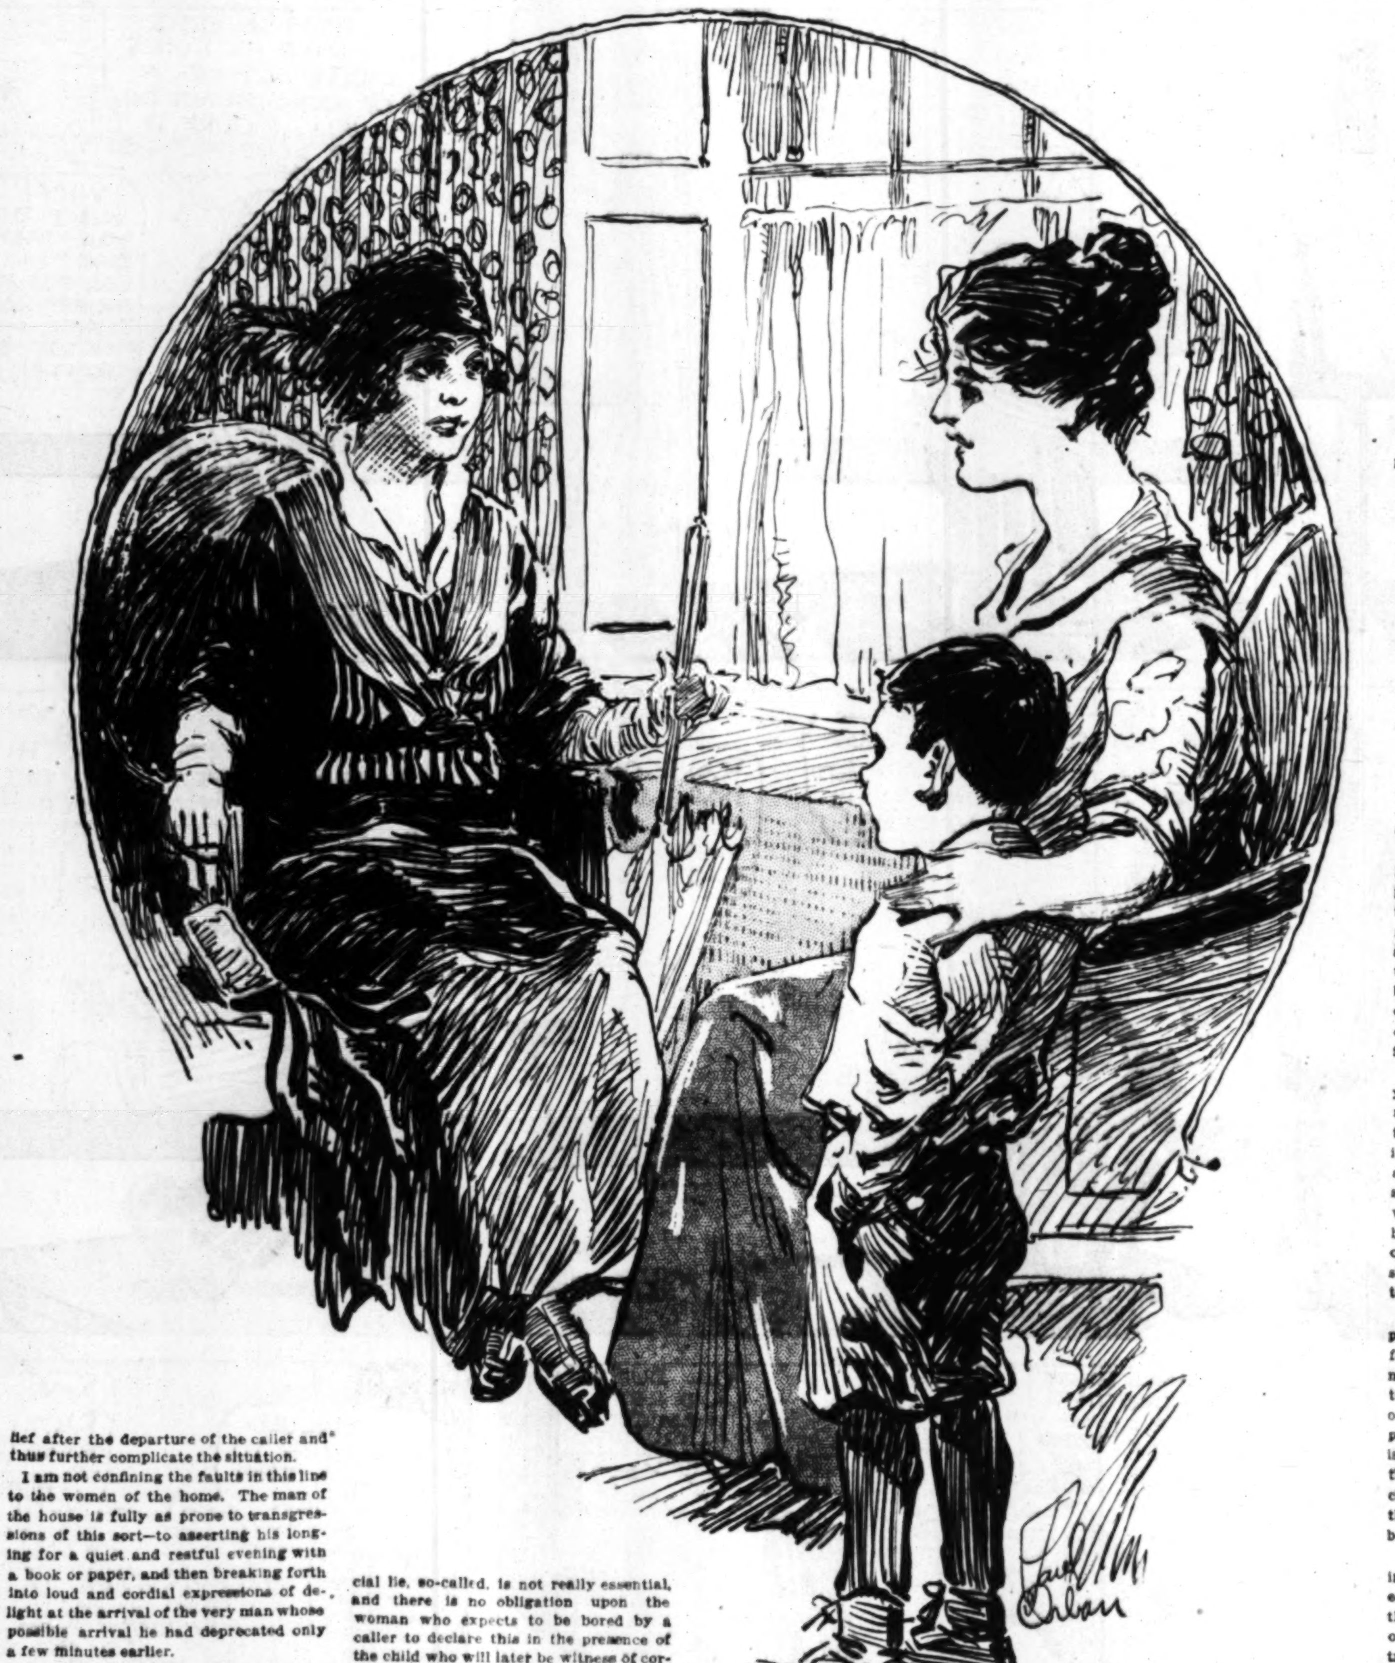
"Why didn't you tell her that?" I could not refrain from asking.

"Why should I? She ought to know that when I have changed my mind that settles it."

I said no more, but I felt the child had been wronged. I have strong ideas of discipline and I would not permit a child to withhold obedience to a command until I had explained the why and wherefore, but when a promise is bestowed the giver is bound to keep it or to accord a sufficient reason for breaking it. If this special mother had explained to her little daughter as she had to me that the change in the weather made it unsafe for her to venture out, the child would have had her due and would not have cherished in her heart the sense of unjust treatment and of broken faith.

Not only in carelessness as to the pledged word do children have the example of untruthfulness placed before them. I have said that they often argue mistakenly from the few facts in their possession. There are no intermediate shades of gray in their ethical equipment, only white truth and black deceit.

Therefore, when a child hears his mother groan in dismay when a card is brought up and lament that here is a bore of a woman who will take the entire afternoon, and then within five minutes listens to the cordial greeting bestowed upon the visitor, the assurance of pleasure in seeing her, of gratification at having been in for the call, he can hardly be blamed if his poor little brains are muddled and if his standards of truth telling and of lying are shaken as by an earthquake. To add to his confusion the mother is quite likely to give vent to profuse expressions of relief after the departure of the caller and thus further complicate the situation.



I am not confining the faults in this line to the women of the home. The man of the house is fully as prone to transgressions of this sort—to asserting his longing for a quiet and restful evening with a book or paper, and then breaking forth into loud and cordial expressions of delight at the arrival of the very man whose possible arrival he had deprecated only a few minutes earlier.

As a matter of course social observances must be followed, and the absolute, naked truth would make a shocking appearance in general society. But the social lie, so-called, is not really essential, and there is no obligation upon the woman who expects to be bored by a caller to declare this in the presence of the child who will later be witness of cordial greetings and assurances of pleasure in the visit.

The well brought up child early learns that consideration is at the basis of all courtesy. The value of reticence can be inculcated, with the clear understanding that refraining from unpleasant comment does not of necessity constitute an untruth.

I saw a pretty instance of this once some years ago. A young woman who thought she had a good voice had been singing for visitors. Her family shared in her estimate of her vocal powers. When the performance was over two or three of the guests were dumb, divided between their regard for the truth and their desire for politeness. One quick witted and kind hearted man of the company saved the situation.

Glancing about the family group, all of whom were glowing in pride of the exhibition of their darling's ability as a singer, the diplomat spoke.

"How delightful it must be to you to feel you can give pleasure to so many people," he said.

Another case of the same order was that of the woman who made an address before a young girls' missionary society and after the exercises was led in ceremony to the table set out with home made dainties, all containing chocolate in some form. There were chocolate cakes, chocolate macaroons, and chocolate candies to eat and hot chocolate to drink.

The lecturer told me of it afterwards. I knew that she disliked the flavor of chocolate intensely and that it almost always disagreed with her.

"What did you do?" I asked.

"I ate the cake and the candies and drank the chocolate," she replied firmly. And at my exclamation of astonishment and dismay she went on:

"Those dear children had prepared that little feast themselves just to give me pleasure. I would have done any violence to my palate and run the risk of making myself sick sooner than dash their pride and enjoyment in the affair. I could truthfully say that the things looked beautifully; that I had never seen lighter cake or better made chocolate. I spoke only the truth, but I spared the girls' feelings, too!"

Such graceful diplomacy as this is beyond the reach of children—and of a good many adults, as well—but they can be taught that truth and politeness are not incompatible and that in order to be civil and hospitable it is not necessary to descend to deceit. The lesson is one it would be well for older persons to learn, but none the less, if it is a choice between civility and truth telling, the former should get the go-by rather than the latter.

I grant it is not always easy for the parents to keep a watch on their tongues for the sake of the children. The seniors may feel that their own habits of rectitude are so firmly established that an occasional excursion into the ways of polite subterfuge will do no harm. That is a matter which they may settle for themselves, but as to the effect upon their children of overhearing departures from the truth there can be no question. It is bound to do harm.

Sometimes I wonder if the carelessness in public integrity, the looseness in general veracity may not have sprung from these lessons received almost in infancy of the apparent unimportance of strict truthfulness. The father or mother who does not hold to the sanctity of an engagement, who promises to pursue some course or to incur some obligation, and then deflects from the decision at the bidding of inclination or of convenience sets a bad and at the same time a puzzling example to the young. How can we look for more adherence to fidelity in our children than we practice ourselves? We may preach all we choose, but it is by our lives that we indicate the force of our principles, and it is our conduct which leads children in the way they will go in youth and in maturity.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

In Exchange for Books.

"I AM just a boy, but I read the Corner with interest. I am going to ask a great favor, but first I would like to give some suggestions which I hope may be of use to some one. When you make preserves of watermelon rind, soak the cut up pieces over night in lime water. This will make them crisp. The rind is also good unpeeled for pigs. Is there any one who has nature books to exchange for home made candies or preserves? I so much desire the books. I am unable to buy the books and I do long for them, so please be so kind as to print my request. E. B. T."

We don't often get letters like this from a boy and it would seem a great pity if his wish could not be granted. Before this I have known of boys who had a knack of cookery and helped put up the preserves, but it is not often that one of them thinks to turn this faculty to account as a means of securing books for study. Surely there must be some one who has the nature books to send him either as a gift or in exchange for some of the articles he offers. I shall hope for an early and liberal reply to his appeal.

A Law of Nature.

"I am impressed by what you say, that one is often willing to make her wants known to complete strangers who would shrink from publishing them among neighbors. With this in mind, I cannot resist the temptation to write to you. I want to know if you think a woman should always and forever pay the price of choosing a husband unwisely. Why are irresponsible men of lax morals drawn to women in whom the sense of duty and sex morality amounts to an obsession?
"MRS. P. C."

I cannot undertake to deal with personal questions of unhappy married life in the Corner. If I once opened the department to those there would be little room for anything else and in all such differences so much depends upon the personality of the parties involved that it is practically impossible to give a helpful and wise answer to questions. For this reason I do not print the chief part of your letter. In reply to the question I quote, however, I will say that all through life we are forced to bear the burden of our errors. It is a law of nature. If you make mistakes in the training of your child, physically, mentally, or morally, you have to pay for it—and so does he. It is the rule of cause and effect and applies as well to the choice of a life partner as to anything else. As for the reasons that draw men of one kind of character to women of totally different disposition I can give no reply. Only let me say that I have known cases in which the sense of sex morality amounted to such an obsession in a woman that it blinded her to any virtues her husband might possess and apparently rendered it impossible for her to aid him to shake off the domination of his temperamental weakness. I yield to no one in the high standard I hold as to conjugal fidelity, but I have met instances where the woman's "obsession" has killed patience, gentleness, and comprehension that if cultivated might possibly have enabled her to win and hold her husband's full allegiance. He may have something to forgive in her as well as she in him, even though the nature of the faults of the two is entirely different.

Vinegar and Pickles.

"I give with this my vinegar plan for the benefit of Mrs. B. B. D. and of any other housekeepers it may interest. In making vinegar I use fruit juices and also add any weak cold tea, well sweetened, which I may have left each day. Put a "mother" with it and do not skim, as that scum is the new "mother" forming. If the mixture is set in the sun it will be good vinegar in three weeks. I also make the vinegar of sweetened tea alone, as I use lots of vinegar at pickling time.

"Here is my recipe for a fine sour pickle: To one gallon of cold vinegar add one cup of dry mustard and one cup of salt mixed together before adding to the liquid. Pack small cucumbers in glass jars and fill these with the mixture just described. Seal air tight. These are good in three weeks and will keep indefinitely.

"Here is a squash fritter recipe some one may like: One cup of summer squash, boiled and mashed; two eggs, half a cup of milk, three tablespoons of flour mixed with one teaspoon of baking powder, one teaspoon sugar, a pinch each of salt, pepper and baking powder. If sour milk is used put in enough soda to make it bubble, but use the baking powder also. The batter should be thicker than for pancakes and must be dropped in spoonfuls into an iron skillet in which drippings have been made hot. Fry the fritters the last minute after your dinner is ready to serve and place in a covered dish.

"Will some one please tell me how to can chili peppers and pimentoes? I have many tested recipes that I will exchange.
"MRS. G. M. L."

The directions for vinegar come at a good time, for pickling will continue well into the fall and the vinegar will also be of service with chili sauce, catsups, etc., which are made late in the season. The squash fritters will supply a pleasing variety and can probably be made as well with cooked winter as with summer squash. In canning peppers and pimentoes the same plan may be used as in canning okra and similar vegetables. Pick over the peppers selecting those of uniform size, so far as possible, blanch them by laying them in boiling water for five minutes, draining and plunging at once into cold water. Pack the peppers then in jars, pouring in boiling water to fill the crevices and allowing a level teaspoon of salt to each quart, lay on the rubbers and tops, partially closing the tops, and place the jars in a boiler of hot water; bring this to a boil and let the peppers stand thus for two hours. Remove the jars, tighten the covers, and when cooked screw down as securely as possible, and set in a dark closet. Pimentoes may be put up in the same way.

Gradually Growing Deaf.

"If your much tried ears are not weary listening to our plaints let me add one more for the sake of obtaining a suggestion from you or the helpful Cornerites as to how a person handicapped by deafness may be enabled to make a living. Let me explain: I am a woman past 50 years of age, have been married over thirty, and my hearing is gradually leaving me. Circumstances have arisen which render it necessary for me to earn my own living if I hope to retain my self-respect. Can you or others tell me how a living can be made by anyone in these conditions—that is, when one has lost her hearing? I am active, of average intelligence, and would do anything not too laborious if it would insure independence. I would be willing to pay for tuition in whatever would assure results. Can you or any of the others tell me of anything? I know what can be done in the home, but I do not anticipate having a home, and making preserves, cakes, etc., is much overworked. Do you think there is any possibility in a hotel for the sewing room? I would be speedy at making up bed and table linen, and I understand I should be obliged to work at a reduced price because of my infirmity. I would prefer active work, but I will do almost anything.
"MRS. F. W."

The writer of this letter gives no signature or address except her initials and the name of the city. Under the circumstances I cannot, of course, put her in communication with any of our correspondents who might know of a position for her and can only print such suggestions as may be sent to me on her behalf. I wish I could offer some on my own account, but none occurs to me at the moment. I would like, however, to give her just one word of counsel. I have seen enough of persons with growing deafness to know that they are sometimes not only sensitive but suspicious. Often they doubt the love and loyalty of their best friends and read neglect and cruelty into the simplest actions which mean nothing of unkindness. I wonder if perhaps there may not be something of this in the unhappy home relations of Mrs. F. W. So long as there are funds for her support without inconveniencing others and she feels that she has done her full duty in her home during all the time she has kept it, I am tempted to question if perhaps overtouchiness and a wrong sense of the necessity of independence may not have her in their hold. The world is full of women who must make their living or rely upon the charity of utter strangers. Is it not better to accept an allowance from one who is able to give it than to seek a position which might otherwise help some woman who is absolutely without the means of support? I do not mean to be unsympathetic or unkind. I merely hazard these conjectures as something it might be well for Mrs. F. W. to take into consideration before she resolves at her age and with her infirmity to leave a home where she is sheltered and conditions which she might perhaps better by a little forbearance and understanding, or could at least endure with patience.

Great Help in the Kitchen.

"May I come in just for a short time, please? Following serious operations and when obliged to do my own housework I found an old piano stool with casters inserted a great help to me in the kitchen. In fact, with it I did work I could never have stood on my feet to accomplish. The height of the stool can be regulated to suit your convenience and is therefore better than a chair. My kitchen table also has casters which I find a great boon. By drawing the table up to my side I can sit and wash the dishes in the sink, rinse them on a varnished shelf I have at the left of the sink, wipe them and arrange them on the table without getting up, swinging each way on the stool. Then I push the table up to the cupboard and put the dishes away in their places. I have the wings from a beautiful Indian runner duck. I washed them satisfactorily with naphtha soap and with careful rinsing. Will some one kindly tell me how to treat the portion which was from the duck? Also how they are treated to protect from moths, etc.?
"Mrs. F. L. B."

This is an excellent suggestion of the piano stool and the table with casters and I hope it may be put into use by those who are in a similar condition. I have frequently found it a necessity for housekeepers to save themselves as much as possible in the round of duties, and this plan impresses me as admirable and worthy of imitation. I wish I could give the desired information with regard to preserving the duck wings. Perhaps you must turn to some one [illegible] I in taxidermy [illegible] are experts in [illegible] desired course [illegible] us all to know [illegible] protect feathers or [illegible] the inroads of the moth [illegible] give Mrs. F. Miniature of Complete Design

One-Sixth of Design

WHAT could be more appropriate for this time of the year than a waterlily design to grace a large centerpiece. There is something about the flower which holds attraction for every needleworker. Perhaps its rather unusual massiveness is in some way responsible for its charm, for massive things can have charm if they are constructed along artistic lines. At any rate, the design I am giving today is sure to appeal to our circle of needleworkers because of its beauty and the many possibilities for applying various stitches.

It was not convenient to show more than one-sixth of the design, but as this portion of the circle plainly shows the [illegible], any woman can swing the portion around until the entire centerpiece is stamped. A glance at the miniature sketch of the complete design will give you an idea of the appearance of the centerpiece in regular size.

For use in the dining room the design should, of course, be stamped on white linen. If one intends to use it in the library, green, tan or brown linen is to be considered.

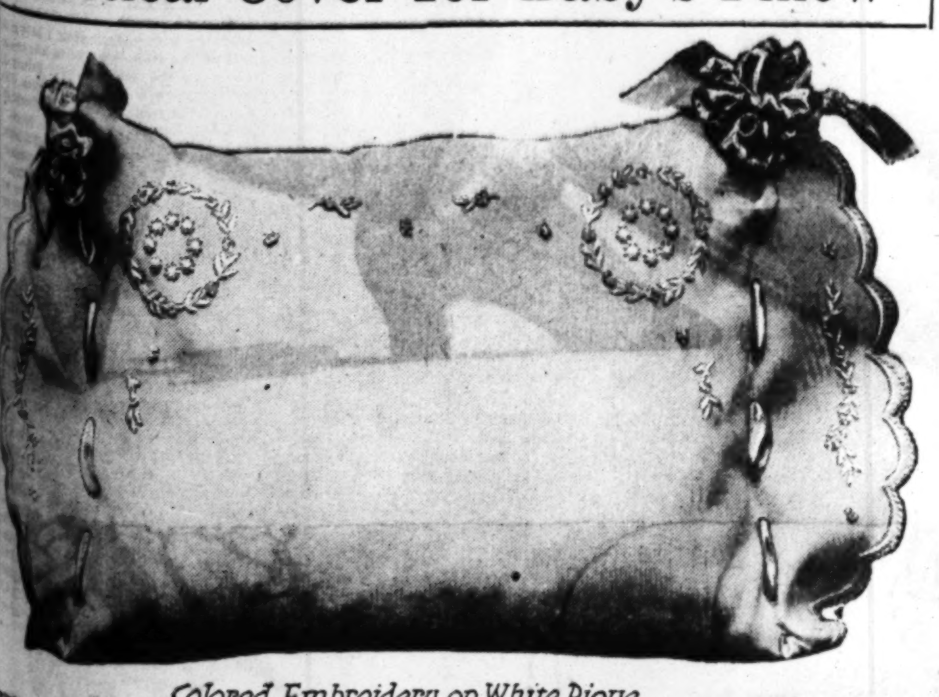
The design is most suitable for solid work. Pad the petals with darning cotton and work in over-and-over stitches for a solid effect. Darning stitches are also effective. The placing of the short black strokes indicates which portion of the petal is to be embroidered. Outline stitches should be used for the edge of the large leaf, but the veins of the leaves should be worked solid. The stems also will be more effective if embroidered solid.

All white stitches will be very striking, but a touch of color bringing out the natural hues of the flower will also be effective. In this case green should be used for the leaves, white for the petals and yellow for the centers. Should the design be stamped upon colored linen, it should certainly be embroidered in the various colors of the waterlily.

For the cut-work enthusiast this design offers wonderful possibilities. For those workers who do not know how to do cut-work an explanation of the method is in order. First running stitches all around the lines between which the bridges are to be placed. In this instance the space filled in with the short lines is the place for the bridges. After the outlining is finished, work buttonhole stitches over the outlining. Take the stitches very close together and make the length of the buttonhole stitch very short. When the buttonholing is finished, make the bridges, placing them as close together as you desire. Each bridge is made by taking a stitch in the buttonholing, crossing over to the other side of buttonholing and then working back over the same thread, taking buttonhole stitches to make the bridges firm. It is advisable to wash the centerpiece before cutting the material from beneath the bridges to prevent fraying. Should you decide to apply the cut-work method, I suggest that you work the stems solid instead of giving them the open effect.

The centerpiece can be made into a very handsome luncheon cloth by stamping the design on a large piece of linen and making another line of circumference several inches from the line already given. Outline the inner circumference and to the outer edge add a piece of wide cluny lace.

Practical Cover for Baby's Pillow



Colored Embroidery on White Pique

ISN'T this the prettiest cover imaginable for such a practical idea as that? See how the laced-up ends hold the soft down pillow after the slip comes from the laundry. It is a unique idea and one easily copied by an ambitious and deft-fingered mother.

Pique is the chosen material, a pique of the finest rib and softest weave. The pillow is cut in one piece, folded in half with a seam at the top. The scalloped, rounded end is repeated at each side, as are the five sets of eyelets, so that back and front of the pillow are identical, with the exception of the floral sprays on the front, which may be repeated on the back if the worker so desires. The embroidery in this case is in tones of blue and white. White cotton has been used for the scalloped edge with a second buttonholing of the blue, using the picot stitch, or the blue edging may be a picot crochet. Flowers are blue and leaves white, while the small dots are white with outlines of blue. The eyelets are worked large enough to allow for the passing through of a two-inch ribbon, which tops the pillow at either side with an ornamental rosette. The rosette is very easily made by tying a knot in each ribbon loop and allowing a few loose ends of the ribbon to be mixed with the knotted loop clusters.

If one must launder this pillowslip oneself, and hand laundry for such dainty accessories is best in the end, it might be well to supply snap-fasteners or buttons and buttonholes at the top where the seam is placed, so that the slip when unlaced may also be unsnapped and laid flat on the ironing board.

Here is a solution, kind auntie, or grandma, or mother's best friend, for that new baby who has just come to town. Give him something pretty like this to lay his downy head upon!

How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

Using Two Materials

THE practice of true economy always gives a pleasant feeling of satisfaction. The woman who is able to make gifts for birthdays and other anniversaries has a splendid opportunity to experiment with economy.

Some of the prettiest gift aprons can be made of two materials. For instance, by using barred muslin for the upper part of an apron and fine handkerchief linen for the bottom, or pocket portion, of the apron one can very successfully combine two materials for a sewing apron. The edge of the apron can be finished with lace edging which almost any one has lying unused in the box of odds and ends.

Another effective apron can be made of two heart-shaped pieces of material, the smaller heart being of figured material and forming the bib, while the larger heart forms the lower portion of the apron and is of plain material. On such an apron a belt of beading should be attached and black velvet ribbon run through. The touch of black always adds character to flowered materials.

Envelope Shams

THE old-fashioned "sham" is fast disappearing, and in its place we have the envelope sham, or the "over-pillowslip." Shams were always unsatisfactory things to keep in place, all sorts of laborious devices being needed to keep them up. Besides, they were exactly what their name implied, "sham," imitation, and anything imitation is always bad (remembering, of course, that the exception only serves to prove the rule).

The new shams, if you insist upon calling them so, are really pillowslips made a size or two too large, so that they will fit easily and quickly over the ordinary, everyday slips. These large slips are sometimes quite elaborate, although they may be left quite plain. The object is to preserve for the pillows an immaculate appearance during the day. The large slips are put on the pillows when the bed is made, and are removed at night, the ordinary under-cases still remaining upon the pillows to receive the wrinkles and the actual wear. Have a care, too, that the new "shams" do not conceal unfresh utility cases, or the sham will have become a despicable thing.

Open Initials

SHOULD you be tired of embroidered initials worked in solid stitches follow the idea of one clever girl and on your towels, pillowcases and other pieces of linen stamp initials that can be brought to light by means of cutwork. The effect will be more than satisfactory.

Of course, a double line of stamping is necessary in order to do the cutwork. Outline each stroke forming the letter and then buttonhole over the outlining. At intervals between the double lines make bridges. This is done by taking a long stitch from one line across to the opposite one and then working back over the line with buttonhole stitches. The closer the bridges are laid together the firmer will be the initial.

After the material on which the initial has been embroidered has been washed, cut the material away from beneath the bridges, using a sharp scissors for the purpose, and using great care not to cut a bridge.

Turkish Embroidery

DID you know that embroidery which looks for all the world as if it had been smuggled from the depths of a Turkish bazaar can be done by machine? First of all your design must be eastern and conventional to carry out the idea, and then it should be filled in with row upon row of ordinary machine stitching in colored silks. The rows of stitches are placed rather close together, so that the effect is that of a flat solid work or a woven silk figure. Dull reds, blues and greens with plenty of old gold are used profusely and all on one piece of embroidery. This work is seen mostly on "art squares" for pillow tops, table runners, etc., and might very well be repeated for portieres or inside hangings for the winter living room. The old-fashioned machine chain stitch is the one used, but a rather large, loose running stitch would be equally effective.

Child's Bureau Set

DOES your little girl have a bedroom all her very own? If so, reward her for some act of goodness by making a scarf and pincushion for her little bureau. Animals always appeal to children, so let the design for the two articles consist of a row of bunnies. The bunnies might all be in the same attitude, but, if possible, it would be better to have each one in a different position. Outline the figures of the body and use darning stitches of a dark color to simulate jackets on the little rabbits. Hemstitch the ends of the bureau scarf and the sides of the pincushion. Needless to say, the cushion should be very small to correspond with the size of the bureau.

STARTLING "POSTER" GARB THE LATEST

NOW, if there's anything more conspicuous than a poster, let's hear about it. That's what a poster's for—to catch every eye, to advertise, to make the surrounding public sit up and take notice. Yet stop; if there is anything more conspicuous than the regulation poster, it's surely an animated poster—in other words, a girl in a poster frock! It stands to reason that with the demand for a new fashion every other day the most unusual of sources must be tapped for inspiration; and what more startling, what more attractive than this evolution of the poster could be found? See her a mile away, did you say? Well, perhaps; but a pretty girl in a poster frock, strolling along a sunny boardwalk, with a distant background of bare sands and blue sky, and the wind fluttering her conspicuous but fashionable garments—well, beat it if you can! You'll have to go some, for it's more than even a magazine cover can do.

While the poster frock can be made in many combinations of colors and various materials, the combination of green and white taffeta, here shown, is difficult to surpass. The skirt is so made as to give the impression of striped material; but it is really formed of alternating panels of separate silks. It is quite full and very straight of cut, the plentiful gathers at the belt line subdued by the peplum of the odd bodice. It will be observed that the bodice is made to simulate a jacket and that it has also a decided tendency to basque lines. The latter lines are being used in some of the new fall frocks, and are expected to grow in popularity as the season advances. This jacket bodice is attached to a net foundation, which connects it permanently with the skirt, thus making a one-piece frock of the costume. Green grosgrain ribbon ending in a necktie bow at the front forms a natty little belt. Green silk faces the bell-shaped cuffs and forms an upper collar. The front fastening is ornamented with smoked pearl buttons.

The chic sailor hat is made of green taffeta and is scarfed with green-and-white-striped crepe de chine. The awning-stripe parasol, while along plain lines, is exceedingly smart and matches in severity the lines of the frock and hat. Slippers of white kid piped in green complete the unusual costume.

Satin is returning to favor—the lustrous, shimmering kind of several years ago. Fortunately it is of very light weight. A poster frock of the "new" satin would be very effective. The combination of colors could be more subdued for the woman of conservative tastes without the frock losing any of its real smartness. Gray and dark blue, blue and sand, blue and white, black and white, rose and white—any of these combinations would be charming if suited to the particular type of the wearer.

Affidavits of Passengers ar Still Meagre Regarding the Disaster.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 22.—That the Arabic was torpedoed without warning was the positive statement made in a cable message received at the State Department today from Walter H. Page, the American Ambassador in London. This information had been received previously by the department from the United States Vice-Consul at Queenstown and the message from Ambassador Page serves to emphasize its truth.

The affidavits of passengers on the Arabic as to the circumstances of the sinking which Ambassador Page was supposed to have cabled from London yesterday have not reached the State Department, according to the statements of officials today. It was said at the department that Secretary Lansing had given orders that messages containing information from passengers concerning the disaster should be furnished to the press as soon as received. Up to this time the information that has come to the department from the [illegible] in London and the Vice-Consul at Queenstown is extremely meager. This causes surprise, but no explanation is offered. The State Department is anxious to clear up several points connected with the loss of the White Star liner and no move by President Wilson is expected until this has been received.

ITALY'S WAR O MAY AFF

[BY ATLANTIC CA

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Italy's declaration of war against Turkey is expected to have an almost immediate effect on the Balkan states, which are still debating which side they will take in the conflict.

The relations between Italy and Rumania for years have been very intimate and the opinion is expressed here that it is probable, especially in view of the threatening attitude of the Germanic powers toward Rumania because of her refusal to allow ammunition to pass through her territory, that now Italy has broken relations with Turkey. Rumania will join the quadruple entente.

Bulgaria is still waiting for the reply of Servia to the suggestions of the entente ministers that Servia cede Macedonia to Bulgaria, while Greece is likely to declare her future policy when the chamber meets this week. The opinion is expressed in diplomatic circles here that it is significant that M. Venizelos, who always has been friendly to the entente, has decided to take charge, in addition to the Grecian premiership, of the office of Minister of Foreign Affairs.

FOR BALKANS TO DECIDE.

With the inclusion of Italy among Turkey's opponents in the war and the former's well-known desire for expansion in the Near East, the Balkan states may consider that the time is ripe for them to enter the field and secure for themselves a share of what falls to the victorious group. It is for them to decide which side is likely to win.

The continued retirement of the Russian armies seems to have little, if any influence on the situation, the opinion being expressed by military critics that a victory of the entente allies in the Dardanelles would more than offset this so far as the Near East is concerned and the Franco-British forces are increasing their efforts to force the straits.

There is little change in Poland and the Baltic provinces. A big battle is being fought along the Kovno-Vilna railway and the River Niemen. This, however, is of secondary importance to the movements against Brest-Litovsk.
